factors rest the success of the 1951 Chanticleer.

With the staff lies the responsibility of gleaning that which goes into the CHANTICLEER. The editors, the photographers, the writers, the researchers, the artists, the typists—all are indispensable to the success of the book. The advice and cooperation of the faculty, administration, and various University services also have a direct bearing on the final result. Chance, too, plays its part—the chance of having a photographer on hand when some unexpected event occurs, the chance of finding a specific person for a specific job.

But in the final analysis, it is the students.

the vast majority who read the book and pass judgment upon it, who make a success of the 1951 CHANTICLEER.

Dedicated . . . to the Graduation is the traditional time for the alumni to return to their Alma Mater. They gather in the Union Lobby to reminisce over college days and to meet the seniors.

Alumni of Duke University and Trinity College

IN dedicating the thirty-ninth volume of the CHANTICLEER to the alumni and alumnae of Duke University and Trinity College—most especially to those who have given twenty-five years of service—the undergraduate students wish to recognize them as an increasingly vital element in our University community.

Homecoming and graduation are the only times when the average student has any personal contact with Duke's former students. Last June the present seniors met the class of '25—the first class to graduate from Duke University—which was holding its twenty-fifth reunion. Again, the alumni met students at the barbecue and open houses following the victorious Homecoming game with Georgia Tech.

Yet the students can hardly realize the ways in which the alumni are present in their everyday life. The co-eds living in Southgate have the alumni and citizens of Durham to thank for their residence hall. Hundreds of students owe their education to scholarship funds set up by loyal alumni. Studies are made more pleasant by the peaceful atmosphere of the Trent Room in the new addition to the Library dedicated to the memory of the late Dr. Josiah C. Trent, Jr. These and other generous contributions have made life more enjoyable on the Duke Campus.

However, the alumni's contributions are not haphazard. Their activities are well coordinated by the General Alumni Association, the Duke University National Council, and the Alumni Office of Duke University. During the year reunions are held to reacquaint the Alumni with their alma mater, and each month the Alumni Register is sent to a part of the 25,000 located alumni to keep them in touch with their classmates and the present activities of the students and administration. At the present time most alumni contributions have been to the Duke Development program through which $12,000,000 is being sought to erect new buildings and to strengthen programs of education and research.

In this small way the present student body of Duke, which will soon join local alumni associations throughout the country, wishes to recognize and thank the alumni from the Class of '77 through the Class of '50 for their contributions to the students' four undergraduate years at Duke.

The oldest living Duke graduate, Mr. C. B. Franklin, from the class of '76, is pictured here with his wife on their California ranch which he has farmed diligently since graduation.

After visiting the best-known schools in the U.S. and Europe, Mr. Trumbauer designed Duke. His object was to combine in Duke the most desirable features of the world's greatest institutions.

Preface to the Present

One short generation ago James B. Duke moulded little Trinity College into the beginnings of a great new University.

At one o'clock on the morning of December 8, 1921, William Preston Few, president of Trinity College, awoke to the sounds of frenzied pounding on his door. Upon opening it, he was confronted by one of his students, who blurted out the momentous news that James B. Duke had finally announced the settlement of the bulk of his fortune on the small and little-known school. It wasn't long before the whole student body had been aroused, and a mass demonstration took place on campus. Three days later, on December 11th, the wealthy industrialist signed the Duke Indenture, which was to provide the foundations for one of the nation's greatest educational institutions.

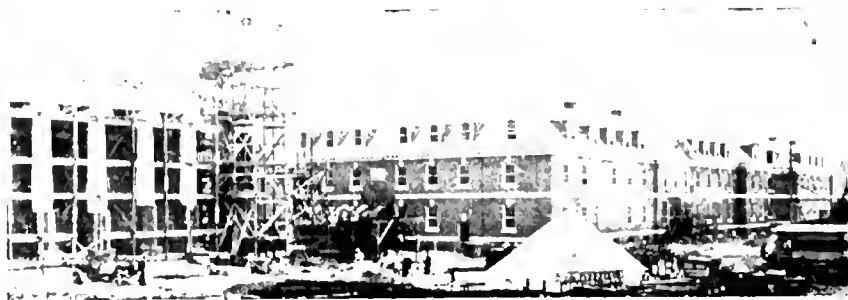

Above: In 1926, two years after the announcement of the endowment, the construction crew broke ground for the building of West. Left: This maze of engine smoke, pine trees, and construction shacks was replaced by 1932 with the majestic spires of the Duke Chapel.

Mr. Duke purchased this deposit of volcanic granite in Hillsboro, providing a permanent source of building materials.

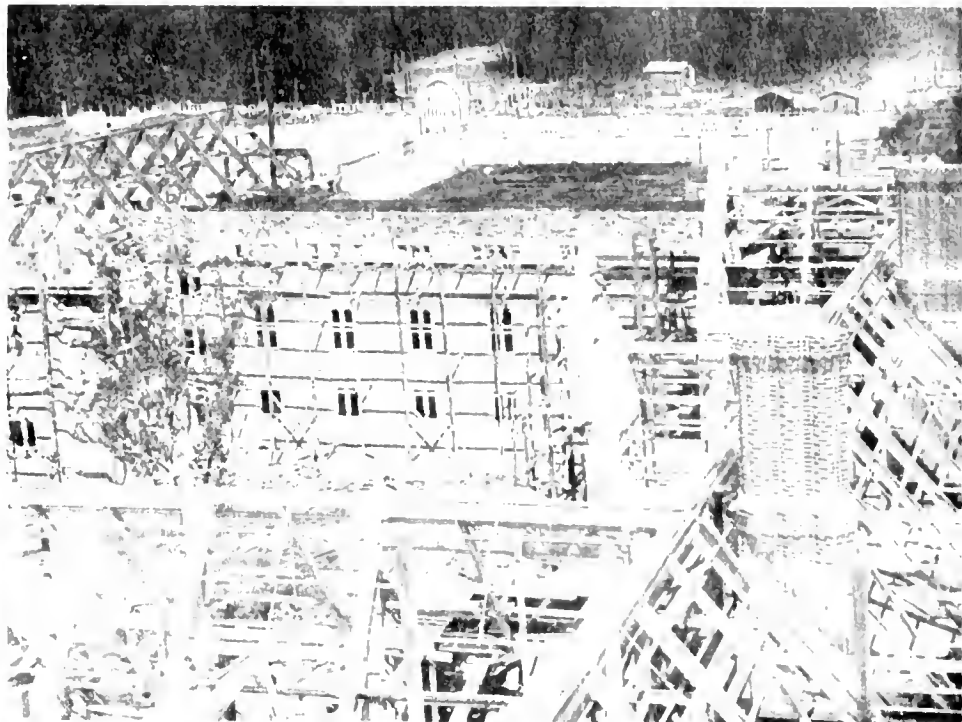

Today James B. Duke's cherished dream is a reality. The University which had its beginning on that December day a generation ago has taken its place high on the list of American schools. At a time when Duke is in the midst of a huge expansion program, it is only natural that its students and alumni look back on their alma mater's first and most difficult years, when its buildings were under construction and its student body was laying the basis of what we today know as life at Duke.

Above: The Woman's College Library was one of the last additions to the East Campus and, in contrast to West, is done in Georgian architecture. Left: At the ceremony for the laying of the cornerstone of the Union Building on West, Miss Doris Duke was the representative of the family.

EARLY in 1925, at a time when Tudor cottages and Italian villas were the architectural vogue, the first ground was broken and trees cleared to make way for Gothic West Campus. Architect Horace Trumbauer and staff had drawn up all the plans for the college campus which was to become famous for its beauty, and an entire deposit of volcanic granite in nearby Hillsboro had been purchased as a permanent source of building materials. As if by magic the forest receded as scaffolding shot skyward.

Right: At first glance the elaborate window frame at top center appears to be part of the Chapel. Actually, the structure stands at the north side of the Union.

At the same time, a mile to the east, old Trinity College was undergoing a complete face-lifting, to emerge two years later as the Woman's College or East Campus.

By 1930, Duke University was beginning to appear much as it does today. The Hospital, first building to be occupied, was opened in July. Early in the fall, Kilgo dormitory and the Union were in full use. And two years later the Gothic spires of the impressive Duke Chapel towered above Duke's dream in the making.

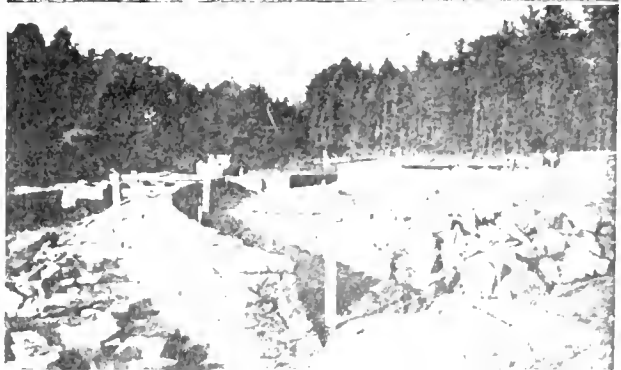

These tracks leading to the hospital were a part of the system laid by the Southern Railway to transport the heavy stone to the campus.

Construction of the Sarah P. Duke Gardens was begun in 1937 on the site originally planned as a lake.

A worker surveys one of the fifty bells of the carillon, a gift of G. C. Allen and W. R. Perkins, which is now housed in Duke Chapel tower.

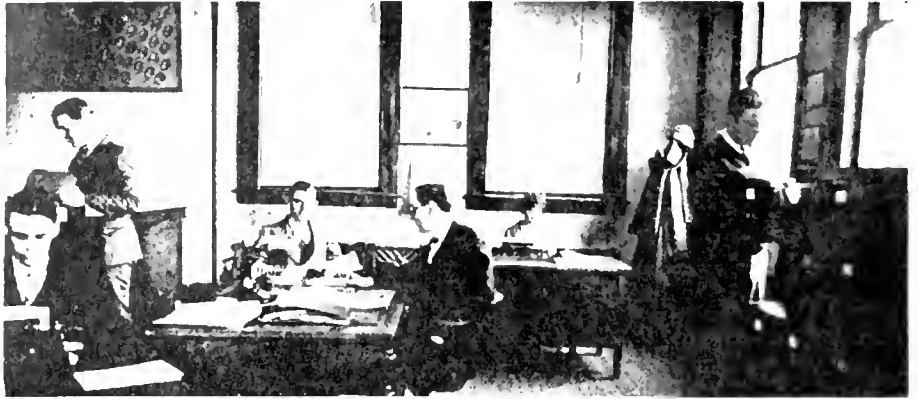

Dr. William P. Few was in his fifteenth year as president of the school when it became a university.

Below: In 1900, there had been only sixty freshmen enrolled, but by 1926, this number was 600.

ALVIN COOLIDGE was enforcing his conservative and puritanical views on the country, and the American citizen was enjoying unprecedented prosperity, when William Preston Few became the first president of Duke University. Relations between a faculty of seventy-seven professors and a student body of 1,164 reached an all-time high. A strike among the students over the length of a holiday period was the only serious breach to mar the harmony.

One of the hazards of a professor's life was the continual possibility of falling into the wide construction ditches on his way to and from classes in East and West Duke Buildings. The former also contained the administrative offices, while the students were housed in Jarvis, Aycock, and Southgate. However, Southgate was better known to the students by the name of "Fraushack," learned from their German lessons.

The campus maintenance department consisted of one man, who mowed the lawns and performed the odd jobs, while the duties of head electrician devolved upon Professor Edwards of the Physics Department.

This panel appeared in the student life section of the 1926 CHANTICLEER. Although the "Dude" and "Twenty-three Skidoo" have long since gone out, there have been no changes in the fine art of wasting time and film.

UST as classes were carried on un-interrupted by the work of construction, so did the many campus activities continue to function as before. The Student Government enforced the rules and regulations drawn up by itself and the administration, especially the ban on music after nine in the evening and during classes and religious ceremonies. His Satanic Majesty, head of the Hades Club, reigned over the member imps and impesses, all sons and daughters of ministers. "Jelly" Leftwich and his Blue Devil Jazz Orchestra gave out with the hot licks of the era, while the Duke University Musical Club specialized in black face numbers. 9019, a local scholarship and patriotic society, initiated new members by making them crawl through trenches amid cries of "Peanut butter, hit me harder," and Hesperia debated the high cost of courting and the outcome of the World Series.

Top: A small combo of stringed instruments accompanied the forty-five members of the Girls Glee Club of 1925 in their musical endeavors. Upper middle: The imps and impesses of the Hades Club, an organization for the sons and daughters of ministers, pose symbolically in the lowest spot of ground found on campus. Lower middle: "Jelly" Leftwich and his Duke University "Blue Devils" of 1927 were famed for their rendition of the popular song, "Who." Bottom: The Biology Department and students, shown gathered with a specimen or two, were the last members of the Biology Club, which disintegrated at the time of the indenture.

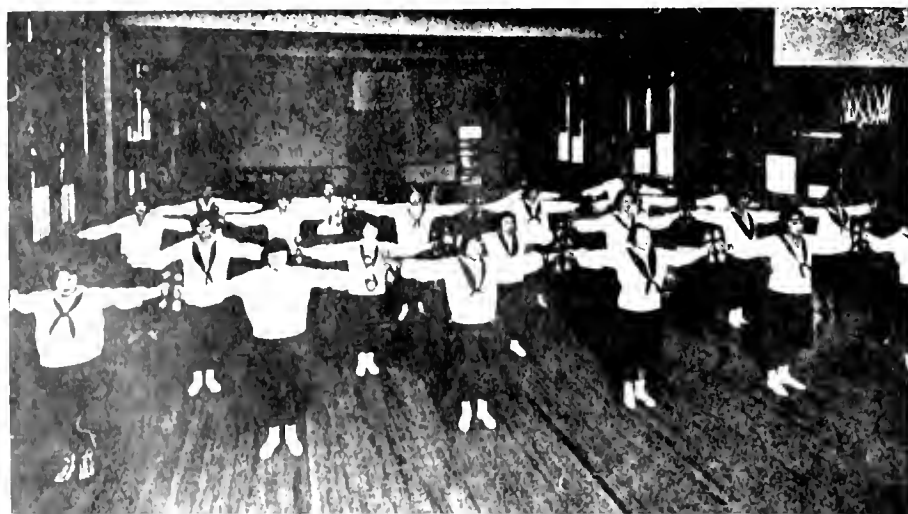

WHEN such sport greats as Babe Ruth, Jack Dempsey, and Bobby Jones captured the hearts of the American public and made them suddenly sports conscious, Duke students were by no means the last to be swept up in the tide. The sports in which Duke already fielded teams took on new emphasis. The football crowds increased to near capacity of Hanes Field, although the records of Duke gridiron teams failed to improve correspondingly. Enjoying a rank equal to football, the great American pastime, baseball, brought fame to the University in the world of sports. The popularity of wrestling is attested by the great number spectators that witnessed each meet. The best record in the history of the University was compiled by the 1925 cross-country squad, which boasted three victories in four starts and placed second behind UNC in the state meet. Stewart Rogers and Red Whitener, opponents in the state singles tennis championship, led the net team to three victories and two defeats.

With the arrival of Miss Julia Grout as women's athletic director, sports among the fair sex took on new importance. Decked out in middy blouses, black serge bloomers, and long stockings, the coeds participated in field hockey, archery, basketball, and baseball and also held mixed swimming meets.

In 1929, the Duke Stadium was opened and officially dedicated, although the Blue Devils' severe trouncing at the hands of the Pitt Panthers slightly marred the occasion. In the same year, Duke was invited into the Southern Conference, and the sports program became more unified, despite the fact that the teams continued to be outfitted in a variety of shirts and sweaters, some bearing the old "T" and others the new "D."

Above: The 1927 Duke-UNC football game was one of the early battles in a rivalry that has grown into a traditional gridiron classic. Filling Hanes Field to its capacity for the first time, a crowd of 10,000 saw mighty Carolina defeat the Blue Devils by a lopsided 11-0 score. Right: Despite crouching, waving their arms, and shouting their cry, "Forward with the banner of the victorious Blue Devils," the 1926 Cheerleaders were able to spur their team on to only four victories in a nine-game season. Below: The major required sport for the coeds dressed in middy blouses and bloomers was gymnastic and apparatus work, although the Chronicle reports this sport was often replaced by violet picking along the bank of the creek.

THE question continually on the lips of the older people was, "Is the younger generation in peril?" The flapper, however, went nonchalantly on her way drinking out of her date's hip pocket flask, petting in the parked sedan, and dancing cheek to cheek. Thus conservative families sent their children to conservative Duke University to protect them from these evils.

Bans on dancing, playing cards, and hazing issued by the University officials had as little effect on the students as the eighteenth amendment for prohibition had on the country as a whole. Because of this restriction on dancing, social hops were held in little-frequented places and soon achieved a popularity that approved functions had never enjoyed.

Flappers and dudes attended classes to the sounds of a giant bell—known today as "Marse Jack," and rung after football victories—which tolled off the periods. The radio was a novel form of entertainment, and coeds listened to the voice of Rudy Vallee crooning "I'm Just a Vagabond Lover." Student Government approval of the Savoy and Paris Theaters enabled Dukesters to see the first talkie—Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer." Every day the dean received requests for extra dates, out-of-town leave, and permission to eat in the hotel. Although activities may have changed since then, human nature was the same. Students were forever seeking new things to do, and new ways to do the old things. Without a doubt, they were the children of their own times—the unique Twenties.

To raise the dignity of the University was the purpose of this athletic and leadership honorary, which also condemned smoking as undignified.

The May Day festival with the crowning of the queen and the presentation of a pantomime was one of the highlights of college life in 1926.

Administration

Preface to the Present

Samuel Fox Mordecai, first dean of the Duke Law School, was a unique campus personality. One of the most brilliant men in the University, the Dean had a sharp and wonderful wit, combined with a vast knowledge of literature, which enabled him to quote at length from almost anything. It was a rare day when Dr. Mordecai's dog, Pompy Duck-legs, didn't accompany him to class. During his lectures, the dog sat by his desk, chewed tobacco, spit on the floor, and applauded at intervals, just as his master had taught him. Every afternoon, when classes were over for the day, Dr. Mordecai would start off in his chauffeur-driven car for a two-hour ride in the country. He was so punctual in going and coming that the students set their clocks by this daily ritual.

Administration

Popular among all his students,

Law School Dean Samuel Fox Mordecai was a striking campus figure.

Complete harmony is achieved as Dr. Edens completes his second year as Duke's president.

This is Dr. A. Hollis Edens. You might have seen him in the Dope Shop or at a dance, in the football stadium or walking on campus. You might have met him officially as President of the University, a nice, perfunctory desk job that only calls for a twenty-four hour day, seven days a week.

His duties are quite simple. He need only be mother-confessor, warden, and captain. He can spend a diverting hour listening to the problems of the faculty, or, if he tires of this, the pointed suggestions of the alumni, or an endless list of irate parents who don't understand why junior isn't Phi Beta.

Before you decide to be a university president, talk to him. Maybe then, you can see why all admire him, few envy him.

Between classes students chat with Dr. Edens on the Chapel steps. This sort of contact gives students a clear insight into the workings of Duke.

Trinity College

Dr. Arthur Hollis Edens, President of the University, was inaugurated in October, 1947. Dr. Edens attended Emory University, Davidson College, and Harvard University, and holds the degrees of B.Ph., M.A., M.P.A., Ph.D., and LL.D.

Vice-president in the Educational Division, Dr. Paul M. Gross has studied at the College of the City of New York, Columbia University, and the University of Leipzig. He was elected president of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, and he attended the General UNESCO Conference in Paris in 1949.

Charles Edward Jordan, Vice-president in the Division of Public Relations and Secretary of the University, graduated from Trinity College and attended Duke Law School, but received his LL.D. from Elon College. He has taken the bar examination and is licensed to practice law in North Carolina. Mr. Jordan was elected Chairman of the Athletic Council in January of 1949.

James Herbert Herring, Vice-president in the Division of Student Life and Dean of Trinity College, received his A.B. from Duke University and his A.M. from Columbia University. In June, 1948, Juanita College conferred upon him the honorary degree of LL.D. He has the added distinction of being a member of the Executive Committee of the North Carolina College Conference.

Treasurer of the University, Charles B. Markham, attended Trinity College where he received his A.B. and M.A. degrees. He later did graduate work at Columbia University. While at Trinity, Mr. Markham was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa. In addition to his official duties, he is Treasurer of the Athletic Council.

Chancellor of the University, Robert Lee Flowers, has held many positions during his years at Duke, the most outstanding of which are Secretary of the University, Treasurer of the University, and President of the University.

Dean of Undergraduate Studies, Alan K. Manchester, attended Southwestern University, received his A.B. from Vanderbilt University, obtained his M.A. from Columbia University Graduate School of Philosophy and Pure Science, and later studied at Duke for his Ph.D. Prior to April of 1949, Dr. Manchester served at Duke as Dean of Freshman.

Robert B. Cox, Dean of Undergraduate Men, received his A.B. from the University of Tennessee and his M.A. from Vanderbilt University and Peabody College. He went on to do graduate work at the University of North Carolina and Duke University. Mr. Cox is also Secretary of Omicron Delta Kappa and Chairman of the Duke University Church Board.

James Matthew Slay, Assistant Dean of Trinity College, is an alumnus of Duke University, having received his A.B. and M.A. degrees here. As an assistant dean since 1947, he is also in charge of the Bureau of Testing and Guidance. During World War II, Mr. Slay was an officer in the United States Marine Corps. Prior to this time, he was an instructor of romance languages at Randolph-Macon Military Academy.

William Council Archie, Assistant Dean in Charge of Freshmen, Trinity College and College of Engineering, first came to Duke in 1946, after four years in the United States Army. Dr. Archie received his B.A. from Davidson College, his M.A. from Wake Forest College and Princeton University, his Certificat d' Etudes from L'Institut pour l'Etranger in Tours, France, and his Ph.D. from Princeton University.

Vice-Chancellor of the University, William Hane Wannamaker, has in the past served both as Vice-President of the University and as Duke's representative to the Southern Conference.

n completing her first four years as Dean of the Woman's College. Miss Roberta Florence Brinkley has brought many new ideas and innovations, the most outstanding of which is the bi-weekly chapel service on East Campus. Dean Brinkley came to Duke upon completion of a year of research in England while on sabbatical leave from Goucher College. A Phi Beta Kappa, she is also an authority on English poetry and has written many books on this subject.

Dean of Residence, Miss Mary Grace Wilson, supervises student extra-curricular activities. Miss Wilson is a graduate of Winthrop College and attended Columbia University for graduate work. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi, education fraternity.

Miss Ellen Huckabee, Associate Dean of Undergraduate Instruction, received her A.B. and M.A. from Duke University, where she became a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Miss Huckabee is also active in the American Association of University Women.

Miss Marianna Jenkins is the newly appointed Associate Dean of Undergraduate Instruction. Miss Jenkins obtained her M.A. and Ph.D. at Bryn Mawr. She is a member of the College Art Association of America.

Director of Admissions, Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson Persons, obtained her A.B. and M.A. from Duke University. She has also studied at the University of Pennsylvania under a Moore Fellowship in history.

College of Engineering

After a varied career in Trinity College and Duke University, engineering is now established as a permanent college with a special building designed to meet its requirements. The first formal courses leading to a B.S. in engineering were offered as early as 1887. Although occupying Asbury and Bivins buildings by 1923, the engineering division did not become the College of Engineering until 1939. Finally, in 1948, a $700,000 structure was erected of colonial architecture because of its adaptability to engineering and scientific research projects. A complete education in civil, electric, and mechanical engineering with every possible opportunity for practical knowledge is now available.

William Holland Hall, Dean of the College of Engineering since 1939, has been associated with this division on the Duke campus for thirty-six years. Dean Hall gained his first teaching experience as a high school mathematics teacher in

Wilson, North Carolina. After two years at the United States Naval Academy, he obtained his A.B. and M.A. degrees from Duke University in 1913 and 1914, and during his undergraduate years was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, and Kappa Alpha. Subsequently, he secured his B.C.E. degree at the University of Michigan and his M.S. degree in Civil Engineering at the University of Wisconsin. Even in view of this long list of accomplishments, the most impressive characteristic of Dean Hall is that he is truly in close accord with his engineering students.

Practical experience is the main feature of the men who serve as this college's department chairmen. The jobs of directing water power development and factory construction have fallen to Harold C. Bird, Chairman of Civil Engineering. In addition to being a consulting radio engineer, Walter J. Seeley, Chairman of Electrical Engineering, is an expert on submarine detecting devices. Chairman of Mechanical Engineering, R. S. Wilbur, has had much experience with shipbuilding and manufacturing companies.

School of Law

Established first in 1924, the School of Law was not installed in its present building on West Campus until 1930. This year the Law School has a new dean, twelve faculty members, and a total enrollment of 205 students who have completed their undergraduate training at Duke and other accredited schools.

After the resignation of Harold Shepherd in 1949, Charles L. B. Lowndes took the reins as acting dean until the appointment of J. A. McClain, Jr. to the position of Dean of the School of Law by the Board of Trustees in the fall of 1950.

Dr. McClain is ideally suited for his position as Dean of the Law School due to his wealth of experience at leading universities and in the business world. He holds degrees from Yale University and Tulane University. He served several years as counsel for the Wabash Railroad at St. Louis, Missouri. Immediately prior to assuming his duties at Duke he was Dean of the Washington University Law School. He has written many articles for legal periodicals and law reviews.

Many of the special activities of the Law School's faculty and students bring this division of the University to the attention of the whole campus. The Duke Legal Clinic operates to help students, organizations, and citizens of Durham alike. The students have not only managed to find time out from their studies to hold many dances and cabin parties, but they also edit a yearbook especially for themselves. The Homburg hat, gold-headed cane, and dark-striped suit as symbols of Duke's future lawyers are very much in evidence on the two campuses.

C. F. KORSTIAN, Dean

Duke boasts one of the two graduate schools of Forestry to be found in the entire United States. The Duke Forest, a tract of 7,500 acres containing pine and hardwood trees typical of this region, provides a natural laboratory, while the excellent facilities of the Biology Department are available to forestry students for other types of research. The Southern Pine Association has joined with the School of Forestry in placing graduate foresters in the Southern lumber industry for a period of a year to give them the practical experience necessary.

Thus, Duke offers two degrees in the field—the Master of Forestry which requires two years for completion and the Doctor of Forestry which is based upon both advanced study and research.

Dr. Clarence F. Korstian, Dean of the School of Forestry, came to Duke as Director of the Duke Forest and professor of silviculture. Upon the establishment of this school in 1938, he was named dean. He is known in the world of forestry for his articles on silviculture. In 1926 he was co-editor of The Naturalist's Guide to the Americas. Dr. Korstian is active in Durham civic life as a member of the Rotary Club, a Mason, and a member of the Duke Executive Council.

Medical School

School of Nursing

Each year the Duke Medical School receives between 1,100 and 1,500 applications for entrance from hopeful pre-med students. From these petitions seventy-six young men are chosen. The school is prepared to handle exactly this number of carefully selected men, so that most of these students complete the hard grind and are graduated at the end of the training period.

The highlight of the twentieth anniversary of the Medical School was the start of the new graduate dormitory designed primarily for the medical students. After two decades of service and hard work under special grants for research and co-operation with the public health service, this school has gained the national recognition which it deserves. Its Class A rating by the American Medical Association is due largely to the continuous efforts of its dean, Dr. W. C. Davison. He has been connected with the Duke Medical School since 1927, and has studied at Princeton, Oxford, and John Hopkins University. Prior to coming to Duke, he was Associate Dean of Johns Hopkins Medical School.

The beginning of construction on the Elizabeth P. Hanes House, future residence of Duke's students of nursing, is a highwater mark in the growth and progress of the Nursing School. While the present enrollment is 150, the new dormitory will provide living quarters, classrooms, and a library for 250 girls.

The educational and training program of this school covers a three year period, at the end of which time a Diploma in Nursing is awarded. The curriculum of the school is designed to prepare nurses for general or private duty in hospitals and homes, and for first level positions in public health nursing agencies.

Miss Florence K. Wilson came to Duke as Dean of the School of Nursing in 1946. Previously she was Director of the New York State Council of Nursing, Professor of Nursing Education and Director of Nursing Service at Syracuse University, Instructor and Supervisor of Medical Nursing at the New York City Hospital, and Dean of the School of Nursing at Western Reserve University.

School of Religion

Summer School

The Divinity School was opened in September, 1926, the first of the graduate professional schools to be established under terms of the Indenture set up by Mr. James B. Duke. A Department of Religious Training existed in Trinity College prior to the establishment of the Divinity School. The Department of Biblical Literature, which preceded the Department of Religious Training, was the first such department set up in a Methodist college in the southern states.

The Divinity School at the present time enrolls 190 candidates for the B.D. and M.R.E. degrees. There is provision in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences for earning the degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. in the field of religion. Dr. H. Shelton Smith, professor of American religious thought, is Director of Graduate Studies

Summer classes are held alternately on the East and West Campuses with the period being divided into three sessions—the second session overlapping for a time into the first and third sessions. At any one session, students from Duke University and other colleges may obtain a maximum of six semester hours, or a total of twelve hours for the entire semester. During the first six weeks, Spanish students are housed in Southgate Hall, and all conversations are carried on in that language. Though the emphasis of the entire summer curriculum is on liberal arts rather than scientific study, several three week lab courses in the natural sciences are offered.

In addition to the academic opportunities, an inclusive program of social activities, such as swimming, tennis, sings, open houses, and dances was included in the 1950 program.

In February of 1950, Dr. Paul H. Clyde was named Director of the Summer School by the Board of Trustees to supersede Dr. A. M. Proctor who had acted in this capacity for the past three years. Dr. Clyde received his A.B. from the University of British Columbia and his A.M. and Ph.D. from Stanford University. He has served with the History Department at Duke since 1941 and is a member of the American Historical Association. During the last World War, Dr. Clyde was connected with the Bureau of Research and Analysis of the Office of War Information.

Dr. Clyde is also the author of many books of which the best known are U. S. Policy Toward China, History of Modern and Contemporary Far East, and International Rivalries in Manchuria. He is also a contributor of numerous articles to various social journals.

in Religion. There are twenty-five students enrolled for these degrees this year.

Twenty persons comprise the faculty and staff of the Divinity School. The school is one of the ten approved theological schools of the Methodist Church and is a fully accredited member of the American Association of Theological Schools.

Dr. James Cannon, III, served as Division Chaplain of the First Infantry Division, AEF, in World War I, and received the Croix de Guerre. He joined the faculty of Trinity College in 1919 and was named acting dean of the Divinity School in 1950. He is secretary of the Duke Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa and a member of the editorial staff of The Muslim World.

PAUL H. CLYDE, Director

Housing the many students of Duke's various graduate schools, this huge dormitory is one of the later and more modern additions to the campus. In all probability, this building will go to the Freshmen when the new graduate dorm near the Hospital is completed.

Admission to the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences may be obtained by students with superior ability who have received an A.B. or B.S. degree from any accredited college or university. These students will enter a school completely equipped with the very best laboratory, library, and lecture facilities. In the graduate school emphasis is placed on individual achievement.

Four types of graduate degrees are offered by the school. The Master of Arts or Master of Education may be received after the completion of one year's work, while the Doctor of Philosophy or Doctor of Education requires two more years.

Dr. Paul M. Gross, Dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, has also been Vice-President in the Educational Division since 1950. The Harty Medal was received by Dr. Gross in 1946 as the most outstanding scientist in the South. He has served as Director of Tobacco Research for the government during the past thirty years, and in the last war he was Director of War Research.

In addition, Dr. Gross is a member of many leading national scientific organizations, including the American Chemists Society and the National Research Council. He was co-author of Elements of Physical Chemistry and has contributed innumerable articles to scientific publications.

Dr. Gross has received degrees from the College of the City of New York and Columbia University and has studied abroad at the University of Leipzig. Prior to coming to Duke in 1919, he was an instructor in the College of the City of New York.

PAUL M. GROSS, Dean

In the alumni offices, Miss Garrard ably manages the increased staff necessitated by the Duke Development Program.

Alumni Department

The increasing number of Duke alumni and the Duke Development Program have resulted in enlarged activities and office staff and space for the Alumni Department. Under the direction of Mr. Charles A. Dukes, the staff is keeping the 24,910 alumni in touch with their University as well as conducting other services on campus. The news of the campus and Duke graduates is brought to the alumni through various publications sponsored by the Alumni Department. The Alumni Register is mailed to all contributors to the Loyalty Fund. Three issues of the Alumni News have been mailed this year to all of the located alumni. Special copies of the Constitution and By-Laws of the Alumni Organization have recently been prepared.

This department also plans special entertainment for the alumni throughout the year. Outstanding events of this year included Homecoming on November fourth, Founders Day in the fall semester, the Alumnae Weekend held during spring vacation, and Commencement reunions.

In addition to the contacting of alumni, the department performs many invaluable services on campus. The information desk, which delivers an average of 4,000 messages a month to the students in the dormitories, is open for twenty-four hour service every day in the year. The mailing office handles all University permit mailings as well as bulletins, catalogues, and special pieces distributed by various campus groups. The University House is used for entertaining alumni, special out-of-town guests, and holding meetings and receptions.

Mr. Dukes has had a great deal of experience in this field and ably directs the department. While still an undergraduate, he worked with the Alumni Office, and upon his graduation in 1929, he was appointed assistant director. In 1944, he was named director by the Board of Trustees.

MR. CHARLES A. DUKES, Director

Board of Trustees

In the indenture of trust by which the University was created, James B. Duke created the Board of Trustees and gave them uncontrolled discretion over the funds he generously lavished upon this campus. In addition to this grave duty, the Board is charged with making any rules, regulations, and by-laws not inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States and of this state as may be necessary for the good government of the University. All degrees and marks of honor are conferred by the Trustees in conjunction with the faculty members.

The Board of Trustees is thirty-six in number, of whom twelve are elected by the North Carolina Conference of the M.E. Church, South; twelve by the W.N.C. Conference of that church; and twelve by the graduates of the University. Candidates for this position must first be approved by a majority of the trustees. The term of office is six years, but a member may be removed if he does not carry out his duties efficiently.

The Executive Committee consists of seven members which include three members of the University Trustees, three members from the Endowment Trustees, and the President of the University ex-officio. This committee controls the internal regulations of the Universities, fixes all salaries and emoluments, has all the powers of the Board in the interims between Board meetings, and appoints and designates the powers of the Investment Committee.

Senator Willis Smith is the present chairman of the board. The members of the Board of Trustees are as follows: G. G. Allen, J. A. Bell, R. G. Cherry, R. L. Flowers, J. P. Frizzelle, T. M. Grant, E. L. Jones, J. R. Smith, B. F. Few, J. W. Harriss, W. J. Hobbs, H. B. Porter, C. A. Cannon, H. C. Doss, P. F. Hanes, G. M. Ivey, W. W. Peele, P. L. Sample, A. H. Sands, Jr., B. S. Womble, N. E. The annual faculty play given this year was "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." As usual, the "professors turned actors" played to a packed house. Although the production was widely acclaimed, it was difficult to judge who enjoyed it the most—spectators or players. As can be seen, line-learning was discarded as an unnecessary task.

Faculty Activities

What has become of the classic "fuddy-duddy," the professor with thick glasses and a long nose stuck in a thousand reference books, the drab introvert who shrinks from society like a frightened mole? Strangely enough, we don't see him at Duke anymore. The professors no longer live their entire lives in the classroom.

At a post-recital reception, Madame Hurbi chats with students and members of the faculty.

The University House provides the setting for a meeting of the Duke Faculty Club. This night the faculty invited the business men of Durham as their guests for a special pro-

The serious faces of these professors in the Political Science Department, as they ponder and discuss together over their Oak Room dinner, reflect the weight of the decisions facing the governments in the world today.

On the student-faculty WDBS quiz program Joan Craig and Ruthann Inler vie for answers against Dr. Spence and Miss Brown.

Dr. Hunter dislikes grading "zoo" tests as much as frosh hate them.

Dr. Ferguson spends much of his time in his well-equipped wood-work shop.

gram. The promotion of good will between the University and the city of Durham, which has been greatly improved in the past three years, is the present major project of the club.

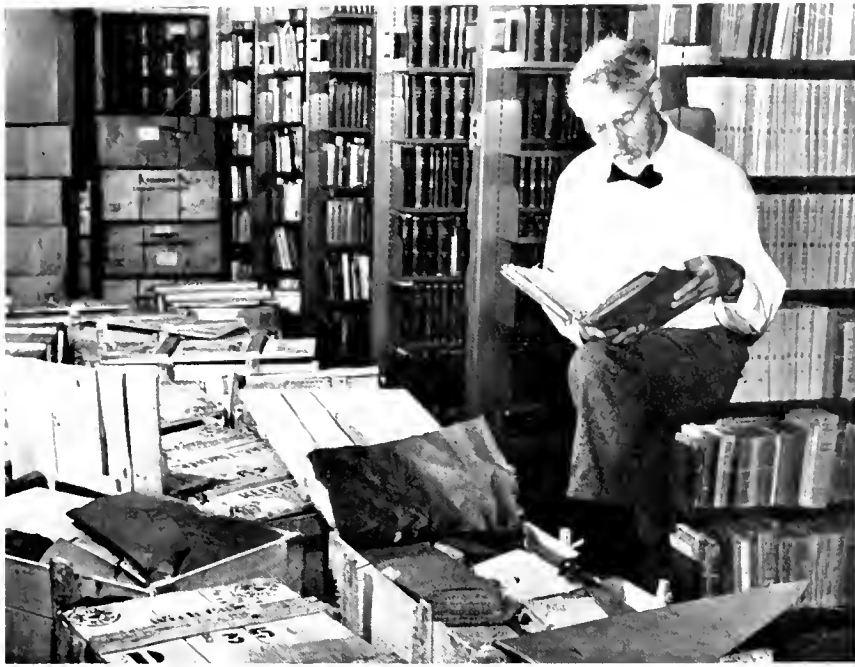

Not only students have a life outside of class —professors work, play, and relax minus books.

Our Duke "Wisemen" do enjoy the less serious things of life—the faculty play tickles the funnybones of Duke students more than any other event of the year. In that great dramatic achievement the student sees the professor on the spot instead of himself. Although the play is strictly a faculty event, the students and the professors do have opportunities to get together, as on the faculty-student radio quiz and at the coffees sponsored by the "Y."

Although hard it may be to imagine the world-authority on "Lower Slobovia" actually in the midst of a home, many professors are married and have little Einsteins running around. They may be human encyclopedias to some students, but at the bottom they are actually people exactly like you and me.

Taking stock in the stacks— Prof. Allan Gilbert, immersing himself in that amazing labyrinth of learning that forms Duke's library, finds that it will lead him down any path of knowledge which his research points out to him.

Dr. Blackburn entertains the students at a coffee in the union lobby with his famous renditions of medieval ballads on the guitar.

Relaxation at home from the cares of the classroom is one of the professors' most-prized prerogatives, but Dr. Ropp may find that he needs to summon up his knowledge of all the intricacies of military tactics in order to out-flank and out-manuever his three small sons, especially when the living-room floor is the field of action, and the parchesi board is the problem at hand.

Mrs. Mueller and Messrs. Withers, Bone and Klentz form the star-billing quartet for the Duke Music Department's programs.

This doesn't seem to be one of the more acute angles of civil engineering according to the expression on Mr. Brown's face.

Preface to the Present

The Student Handbook of 1926 suggested the following do's and don't's to new students:

Don't be afraid of hard work.

Don't be too solemn. Don't knock.

Don't wear your high school letter or belt.

Don't wait for your roommate to get you out of bed.

Don't make paths on the lawn.

Do join a Sunday School class.

Write home regularly. Speak to everybody.

Tip your hat to all professors.

Wear the Freshman cap.

Learn the University yells and songs.

Be a gentleman.

Attend the class meetings and socials.

Learn the Freshman rules.

Take plenty of exercise.

Remember we have the Honor system.

Report to the coach for some form of exercise. Linger in West Durham, leaving shades up at night,

dating on the campus during class and Chapel hours, and chewing gum in company were listed as

"things to be avoided" by all students

The moral attitude of the Twenties is reflected in this record from the 1926 Student Government Handbook.

Freshmen

Their yearly infusion is a necessary transfusion.

As soon as they had settled down at Duke, the Freshmen took a look around and started "The Imp," a paper which is all their own.

Jointly with the Sophomores they continued the Field Day tradition. The Sophs edged them out this year, but just wait!

A strong membership drive was begun, and paralleling it was a program to bring vocational speakers to Freshman assemblies.

The class dance, held in the spring, finished a wonderful year.

Fledglings take flight, soaring high and wide.

With this year the Freshman-Sophomore Field Day was added to Duke traditions. Who won? The Sophs, of course.

The Sophomore Class sponsors, also, two dances a year, one in the fall and one in the spring. In the spring the dance is given jointly with the Freshmen, and a Queen is chosen.

In order to keep the whole class informed, the Sophomores keep a bulletin board posted in the Dope Shop with up-to-the-minute information.

As usual, the Sophomores closed the year with a banquet and the installation of their new officers.

Juniors

Problems, profs, parties—prevent placidity.

With an eye to raising money for their class gift, the Juniors staged the Faculty Talent Show, which was enjoyed as much by the stage-struck faculty as it was by the students. To this same end, they sponsored the purchase of the Senior Jackets.

To establish firmer relations among the classes, the Juniors held joint meetings with the Sophomores and the Seniors. They also planned a picnic including East and West Juniors in the spring.

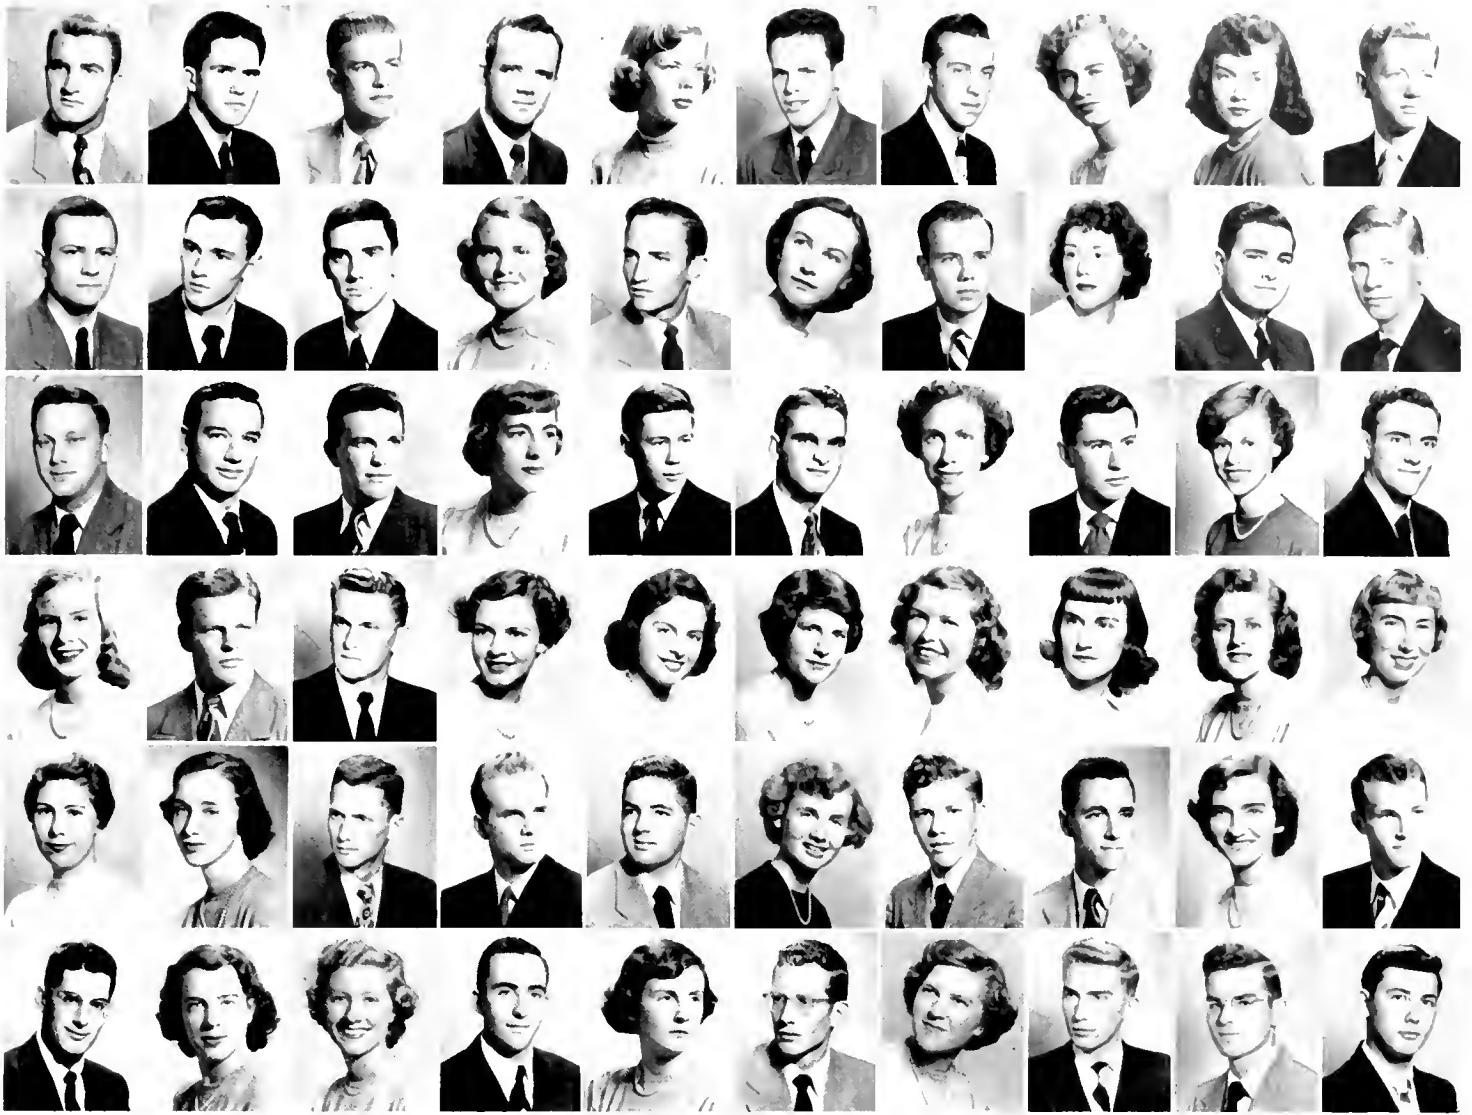

For their projects, East's Juniors contributed to the Alice M. Baldwin Scholarship Fund as well as aiding the new East Campus Chapel.

Junior Class

Seniors

Feverish activity blends with near nostalgia.

To open the year's activities, the Senior Class sponsored the tree-planting part of the Founder's Day Program.

A Senior Banquet was given for the Women's College in January, and one for Trinity College in May.

The Fashion Show, staged in February, was put together by co-chairmen Norma Barringer and Joan Voglin. The men and some of the faculty modeled for it.

Capping the year was the Senior gift of each campus . . . the outcome of four years' thought and planning.

Student Government

There is a rustling of stiff white aprons, a gentle murmur of conversation, and then silence as the student nurses undertake their responsibility of making their school better by their own ideas. Amid work, dates, and dormitory life the students gather once a month as an entire body to discuss rules, special problems, and to hear pleas and petitions.

The Nurses Student Government Association is a comparatively new organization at Duke and, indeed, among hospitals as a whole. Every member of the student body is a member of N.S.G.A., and from its members a board or Student Council is chosen annually. Included in N.S.G.A. is the Honor System set up by the organization for the benefit of the students. It is a strong, well-respected system and one of which every student is justly proud.

The stiff and starched purity of a nurse's uniform is gladly discarded in favor of the casual attire of the coed for an evening of decidedly non-stiff relaxation and dancing.

Student Life

What is the appeal of the nursing profession? Certainly there is a key thought dominating every girl's decision to become a nurse—service. The opportunity to help the sick by administering medical aid, as well as by being cheerful, courteous, and kind, has its own reward in the warm appreciation of the patients. All the nurse's activities, however, are not confined to the arduous routine of work in the hospital, for there is a social and extra-curricular side to her life that contributes to her education. Weekend dates, movies, dances, and parties help to form the well-balanced student, who takes her place as a nurse ready to guard and uphold the very high standards of her profession.

The life of a nurse must not be as busy as described if they have time to perfect jack-knife dives like this one. Swimming is a favorite sport with nurses.

Duty in the ward is not always as pleasant as this. Young Joe Louis takes that muscle-building stuff with evident enjoyment from his masked friend.

Many a patient must be pleasantly surprised when this formidably starched array, the Nurses' Choir, showers them with music rather than medicine—a much simpler cure.

These nurses find that dropping the rogram from cardio- grams makes the evenings much more relaxing than the daily grind. Even the deer seems to enjoy a little canasta.

Florence Nightingale never had it so good, but do we complain?

At a formal dance in the old gym, Lois Kime is crowned Nurses' Queen and presented with a bouquet of roses. A Kappa Kappa Gamma, the queen entered nursing after two years on East.

The Auditorium is typical of East Campus architecture.

Organizations

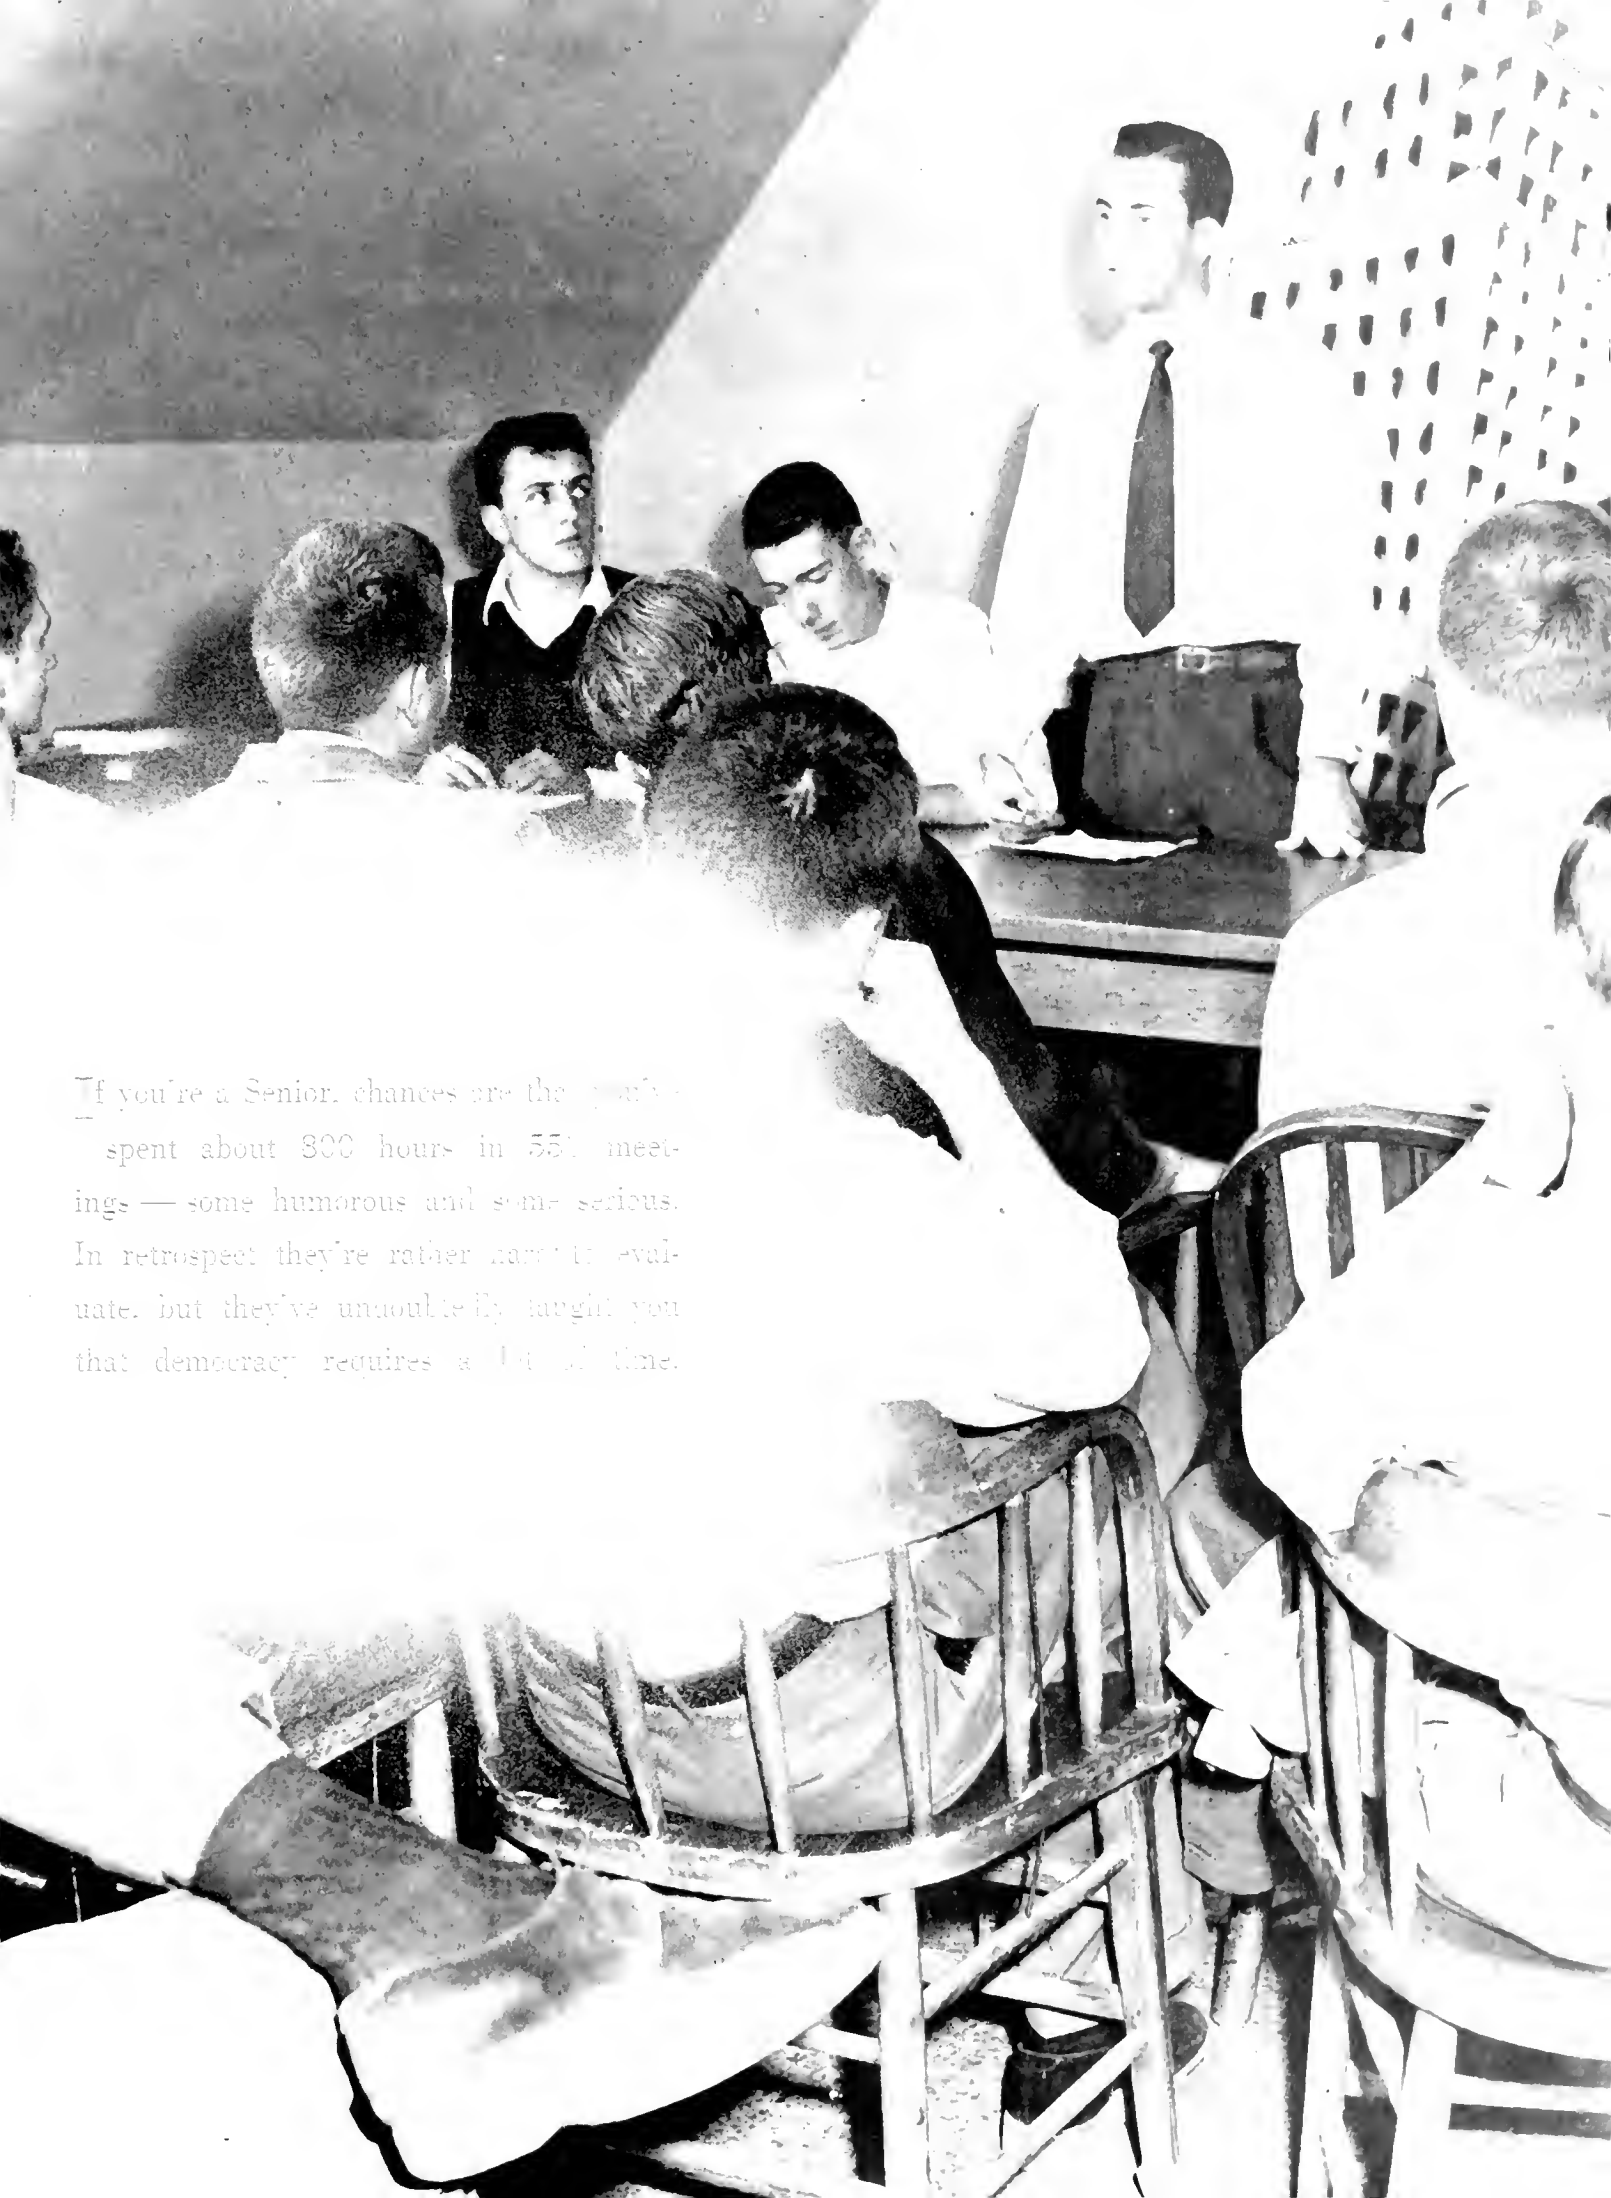

Preface to the Present

Duke University's first publications were the Chronicle, the Archive, and the CHANTICLEER, all of which carried over from old Trinity College. Printing the news and editorials, the aim of the Chronicle was "to lead public opinion rather than merely voice it." Published by the Columbian and Hesperian Literary Societies at a subscription rate of two dollars per year, the weekly campus newspaper had its editorial office on Trinity Avenue, while the business end was handled from the Lambda Chi fraternity house. Filling much the same capacity as it does today, the Archive contained such things as poems (We'll Go No More to Beaufort Town) and humorous articles (Observations on a Dry Christmas). Its contents drew high praise from its fellow publications.

Organizations

With offices spread over the campus,
Duke's student publications both informed and entertained.

If you're a Senior, chances are the year's spent about 300 hours in 55 meetings — some humorous and some serious. In retrospect they're rather hard to evaluate, but they've undoubtedly taught you that democracy requires a lot of time.

Aspiring politicians meet weekly to solve campus problems.

Some of the important past achievements of the Men's Student Government Association are the founding of freshman traditions, the setting-up of WDBS, the organization of the Student Book Exchange, and the establishment of the professor-rating poll.

This year the Men's Student Government Association had no definite plans for new activities. The organization has, however, been endeavoring to fill up a dwindling treasury in order that they may sponsor more activities. Both the Student Book Exchange and the Student Catering Service were established to help accomplish this.

The creation and supervision of the Pep Board under the direction of Ed Swanson was the greatest achievement of M.S.G.A. during the year. For the first time in history Duke had sensational card tricks at their games. Besides handling the card tricks at half-time of the football games, the Pep Board was also in charge of numerous pep rallies throughout the year.

The problem of the honor code held the attention of the Women's Student Government Association in 1951 as it had done throughout 1950. The biggest step forward was the coordination with M.S.G.A. and the faculty through the formation of a committee to investigate the possibilities of having both campuses work on the honor system.

A major reorganizational change was made to relieve the house presidents and Council members of their over-burden of duties and to provide a separate judicial branch. The new Judicial Board is composed of a chairman, vice-chairman, and one member from each house. This is the first major change that has taken place in the W.S.G.A. since its formation and is but one step in the direction of better government.

While such rule changes excited little interest among the association at large, the installation of Bendix washing machines received the enthusiastic praise of every co-ed. The machines were installed in the basement of the dope shop in the spring for the use of both campuses.

Once a month, coeds see the governing body in action.

With helpful advice on studies and activities, hand-picked upperclassmen guide the frosh through their first semester.

There's an old story about the nurse who woke her patient up in the middle of the night to give him a sleeping pill. Well, that's just about what the F.A.C. men do. A poor freshman, deeply engrossed in his studies is apt, at any time of the night, to be interrupted by his F.A.C. man coming in to deluge the unsuspecting student with a myriad of hints and pamphlets on how to study. But, needless to say, the men of the Freshman Advisory Council are very helpful to their charges, the young freshmen. Any time the freshmen needs advice or help of any sort, he can go to his

F.A.C. man who is always ready and willing to serve.

The organization is made up of 110 carefully selected men. These men are chosen, out of a group of 500, on the basis of character, scholarship, personality, and participation in extra-curricular activities. The avowed aims of these men are to make the freshmen feel at home at Duke, to acquaint them with the customs and traditions of Duke, and to advise them concerning studying and participating in extra-curricular and social activities. A father to the freshman, that's the F.A.C. man.

"Lois, could we possibly have three dates this weekend and only one next?"

"Lois, explain the Honor Code to me again. I don't understand."

"Lois, may I have a light cut tonight? Zo, quiz tomorrow."

Lois, the F. A. C. must be on the ball. She has to know library, infirmary, and union hours, be a talking map of the campus, and a combination soft-shoulder and Dr. Anthony.

During Freshman week of school Lois loses her identity as an upper-classman, a sorority girl, or Bob's pin-up; that week she turns teacher and pounds the Handbook verbatim into their befuddled brains. She and the "Y" Men change to match-makers and push reticent dinks toward bashful blonds.

The adviser's first duty is to successfully steer the freshmen through their first week; and drill the rules into her charges for the Handbook test. Then she helps to maintain the status quo during rushing. Her duties dwindle during the year until her freshmen test their wings and make their solo flight into the whirl of college activities.

Social Standards

Mothers' mores and morals are mandates of these misses.

DOTTIE LENNING, Chairman, is also active in Nereidian and Hoof 'n' Horn.

Composed of representatives from each dormitory and from the Town Girls, Social Standards is an organization dedicated to maintaining and promoting standards of good taste and gracious living on campus.

Social Standards also contributes much to a pleasant social life at Duke. Thus in the fall they put on the long anticipated Co-Ed Ball, at which the CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen, Love Lindsey, and her Court were presented. The theme was "Out of This World," and it was carried out in the invitations which were printed on tiny pink clouds, in the decorations, and in the pictures of the candidates. The delightful dance music was furnished by the Duke Ambassadors. In the spring of the year, a second Co-Ed Ball was staged. Like the fall dance, it was one of the big social events of the year.

A new feature of Social Standards this year is the activities file. This file contains information available to all campus organizations on all kinds of social activities and methods, from renting cabins at Crabtree to how many people can safely get into a given room.

In the literary line Social Standards published "It's Not in the Handbook" for the incoming freshmen. This little pamphlet contains various kinds of miscellaneous information for freshmen—information like what to bring, what to wear at social functions on campus, and what to expect in the way of Social Standards rules.

Also for the freshmen, Social Standards presents a Barn Dance early in the fall which is attended in jeans and shirt-sleeves. A Transfer Dance is always given a little later for the new transfers.

One of the most worthwhile projects of the group is the Social Standards Calendar which is published yearly. The pages of this calendar present beautiful photographs of Duke University in all seasons and moods, giving others an idea of what our campus is like.

Changing with the shifting needs of the campus, developing continually, and adapting itself, Social Standards is integral in Duke life.

The Chairman of Social Standards this year is Dottie Lenning; Vice-Chairman, Cookie Beck; Secretary, Mary Louise Arnold; Treasurer, Jo Voegelin. Social Standards is advised by Miss Wilson.

The Student Coordinate Board was established at Duke in 1945 as an auxiliary unit of the Woman's Student Government to act as an intermediary among students, faculty, and administration. Joan Craig, chairman, and Jane Prestwich, secretary, are the officers who lead a group selected from the Student Government Association with three members from each class and two representatives from the W.S.G.A. council. The duty of the Board is to investigate and act upon various suggestions given to them concerning the improvement of conditions on campus.

Though much of the Board's work receives little or no publicity, a few of their noteworthy past achievements are: planned assemblies, hours during which there are no meetings, a suggestion box in the Dope Shop, freshman registration in the fall, coordination between East and West, suggestions for an honor system, and the Student Government Workshop. The activities of this year included curriculum and faculty evaluation and an attempt to persuade the administration not to have gym grades count for scholastic average.

Dr. de Vyver, adviser, was invaluable in effective and close work with the faculty. As long as faculty, students, and administration work together as successfully as they have in past years through a capable Student Coordinate Board, Duke will continue to be one of the most unified universities in existence.

Men's Judicial Board

Just judgment passed on felonious fellows.

As chairman of the Judicial Board, BOB JONES does a fine job of dispensing "justice for all." He is a senior from Charleston, West Virginia.

Men's Judicial Board was begun in the fall of 1949 after M.S.G.A. representatives voiced the opinion that students should have a greater voice in the government of Duke campus. In the short period that the Judicial group has been in operation, it has won the respect and admiration of students for its straight-forward policy of delivering justice. The nine man judicial body hands out decisions to the tune of about six cases weekly. Although the faculty may alter decisions made by the body, they seldom exercise this right. Judgments have been rendered on such violations of school regulations as the shooting of fireworks and cheating on examinations.

Since the students are governing themselves, a fairer interpretation of campus regulations is obtained.

To achieve a noteworthy record in its short history, members devote an average of seven hours weekly to their duties. Bob Jones serves as Chief Justice, and George Grune is Clerk.

Other members are Carl James, Bob Silkett, Jim Solomon, Ralph Fleming, Lee Noel, A. B. Pearson, and Dick Farquhar. Deans Robert Cox and William Archie are advisers for the group. Judicial members are selected yearly from the junior and senior classes. After securing faculty approval of M.S.G.A. and Judicial Board nominations, M.S.G.A. votes for nine students to serve as justices for the coming year.

The formulation and the hard-earned success of the Men's Judicial Board have notched another victory for Duke's student government.

COOKIE BECK, Chairman of N.S.A., active in Woman's Student Government.

N.S.A.

Before 1916, the United States was the only major country in the world without any national organization for its students. However, during that year the National Students' Association was founded for that purpose.

By a unanimous vote of the student body of the Woman's College of Duke University, N.S.A. was incorporated as an auxiliary of the Woman's Student Government in 1919.

The purpose of this organization is to bind together all students in colleges and universities throughout the nation and to work with other foreign student organizations. In essence, N.S.A. is student government on a national level.

After only two years of existence on East Campus, the committee has contributed by sponsoring a Job Opportunities Conference, handling the Faculty Rating on East Campus, introducing student Travel Abroad under the auspices of the International Program of N.S.A., and participating in the national and regional conventions of this organization. During one of the fall assemblies, the chairman reported on the activities of other schools which are also members of this association. One of its main purposes has been to contribute information to the various groups on campus.

The committee is selected from the Student Government Association, with one member from each dormitory, the Town Girls, and W.S.G.A. Council. Dr. Theodore Ropp of the History Department is adviser to the group. Officers were Cookie Beck, Chairman, and Sue McMullen, Secretary. This summer there will be a national convention at the University of Minnesota with delegates attending from over four hundred schools in the United States. The President of W.S.G.A. and the Chairman of N.S.A. will attend the convention.

The engineer tunes in Bob Cook while Archie Mathis and Jackie Dodge wait for their cues.

Launched as Duke's newest campus organization last fall, Station WDBS has already established itself as a high-voltage operation during the first year of its existence. Building from a small nucleus of students who handled several departments, "The Voice of Duke University" has swelled its ranks to the impressive figure of over one hundred active student members, who busy themselves in the engineering, production, and business aspects of the radio programming field. Station Manager Bob Cook and his staffs carry out the work of a typical "big-city" radio station from the WDBS studios located in 06, Grey Building. The station is financed partly by the University and partly through funds raised last year by the all-campus "Hump-dink Celebrity Night" benefit show. An additional source of capital for the organization is obtained through broadcast advertising sold by ad staff members to the Durham merchants.

Students new to radio broadcasting master the intricacies of radio console operation, script writing, announcing, news reporting and editing, ad selling and commercials, and the all-important work connected with producing "live" stu-

Coeds from East prove adept in all branches of operations from typing to script writing. By the end of the school year, WDBS installed a repeater transmitter on East, becoming an all-Duke entertainment medium. the National Broadcasting Company, WDBS was on the top rung of the campus organizations' ladder.

Acting as a governing board for the station, the Radio Council operates much as Pub Board does for the publications. The Council is composed of the faculty adviser for the station and three advisers, one each for the engineering, production, and business staffs. Student representatives from both campuses also hold a vote in elections and policy decisions. Officers are Station Manager Bob Cook, Business Manager Archie Mathis, Engineering Manager Norman Bolton, and Production Manager Paul Keye.

rom the first hectic days as a freshman to the hard-earned happy hours as a graduating senior, the Duke Y.M.C.A. fills our moments with Christian ideals and programs. Dad's Day is always a success, and the wheelbarrow race separates the men from the boys. Old clothes come out for a moment during the Dungaree Jamboree, and three yearly "Y" chapel services keep us in line. Attention shifts to the Campus Chest drive as Raywid

By accepting students of every faith, the "Y" man is a true example of toleration on our campus. Danny Blaylock and his lineup of outstanding students have something to offer everyone, and each and every Dukester learns first hand that the Christian life is the best life.

Y.W.C.A.

Budding Jane Addamses find their niche in working for the cause.

Duke's Y.W.C.A., one of the most popular organizations on campus, is built upon a foundation of enthusiastic religious interests.

The attraction lies in the varied activities for fun and fellowship which it provides. Under the admirable leadership of Diane Lee and Ethlene Sampley, the "Y" plans many worthwhile projects scattered throughout the year.

The "Y" Cabinet girls are not found still vacationing when Freshman Week rolls around, for they are back at Duke to join in the hustle of meeting trains and busses and to help acquaint the newcomers with the campus, its organizations and activities.

By its unceasing efforts towards closer contact with God through Christian fellowship and activity, the "Y" has been one of the most successful organizations on campus.

DIANE LEE, as president of the Y.W.C.A., has worked hard and successfully to carry out the aims of this organization.

Men's "Y" Cabinets

emper Paratus may be the motto of the United States Coast Guard, but on Duke campus it could be applied just as well to the Sophomore and Freshmen "Y" Cabinets. Any request for service finds them "always ready." Judging from the zeal and initiative displayed by this year's organizations, one cannot fail to be impressed with their accomplishments.

The Sophomore Cabinet has often been represented as doing all its work in conjunction with the Senior Cabinet; however, they also undertake various projects on their own. For instance, their changing awkward dancing students into Fred Astaires (more or less) met with such success that they were forced to sponsor a spring class in addition to the one in the fall. The Sophomore Cabinet secured homes for the foreign students to stay in during Christmas vacation, operated a lost and found service, and sponsored a bridge tournament and a talent show. Weekly radio broadcasts designed for the benefit and general interest of the school were an added feature.

As usual, the Freshman Cabinet was typical of the boundless energy and spirit of their class in the numerous and worthy services that they rendered for Duke. Not only the cabinet members but also the other "Y" members participated and were made to feel a part of the organization. Plans for an outdoor chapel were pushed with great success. Also, a fraternity-independent debate highlighted their regular forums concerning the special problems of freshman students.

Established three years ago on East Campus to meet the growing need for such an organization, the Women's Freshman "Y" Cabinet has proved its usefulness again and again. Any girl in the Women's Freshman "Y" is eligible for membership. The Freshman "Y" is never active until the spring semester.

Like the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A., the purpose of the Freshman "Y" Cabinet is to "unite in the desire to realize a full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God. To have a part in making this life possible for all people. In this task we seek to understand Jesus and to follow him."

The Freshman "Y" cabinet as a matter of course is closely correlated with the Y.W.C.A. in all its work. With the "Y" they sponsored Religious Emphasis Week early in the month of February. With the "Y" they planned and organized East Campus' annual Mother-Daughter Weekend in April. They held retreats, picnics and social functions of various kinds, cooperating in the fullest degree with the Y.W.C.A. and the Y.M.C.A.

The Freshman Cabinet had many plans of its own, however. Early in the second semester they began an intensive and successful drive for freshman workers at the Edgemont Community Center. In order to recognize those girls who went through the carefully-planned two-week training period necessary for all Edgemont workers, the Cabinet gave a banquet.

Later in the spring they staged a Carnival in the time-honored style. All profit went into the "Y's" treasury. New this year was the Valentine's Day party given by the Cabinet for the children of the maids.

Officers of the Cabinet this year are: President, Patricia Sommardahl; Secretary, Jenelle Smith; and Miss Ethelene Sampley, adviser.

The Student Forum Committee at Duke is a group composed of interested students organized for the purpose of bringing to the campus leading personalities from all over the world. As an integral part of the educational program at Duke, this group supplements the regular classroom and extra-curricular activities by a series of lectures by men and women representing many fields of interest.

This year, Student Forum is under the leadership of Emily Boone with Dr. Glenn Neagley and Mrs. Helen Bevington serving as the advisers.

Among the well-known speakers brought to our campus were Ogden Nash, Cornelia Otis Skinner, and Pearl S. Buck.

Student Forum at Duke is an educational organization run by the students, because the coeds choose the speakers, entertain them, and furnish the funds to pay for them.

Debate Council

Under Professor J. C. Wetherby, Coach of the Duke debate team, the fifty member Duke Debate Council reported another highly successful season. Operating from Branson Building of Speech and Drama, the council this year dispatched teams to several tournaments, some of which were: Columbia Tourney, University of South Carolina; Southern Speech Association Tournament, University of Florida; Georgetown Tournament, Georgetown University; Dixie Tournament, Charlotte, North Carolina; Tau Kappa Alpha Tournament, Lenoir-Rhyne College. Of the various teams that competed in these tournaments, approximately three-fourths of the debates entered by the council teams from Duke were won by them. A partial listing of the teams beaten would include such nationally ranked teams as the University of Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, and the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Though only five years old, the Debate Council has established a remarkable record, which is due in large part to the coaching of Professor J. C. Wetherby and to the highly enthusiastic participation of the members. All of the members have actively participated in inter-collegiate competition; and, consequently, the future of the council is no longer of a speculative nature, but it is an organization assured of continuing success. Proof of its competence can be shown by the fact that one of its members won top honors in the Dixie Tournament in competition with the top collegiate debaters in the country.

Pre-Medical Society

After carefully washing his hands, the surgeon has the waiting nurse assist him in putting on his rubber gloves, white coat, and gauze mask. As the doctor walks confidently to the operating table, the nurse watches in awe. On the table lies a man precariously close to death. Outside, his wife and children await the outcome of the operation with fearful anxiety. Upon the skill of the surgeon rests the future of this family. The rap of a gavel startles the pre-med student from his daydream as the Pre-Medical Society meeting is called to order.

Visions such as these bind the pre-medical students together in a co-operative center for intelligent pre-medical thought. Through this society a close relationship has been established and perpetuated between the pre-med students and the faculties of the undergraduate and medical schools. Since the primary goal of the society is entrance into medical school for its members, one bi-weekly meeting featured a talk by Dean W. C. Davison on "How to Get into Medical School." Other speakers appeared throughout the year with interesting lectures on subjects relative to medical work.

Any pre-medical undergraduate student who shows interest and a desire to further the society is invited to join if he has a "C" average or better; however, all pre-meds are welcomed to the meetings. Activities included a banquet in the spring and symposium organized in cooperation with other pre-medical clubs in the state.

Members of this society, whose visions will become reality when they take their places as men and women of the profession, will be better fitted for their work because of the influence of this gossip.

With its spirit snowballing, the Engineers' Club once again moved through its active program this year. The Club, which is open to all engineering students, highlighted the year with the annual Engineers' Show with more than 4,500 people attending.

The dances held in the fall and spring are characteristically elaborate in decoration and are anticipated with great enthusiasm. The feature of the spring ball was the crowning of the Slide-Rule Queen. Among other activities of the year, the Engineers displayed their non-technical abilities in a Sing, in leading the pep rallies with blazing torches, and in entering teams in intramural competition.

The Engineers' Club has stimulated a spirit of unity and cooperation among the students of the College of Engineering and has steadily maintained a place of prominence on the Duke campus through its spirit and industry.

The American Society of Civil Engineers was founded at Duke in 1933. Since then, the student chapter of this national organization of professional civil engineers has been increasingly successful in its attempts to further the basic aims of the society. These aims include the preparation of the student for entry into the civil engineering profession by creating interest in extra-classroom engineering, and establishing and maintaining better personal relationships among the students and with the faculty.

There are several ways in which they try to accomplish these purposes. Regular meetings are held bi-weekly; one meeting is set aside for business, and the other for a program consisting of a prominent speaker or a motion picture in the field of civil engineering. This year, the programs have been centered chiefly on a series dealing with the four main phases of the civil engineering profession—structures, transportation, hydraulics and sanitation. A series of social functions is held to enable the students to know each other and the faculty in an informal manner.

To be eligible for membership a student must be a member of the senior, junior or sophomore civil engineering classes.

Officers for the year were: E. D. Harward, chairman; W. V. Westmoreland, vice-chairman; and C. E. Stecker, secretary-treasurer. The faculty adviser was C. W. Brown.

A.I.E.E.

Established in 1927 by Professor W. J. Seeley of the College of Engineering, the Duke University Student Branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers not only presents facilities to its members for keeping abreast of current developments in the field of electrical engineering, but also affords opportunities for its members to develop any latent abilities in their chosen profession.

At their meetings, students as well as professional speakers are given a chance to discuss subjects related to electrical engineering. These meetings stimulate relations between the students and practicing engineers. Proof of this close cooperation can be shown by the fact that the Durham Engineers Club annually sponsors an inspection trip to Bugg's Island for the A.I.E.E. members.

The highlight of the year was the winning of first prize for the best student paper in the A.I.E.E. national contest by a Duke student, Charles Strandberg. The electrical engineers also have several unusual and ingenious displays for the annual Engineers' Show.

Officers for the organization this year were Edgar C. Fox, Chairman; Eugene Komlosi, Vice-Chairman; Norman A. Bolton, Secretary; and Richard Combs, Treasurer.

Minions of mechanics, these engineers revel in research.

Founded by Professor R. S. Wilbur in 1935, the purpose of the Duke University Branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers is to familiarize the student with the practical side of mechanical engineering, to make available the A.S.M.E. library facilities and publications branch, to develop public-speaking ability, and to teach him parliamentary procedure and organization.

One of the main functions of the student branch is to take the mechanical engineering students on several inspection trips through various industrial plants. In this way students see some practical applications of classroom theory.

Every spring a conference of the thirteen student branches in the Southeast is held. James Hamilton presented a paper on coal mining in April, 1950, placing fourth among thirteen colleges. Spring of 1951 brought the annual student conference to Atlanta where speakers from Duke competed again for public speaking honors.

The A.S.M.E. student branch is a very essential part of the engineer's education, equal to any classroom lecture and therefore, the mechanical engineering student body is enthusiastic about the principles presented by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

The lights in Page Auditorium dim and a hush falls over the audience. The curtain rises on another Duke Players production. The excitement of opening night climaxes many weeks of furious preparation.

Under the guidance of A. T. West, Duke Players came into existence in 1931 to provide an organization for students who are interested in dramatics and to create a fresh source of campus entertainment. Duke Players offers aspiring actors and actresses a chance to prove their abilities before the footlights and provides a workshop for those who are interested in learning the varied phases of back-stage production — scenery, costumes, lighting, make-up, and publicity. Members are initiated after they have worked twenty hours in preparation for two major productions.

In the spring of 1950, the University provided the organization with permanent quarters in the newly-renovated Branson Building on East Campus. The building contains a complete theatre in-the-round. Bi-weekly meetings are held in Branson to discuss plans for forth-coming productions and to hear talks by faculty members on topics pertaining to the theatre.

The current season got off to a successful start with the presentation of Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur's comedy-drama, The Front Page. With the scene laid in the press room of a Chicago court, the Players recreated faithfully the "hoodlumesque," lusty character of the newspaper profession in the '30's. Praised by audience and critics alike, The Front Page provided a memorable evening's entertainment.

The second Duke Players' production was Shakespeare's Othello, which marked a significant "first" for the organization in that it was the first play produced in the arena theatre of Branson. Othello, which ran five nights, was acclaimed a powerful success.

The Assent of F-6 was presented in the spring to an enthusiastic audience. Once again the critics applauded an excellent performance. Finally, S. N. Behrman's Second Man brought to a fitting close one of the Duke Players' most varied and successful seasons.

JANE SCHIRDER, president of Duke Players, is a member of Phi Kappa Delta.

The Duke Players opened their 1951 season with an excellent staging of Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur's rollicking comedy, The Front Page. The scene is laid in the pressroom of a Chicago court at the time of an execution. Dick Blair portrays a cynical reporter who doesn't have time to scoop other papers and get married too, while Denny Marks is cast as his excitable city editor.

Roughed knees and rolled stockings, plunking ukeleles and the fast moving Charleston . . . and the exuberant spirit of the Flamboyant Twenties was re-created in Hoof 'n' Horn's ninth annual musical comedy, Flap 'Er Sails. Scheduled to run only two days last spring, the show proved such a hit that an encore performance was demanded by enthusiastic theater-goers.

Directed by versatile Art Steiner, Flap 'Er Sails featured romantic interest by Ann Carol Hogue and Ken Taylor, rollicking comedy by Barbara George and Lawson Crowe, and a surprise ending by Al Sugarman. The story of a cruise aboard a run-runner in 1928 was written by Ed Newman, based on ideas suggested by Harry Crigger. The music was written by Tom Love, Duley Peters, Helen Rosenman, Joyee Herndon, and Armin Hof-sommer; Bill King, Paul Keye, and Fred Conway penned the sparking lyrics. A high-kicking chorus line, yak-yak comedy, and professional staging rounded out the animated musical show.

Interest in the fifteen-year-old musical comedy club has always run high, with the annual shows eagerly anticipated by the University community . . . the club is also popular from the participation standpoint since it gives stage-struck undergraduates a show case for their talents and an opportunity to gain valuable experience in the many sides of musical comedy work.

Progressing steadily since its inception in 1936, and suddenly overflowing with student talent and technical experience, Hoof 'n' Horn this fall felt able for the first time to undertake a life-long ambition . . . the production of two musical comedies a year.

And consequently, December saw the curtain rise on Ring Around the Moon, first winter production in the club history. But even before the finale of this hit, work had already begun on the yearly spring show, with plans as usual for making it "even bigger, even better."

Ken Taylor registers blissful indecision as two young flappers vie covly over his attentions. Barbara George and Ann Carol Hogue's rollicking portrayals of two of the lovelier noise-makers of the "roaring twenties" helped make "Flap'er Sails" a big success.

Duke Ambassadors

Dancing to their music is a high point of Duke night-life.

welcome addition to any social function on campus is the Duke Ambassadors. These gentlemen have consistently maintained a top-notch position in music circles. Proof of this is found in the write-up in Who's Who in Music or in the files of the Music Corporation of America.

High standards of musicianship account for the excellent record of the Ambassadors. This and many hours of intensive rehearsing make the band's distinctive style of dance music much in demand.

The band is fronted by Fred Whitner whose musical ability and personality make him popular with his fellow musicians and students.

smooth, danceable music," the slogan of the Duke Cavaliers, has been very much in evidence on the Duke campus since 1949 when this band was formed by Bill Byers. Shoe and Slipper Shoe and Slipper was organized at Duke two years ago to bring name bands to the campus for a weekend each spring and fall. Last year five of the top bands in the country appeared for the dances, which were easily the most successful ever staged by S. 'n' S. For the first time there were three bands at the spring dance. At the Friday night informal dance Blue Barron and Charlie Spivak shared the spotlight. The following day Glen Gray joined Spivak to give an afternoon concert and a formal dance in the evening.

The fall dance brought two of the five leading bands in the country to the Duke gym. On Friday night Tex Beneke was on the bandstand. Vaughn Monroe took over for the afternoon tea dance and the formal dance Saturday night. Before the dance, Monroe was on the air for the Camel Caravan broadcast.

Vaughn Monroe and the Moonmaids sing an old favorite at the concert on the afternoon before the big formal dance. The afternoon program of novelty songs was a wonderful supplement to the danceable music played that night at the dance.

Beneke rose rapidly as a member of Glenn Miller's orchestra, taking it over when Miller went into the armed services in 1940. He assumed permanent leadership of the band when Miller was killed.

Trained as a concert singer, Vaughn Monroe turned reluctantly to handleading in 1940, but since 1942 he has risen to become Victor's top recording artist.

The Shoe and Slipper weekend has become the high spot of the Duke social calendar. The capable leadership of Bob Renfrow was responsible for much of its success.

Founded in 1933 by Mrs. J. Foster Barnes and Miss Evelyn Barnes, the Music Study Club recognizes the musical ability of the women students of Duke University. Once a semester girls with a musical background and an active interest in music are considered for membership in the society. In the bi-weekly meetings students are presented before an audience in order to give them the practical experience that they need. Not only talented students are presented, but members of the faculty and townspeople as well. Each year the Music Study Club sponsors one of the Concert Series attractions, which has included Richard Crooks, Ezio Pinza, Helen Jepson, and Arthur Rubinstein. This year Giuseppe Di Stephano was sponsored with a reception for him after the concert.

Before each concert the music to be presented is analyzed by some member of the society for the group. Every work is discussed as to its form and style and in this way made familiar to the group.

The programs put on by the club are quite varied, including opera, piano works, voice numbers, chamber music, orchestral works, and miscellaneous types of music. The club presents in a recital each year the most proficient girl in music. In addition, the Music Study Club sponsors the other musical organizations on campus.

The officers are Judy Falin, President; Florence Schuler, Vice-president; Kitty Arendell, Corresponding Secretary; Ann House, Recording Secretary; Rita McKerley, Treasurer. Adviser, Miss Barnes.

The elected officers of the Music Study Club, an East campus organization which sponsors occasional student and faculty concerts, are Ruth Nance, Rita McKerley, Ann House, Joann Falin, and Florence Schuler.

Men's Glee Club

The sensitive direction of J. FOSTER BARNES welds the many fine voices of the Men's Glee Club into a beautiful blend of harmony and cadence.

One of the most outstanding organizations on the Duke Campus is the Men's Glee Club. Because this group finds an eager audience at every appearance, its fame has spread over the entire nation. It might be said that the group has a three-fold purpose: instruction for its members, fellowship, and entertainment for the entire East. There is a very congenial group in the club; the boys all look forward to rehearsals, which are as much fun as they are work. The Glee Club takes extensive tours throughout Florida and the North each spring; and last spring the group recorded an album which is truly a collectors item. Under the able leadership of J. Foster Barnes, the Glee Club has proven a great asset to the boys in it, to the university, and to the nation.

The climax of the year's programs presented at the Sunday night sings in the Women's Auditorium is the joint concert given by the Men's and the Women's Glee Clubs. This night the hall is packed with students coming to hear the Triple Trio present its only program for the entire student body during the year.

Having led the Glee Club for the past quarter century, each fall Mrs. J. Foster Barnes auditions almost half the freshman class, who hope to be admitted to this organization for those girls who enjoy music. The members of the Chapel Choir are selected only from this group, which has the largest membership of any club on East Campus.

A traditional Valentine's dance supplements the Tuesday nights spent in practicing in East Duke.

MRS. J. FOSTER BARNES is Director of the Glee Club. Membership is a prerequisite for the Choir.

Every Sunday under the direction of "Bishop" Barnes the Duke University Chapel Choir leads the singing of the congregation and sings special arrangements with solos. The two hundred plus choir members feel right at home in the ornately simple choir loft at the front of the massive chapel, spending Wednesday night rehearsing and Sunday morning singing.

Voices as beautiful as the Chapel in which they sing.

From the modest beginning of a double quartet of male voices, Duke's famous Chapel Choir has grown until it now numbers over two hundred mixed voices. J. Foster Barnes organized the choir in 1932, and has continued to direct it successfully through the years. Affectionately known as "Bishop" by the choir and Glee Club members, he has been responsible for the increasing proficiency of the group. Also instrumental in the success has been the work of his wife with the Women's Glee Club.

Selection of the members is limited to the best singers of the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs.

Although they practice only on Wednesday nights, they are consistently recognized as one of the finest university choirs in America.

The choir gave special programs at Christmas and Easter. People from all parts of North Carolina and nearby states came to the Christmas program which was Handel's famed Messiah. Ten solos and eleven choruses made up the one and one-half hour oratoria. Over two thousand people heard the music in the Chapel and in Page Auditorium where it was carried over loudspeakers. Included in the Easter performances have been Brahms' Requiem and Gounod's Redemption.

Mrs. Mildred Hendricks accompanies the choir by playing the Chapel organ. She appears in organ concerts throughout Carolina and the country. On Sunday afternoon either she or a nationally famous organist gives a concert.

The power, the artistry, the aesthetic skill of the choir can not be attributed to the excellence of any few members, but rather to the harmony achieved by all singers.

MILDRED HENDRIX, chapel organist, gives Wednesday afternoon recitals in addition to accompanying the choir on Sunday morning.

s the 1950 gridiron season drew to a close, the sixty members of the Duke University Marching Band turned in their natty blue uniforms, some exchanging them for those of the Concert Band, others for more hours of study-time.

Turning time backward, they remembered the rollicking out-of-town band trips, the annual Band Day ceremony during the Wake Forest game when the stadium rocked to the playing of sixteen high school bands, the fests and feasts in the rough 'n' ready atmosphere of their D.U.A.A. sponsored cabin party.

Donning their blue sweaters with the white "D's" on them, the boys look forward to next year's trips to Pittsburgh, Washington, and Atlanta, together with various other musical events they will engage in.

The Marching Band has worked hard, practiced in rain and shine, and entertained to the fullest measure. Theirs is the spirit of humble service, receiving in return neither school credit nor scholarships, only a word of grateful "thanks" and appreciation from all the students.

Symphony's beginning. During the four years that Professor Bone has directed the orchestra, there has been a noticeable increase in the proficiency of the group's work.

This past year was an ambitious, varied, but extremely satisfying one. Three concerts highlighted the work of the organization. On February 23rd they gave a concert which included the works of the following composers: Handel, Mozart, Dvorak, and Delius. Dr. William DeTurk was featured as soloist on the French Horn in Mozart's Concerto No. 2. The symphony made an appearance with the Durham Civic Choral Society at which they rendered another of Mozart's famous works, Requiem Mass. For the final symphony concert of the year, two compositions of Beethoven, and one each of Samuel Barber and Benjamin Britten were played. Professor Loren Withers performed as soloist in Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 4. On Good Friday evening a select group from the Symphony Orchestra gave a performance of "The Seven Words of Christ on the Cross" by Joseph Haydn.

Although no credit is received for participation in the Duke Symphony, key awards are made on the basis of service and value to the organization. Those students who perform in the orchestra have always shown healthy interest in their work and exceptional ability, but there is a definite need for more student talent in the group. Out of the total membership of sixty-two, only thirty-six of these are Duke students.

Concert Band

Versatility and musicianship make it a growing group.

In the short span of its fifteen year history the Duke Concert Band has come to be recognized as an outstanding musical organization on campus. This year the Concert Band continued to maintain its musically active program. The on-campus Annual Formal Concert in March was well received by an attentive audience because of its high quality. Among its other activities the band was heard in its Spring Lawn Concert series by listeners in near-by communities as well as giving a reading performance for the high school contest group meeting.

In retrospect, the Concert Band's advancement can easily be seen. Organized separately from the marching band in 1936 by Robert B. Fearing, it grew from some forty members to a select group of seventy.

Allen H. Bone became its conductor in 1944 and has been instrumental in the band's recent success. This year under the direction of Robert E. Gray the band has maintained its theme of emphasis—the presentation of the finest in concert band literature played by a trained group of first-rate musicians.

The Concert Band has played such works as The Vanished Army March, Moussorgsky The Great Gate of Kiev, and many other numbers, including several novelty compositions.

Future plans of the concert band will be of interest to every student instrumentalist on campus. Auditions are held at the start of each semester, although talented musicians are invited to join at any time during the year. Keys are awarded in recognition of two years' active service, but their greatest reward comes from the knowledge of a job that is well done.

Now that the "growing pains" of the Concert Band are over, there have been increasing signs of their moving into high gear and reaching full maturity. They have carried out a full program of activities,

Duke University Church

A mighty fortress is our church, harboring all the creeds and all the faiths.

Our freshman year, our first day at college, expectations of college life and study amid such an atmosphere of serenity as the Duke Chapel fill our minds.

On Sunday morning we attended our first service in the Duke Church. Overwhelmed by the imposing number of students and faculty worshipping there, we later approached Dr. Phillips, the University's Director of Religious Activities; and, for perhaps an hour, we queried him on such matters as the functions of the Church, how it promoted such wide student interest, and its ultimate aims.

In his reply the fact was particularly stressed that the Duke University Church is interdenominational and that through the Student Religious Council interdenominational and interfaith programs of student religious organizations are coordinated. Carefully planned interfaith programs are provided whereby students of all faiths might unite to form a common bond of spiritual brotherhood.

A few such interdenominational and interfaith programs are: Religious Emphasis Week, York Chapel Bible Classes, interdenominational meetings, and the University Service of Worship conducted in the Church each Sunday morning by both University and guest preachers.

The Protestant denominational groups on campus are a means of continuing and strengthening individual church ties through worship, study, service, and recreation. Each year approximately 1,200 students participate in denominational programs through such activities as supper clubs, council meetings, fellowship teams, dramatic groups, choral groups, panel discussions on problems, and attendance at local

As the discussion progressed, we became extremely interested in this interdenominational church. We asked how one might serve the Church directly. We found that the majority of students served either in some official capacity, or by singing in the choir, ushering, collecting the offering, assisting in communion services, and giving their time to the Edgemont Community Center, a Church operated and supported social service project for the betterment of underprivileged children.

As we brought our conversation to a conclusion, we knew that here at Duke we might derive renewed spiritual inspiration, moral strength, and religious understanding that, combined with education, would serve to make of us useful citizens in any community of our country.

Each Wednesday night the young Presbyterians on Duke campus gather in the upstairs dining room of the East Campus Union for the Westminster Fellowship Supper Club. They have a friendly meal together, and after supper there is a short discussion under the direction of one of the students on subjects varying from soup to nuts.

Naval R.O.T.C.

With recurrent war clouds abroad casting ominous shadows from Eastern Asia to West Campus, 1950 fall N.R.O.T.C. activities at Duke began to assume far greater significance and purpose than at any time since the end of World War II. The situation has become of particular importance to the members of the Class of '51, who comprise the first group to be graduated under the Holloway Plan. Especially concerned were the Regular members of the class, for upon graduation they will assume the duties of junior officers with the Fleet. For this reason, these and the remainder of the participating Midshipmen will recall the cruise of 1950 even more vividly.

A listing of the ports visited last summer by the Sophomores and Seniors includes New York, Providence, Boston, and southward, Kingston, Jamaica, Cristobal, C. Z., and Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. Of these, by far the most popular was picturesque and romantic Guantanamo, lovingly nicknamed "Gitmo." Here in the leisurely and relaxing fashion characteristic of Caribbean resort ports. Midshipmen indulged in the ancient custom of passing the daylight hours lolling on sandy beaches, sipping ice-cold "Hatuey," and with the cool of evening, relaxing some more on cane-bottomed chairs on a moonlit veranda—sipping ice-cold "Hatuey."

The Juniors who remained ashore last summer for Aviation-Amphibious training found things well to their liking both at Pensacola and later at Little Creek.

In Pensacola, Florida, Cody's "Root boys" could be found nightly brightening the atmosphere of the Town Pump and demonstrating their dubious affection for their brothers-in-arms of the other services by singing "On, Brave Old Army Team" and the "Marine Hymn." At Little Creek, Virginia, night life was subordinated to continuous and exacting daytime instruction periods, the highlight of which were the guided tours of Chesapeake Bay, with particular attention being directed to that area just seaward of the Amphibious base.

After two years on the Duke campus, the Air ROTC has almost achieved full strength. Its ranks are constantly being swelled by students from all four classes. Here the entire unit, comprising one air group, stands at attention during a parade in the stadium.

Since the close of World War II, the United States Air Force has engaged in a re-appraisal of the Reserve Officers Training Corps program to check current methods against the requirements of postwar training. The outcome of this study has been a progressive readjustment of the curriculum which has enabled the Air Science Department to accomplish more successfully its mission of providing better airmen within the structure of our national defense.

The essential point of the Air Force ROTC system of education is that it prescribes four years of education at the undergraduate level, with emphasis upon the development of character during the formative period of a cadet's association with the program. It insists upon basic military training and requires physical training as an essential adjunct to the mental and moral qualities for the development of which the curriculum is designed.

In order to give AROTC students some practical aircraft instruction during drill period, the Air Force flew in one of their training planes, landing it on Freshman Field.

A summer camp of six weeks duration is provided for students who have completed the first three years of instruction.

Since the Air Force ROTC has been at Duke only two years, it has been able to benefit from the research and the pioneer work of their predecessors. After just one year of operation, the enrollment jumped from sixty-six to about 430.

Periodical brainstorms and busybodies.

In the basement of a back wing of the Union Building there lurks a fantastic region called Pub Row. Along a dismal hallway are situated the offices of the various publications which have their individual characteristics and peculiarities, as do the publications themselves.

There is the dark-room of the photographers from which shadowy, shuffling figures emerge carrying dripping, freshly developed photographs.

The CHANTICLEER office is the northerly most one on the "row." Here one may glimpse the grim faces of the select few who record the day-to-day history of the student body.

Moving southward, we come to the office of the venerable Archive, the oldest publication at our university. Enjoying a sanctum removed from the general hubbub of Pub Row, the literary magazine is accused of having more room with less to do with it than any other publication.

The next office down the "row" is that of the Duke 'n' Duchess from whose interior one may listen to the whole gamut of laughter from happy gurgles to loud yaks. The humor magazine is perfectly suited to its quarters, for while one is multi-colored, the other is off-colored.

The weekly Chronicle occupies the last office on the "row." Every Wednesday night before the issue is sent to press, it is filled with the bustling activity and tension which comes naturally to the fourth estate.

Chanticleer

Amazing as it may seem to the editors of the CHANTICLEER, there are few students who realize that this edition of the yearbook was more than idly thought about long before they saw the All-American-rated 1950 issue. Ideas and rough sketches in the spring became concrete layouts in the summer, and a complete page-by-page plan by the time the staff had returned from vacation.

During the fall semester, material was assembled and put in finished form. At the same time, the business staff was balancing accounts and collecting money. The deadline scramble ended with the wonderful feeling of getting the damned thing out of the way.

Another CHANTICLEER, number thirty-nine, has now been published, number forty is already in the minds of some few, and so the endless cycle begins once again.

Bottom: Although the crowded working conditions seem to foster a more united staff, the editors and their helpers manage to look engrossed in their work for the cameraman while he snaps their picture.

The business staff finds itself confronted with a variety of details to work out. Jan inquires into new methods of balancing the books, while it takes two heads to figure out how many students ordered a CHANTICLEER. Peggy hides behind a hand-manipulated typewriter as she busily cuts out paper dolls with a deeply engrossed friend.

On Wednesday afternoons, the Chronicle editors, reporters, and kibitzers gather to get ready for "bed." The photographer arrived at an hour when everyone is in a good mood. But by the time the paper is finally "put to bed" during the wee hours of Thursday morning, smiles and neatly-combed heads vanish amid tremendous piles of copy paper. Then they go home to sleep 'til next week.

Nick gives Denny a few suggestions on getting out a newspaper with emphasis on layouts, while Mary Lib and Phil amuse themselves with a Harbrace Handbook.

Lee Baldwin, Editor of the Chronicle, doesn't seem to need the inevitable horn-rims to see the seemingly grim truth which Business Manager Stride is pointing out.

Chronicle

An interesting change made by the Duke Chronicle this year involved conversion from a six page paper to a twelve page, five column edition. Standing firm in their policy of presenting many different views on campus matters, Chronicle columnists evoked a large share of criticism and praise from the student body. Sports coverage was extended, and interesting features completed the foundation of a good all-round newspaper. A new feature entitled "My Greatest Day in Sports," received praise from alumni.

Lee Baldwin served admirably as editor during the year, while Dick Stride managed the paper's business department. Chronicle editors laid down stringent rules to increase the accuracy and completeness in presentation of the Duke story. Chronicle advertising salesmen were also instructed to spend more time with layout and wording of ads, and an increasing amount of illustrated advertising resulted.

The camera caught Dick Stride and his staff in a cheerful mood. They were then well on their way to fulfilling the business manager's objective: to print the Chronicle with nothing but ads.

Lee Baldwin, hard-working and omnipresent editor of the Chronicle, takes over the Thursday afternoon shift at the linotypist's office—certain assurance that the Chronicle will appear on time Friday eve.

Business Manager A. J. Brock voices approval of the latest Archive cover which Editor Sally Byrne handles with care.

Archive Editor, Sally Byrne, and a hard-working editorial staff congratulate themselves on the successful completion of their fall issue. At left sits Yerger Clifton, who drew the Paris scene on the cover of the initial edition.

There has been an old saying that almost no one reads the Archive. But due to the policies of Editor Sally Byrne, this adage is no longer true. She set out in the spring of last year to make the Archive popular with the students and at the same time maintain the high standards which have been handed down from the old Trinity College Archive, the first college literary magazine to be founded in the South.

One of the main efforts has been to make the periodical more attractive on the outside so that the average student will be inclined to explore its contents. Through the talents of Yerger Clifton, this goal has been achieved by the use of bright, four-color drawings on the covers. The Paris and Christmas covers are the best examples of the success of this aim.

From the entries to a short story contest sponsored by the publication, the Archive's editors have been able to glean some of the best material written on the Duke campus. Thus this contest has not only produced incentive for the writers, but also interest on the part of the students. The most regular contributors to the magazine have been Clarence Folkemer, Jerry Lanning, Terry Landrum, Jane Andrews, and Colbert Smith. The illustrations of Cliff Clifton and Bill Wetmore and a column on the latest Broadway plays by Art Steuer have greatly enhanced the reader appeal.

Through the efforts of a capable and energetic business staff, headed by A. J. Brock, the Archive was able to publish the first fifty-page issue in its long and varied career.

Jim Young makes fuel to sacrifice at the altar of the Intellectual Muse, as the rest of the Archive staff await the inevitable odor.

Denny Marks, Jerry Lanning, Yerger Clifton, and Bob Shackelford are trying to decide on drawings for the D 'n' D. Denny thinks maybe he can get some ideas from Look magazine, but the D 'n' D's staff doesn't need to copy ideas—they have their own!

With Walt Wadlington guiding the writing talents of Bob Jordan, Terry Landrum, Denny Marks, and others on the staff, the Duke 'n' Duchess was published three times this year. As usual, every time the humor magazine appeared, the student body stopped long enough to have its funny bone tickled, for at Duke, everyone reads the Duke 'n' Duchess. Even the ads, handled by Bob Shackelford and staff, were right in line.

Business Manager, Bob Shackelford, hails from High Point.

The Special Chart is edited for and by the nurses of Duke University. The over-all aim of the magazine is to publish articles of interest which will bind the nurses into a single unit through the exchange of ideas and information.

This year the publication featured alumnae news as well as reports on the hospitals and sketches on the faculty. A special section on national and world affairs is included in the bi-monthly magazine.

The editor, Joan Kelbert, was elected by the student body and works closely with the N.S.G.A. Barbara Fish served as business manager, and Mrs. Helen Brock was adviser to the nurse-editors.

Despite a rigorous schedule with hours of duty, the nurses gladly volunteer their time to preparing the Special Chart.

Jo Ann Kelbert, Editor, is also a member of the Nurses Student Council.

The dazzling DukEngineer brings a beaming smile from Editor Bill Wilmer.

The DukEngineer is published by the Duke engineering students. Included in it are semi-technical articles on civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering problems. It has been recognized as the best student edited and managed semi-technical publication in the state.

The little cogs of the big DukEngineer wheel work laboriously with Editor Wilmer shifting gears and studying blueprints.

Fraternities

Preface to the Present

Shortly before Duke University came into existence, the fraternities of Trinity College moved off campus in order to make more dormitory space.

A residential block behind Hanes Field was purchased by the school, and several Greek-letter groups moved in. Despite vigorous complaints from the neighbors about wild parties, the system worked rather well until the disastrous Sigma Chi fire in the spring of 1925.

During a formal meeting of the twenty brothers, a fire broke out on the second floor due to a defective flue. From the entire house, they were only able to save two kegs of dynamite, which otherwise might have leveled the surrounding area. All fraternities were quickly brought back on campus, most of them glad to be relieved of their housekeeping responsibilities.

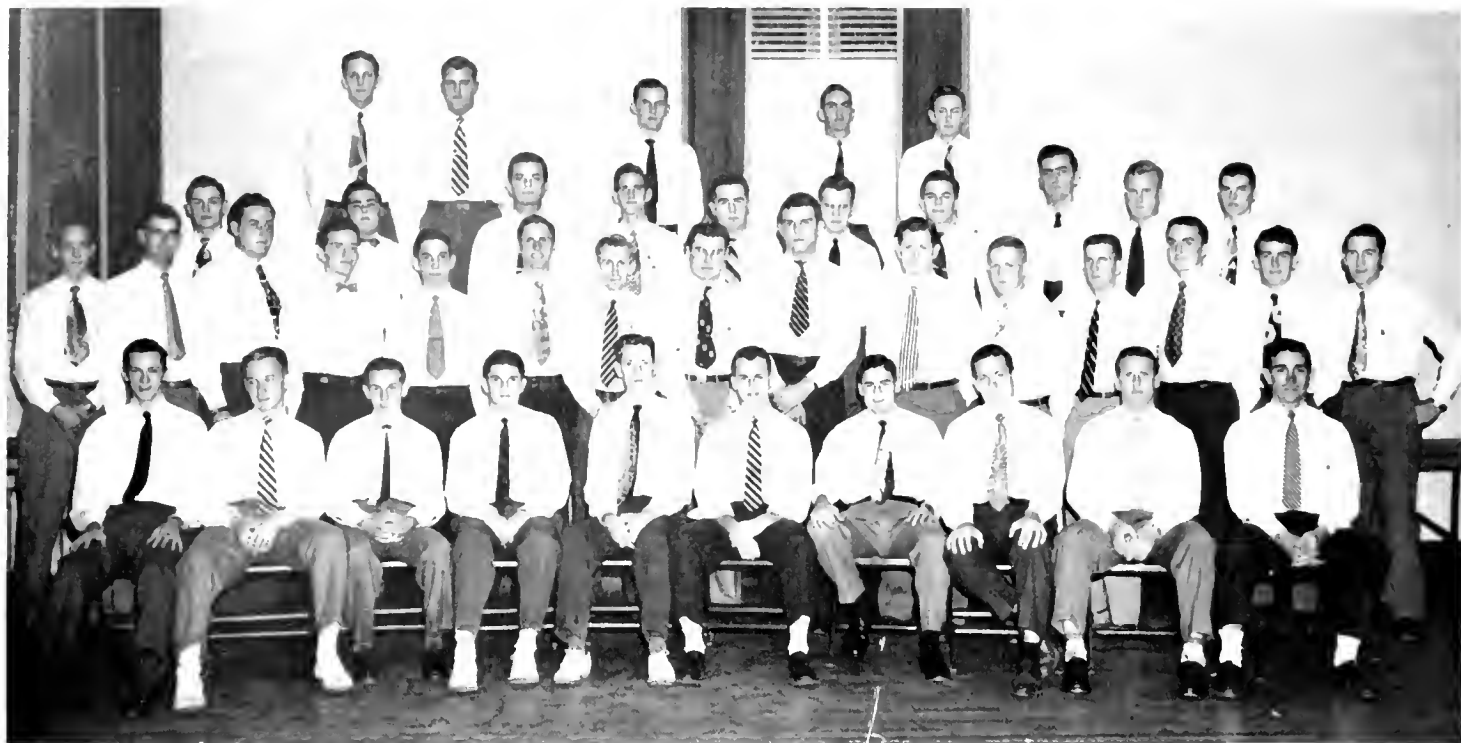

Fraternities

When the Sigma Chi House burned, Duke fraternities returned to the campus with near explosive rapidity.

What makes a fraternity meeting it the parliamentary procedure mixed with cigarette smoke? Maybe it's a babel of voices so incongruous with the unity of spirit. Maybe it's the span of ideas—some wise and generous, others petty and foolish. But whatever it is, the many friends will never be forgotten.

Inter-Fraternity Council

A spirit of mutual benefit and cooperation is firmly fostered by I.F.C.

"atch dogs on West" could be one of the names applied to the Inter-Fraternity Council. This nickname stems from the fact that one of I.F.C.'s chief functions is the regulation and maintenance of rushing rules for fraternities here at Duke.

The purpose of I.F.C. is to secure harmony, cooperation, and unity among the various fraternities for their mutual benefit and to bring the utmost co-operation between the fraternities and the school administration for the betterment of the University as a whole.

As a sounding board for the various fraternities, I.F.C. has as its prime objective uniting them into a combined voice which is a governing body for all. The Inter-Fraternity Council sponsors many campus activities. As a means of promoting better scholarship a trophy is presented each year to the fraternity with the highest average. To establish better acquaintance with members of the faculty, each fraternity invites members of the faculty to I.F.C. sponsored teas. Each year the organization presents a trophy to the fraternity with the best Homecoming display. I.F.C. is a large contributor to Edgemont Community Center and together with fraternities organizes Christmas parties for young boys from this Center.

Through their representatives, the president and an elected junior from each, the fraternities themselves are actually members and participants of the council.

JACK BLACKBURN, President of the Council, has helped to make it a more important organization on campus.

led by President V. A. Hay, Pan-Hel not only has done an excellent job in carrying out its official business but has spark-plugged many of this year's campus activities. Shortly before Christmas the Pan-Hel Workshop, which welcomed Mrs. Wiles Converse as guest speaker, discussed plans for next year's rushing. This was followed by a reception in the Kappa room for sorority presidents, members of Pan-Hel Council, and administration officials. The annual Pan-Hel Dance started second semester with a bang. All coeds and their dates were on hand to see the crowning of East's "Man of the Year." The Pan-Hel Sing followed in the spring. Through the year the Council continued the work at Edgemont and other community centers with active participation from all sororities.

Two representatives from each sorority on campus are elected to serve as members on the Council. Its goals are to maintain on a high plane fraternity life and inter-fraternity relations within our college, to cooperate with the administration in upholding high social standards, to be a forum for discussion in the fraternity guidance, and to compile rules governing rushing, pledging, and initiation on this campus. Although Pan-Hel never expects to devise a "perfect" rushing system, the improvements made this year concerning open houses provide an excellent basis upon which to build better future rush seasons for freshman and upperclass women.

V. A. HAY, President, led the Pan-Hel Council through an unusually active year. A senior from Miami, she is majoring in Spanish.

Alpha Tau Omega

Famed for their East Campus serenades, the ATO's instituted formal attire for their new pin-ups.

BILL WILMER, President, is a member of Red Friars and editor of DukEngineer.

The year was 1950. ATO was 85 years old. It was prosperous and contented. It had developed a personality, a sense of humor, and other equivalent attributes. It was not above reproach nor above mild pride. It was young and it was old, wise and frivolous.

But any casual observer could see that. Let's look inside and see what made it tick.

By the end of the first month of school, there were ten "pin-ups" in the fraternity—this was unheard of! The intellectuals consulted Freud while the realists wanted to examine the drinking water. Everyone wondered what would happen come spring. Interspersed with the regular varsity football games were the ATO intramurals. Of course there were the traditional social functions, a Homecoming Dance and a Christmas party for the underprivileged children. But something new was added with a Dad's weekend.

On the anti-social calendar, there was a visit by the "Shadow," sleepless nights waiting for our neighbors to run out of firecrackers, and plans for a project as grandiose and successful as the lion hunt. Throw in a few card games, a television set, and the towel.

That was "Higher Education," 1950 style. We moaned because the year passed so slowly, and suddenly we wondered where it had gone. One day, late in May, twenty-seven seniors made their various long and short farewells. Of course, others came in their place; but no one expected to forget men like Blair, Blaylock, Enander, Kenaston, Landis, Maxwell, Shackelford, Slane, Spann, Wilmer, Woodfield, Price, Wolmering, Womble, Clausen, Ferrell, Hill, Briggs, Armstrong, Britt, Carlross, Conner, Holyfield, Harvey, Jordan, Keye, and Williams.

That year was no different than many past years. Yet it had been different. The same might be said for the future. Therefore, however trite, it seemed only fitting to end the year simply with "So Long Boys!"

The Alpha Tau Omega's decided to contribute to the annual Dad's Day celebration held on the Duke Campus by the Y.M.C.A. and let the fathers know about the vital part the fraternity plays in the life of their sons while he is away in school. Pete Armstrong, President, delivers an after-dinner address at the banquet held in the fathers' honor on the Saturday night of the big weekend.

Beta Theta Pi

House "H" almost trembles when Betas get together for some lusty singing.

This was the year that the draft began again, and that dreaded word I-A struck terror to all hearts. The threat of war and the proximity to graduation caused an eastern migration for one last fling. The advent of television in the Beta House sounded the death knell for scholastic averages, and redecoration caused the year's biggest headache. This was the year that the Rathskeller closed, but business went on as usual in Denton's room with Schwarz donating the room decorations. Dunne made several big "moves" (the Shadow knows). "Big Deal" was up to his old tricks at the football games, and Bill Anderson became Beta's "All-American boy." Dimona, Hugus, and Donovan remained high in the Saddle (Club) when not in their "suites" at the Wash-Duke, and Bisselle's "little black book" looked like an unabridged dictionary. "Old Grandad" Stokes continued to age as rushing brought gray hairs. "Prexy" Cook kept the radio station out front by a nose. It was "high life" under the umbrella for Mac and Sally, while Thigpen and Colvin continued to find three dollar bills in the graduate dorms. McNamara's pin was still in circulation, as Otis practiced command voice on the pledges, and "Admirals" Hayes and Bingman thumbed noses at the Appointments Office. East swooned as Piephoff crooned, and Dick S. pinned Katie. "Coach" White-scarver led the way as Beta won the wrestling trophy. "Gaylord" Watkins was still in the chips when Archambault left to wet-nurse the frosh. A nice girl and a new car were important factors in Hahn's life. "Kiss Me, Clewell" Howell was enlightened by a beach fire, and the "Right Honorable Supreme Potentate," "Quince" Jones acted like the devil at football games. Bob Gorham compiled the Alumni lists and got a kick out of soccer, as "Haircut" Hollowell was harried by Homecoming. "Mother—I wanna be loved" Gehweiler still waited for a call from East as "Bobo" settled down. "Foghorn" Allison took a backseat to socialize as Vaughan conserved gasoline. Zavertnik scored only on the soccer field, and we'd have given a pretty "peimy" for the thoughts of Wilder and White. "Tappy-Poo" gave a "weally" big "wock" to Sally. Senator Ranking banged out "Five-Foot-Two" until his fingers were bloody, and everyone agreed that the mid-century had produced another great year in Beta Theta Pi's history.

Top: Otis and Jane have a good laugh over some private joke, while others take a more serious view of the matter. Bottom: A game of Hearts wins out over Canasta and Bridge, but the fad doesn't seem to have spread further than the Beta section.

The first rushing open house of the year has turned into a heated discussion of world affairs, and the small fellow is outnumbered by a percentage of three to one. This group is viewed over several of the many athletic trophies the Betas have to their credit.

Chi Phi

The oldest Greek-letter fraternity ends its third year of local re-establishment.

In 1918 Chi Phi was reactivated on Duke campus when Jack Blackburn and Ben Wiles were initiated by our parent chapter at the University of North Carolina. Soon afterward more members were initiated, and Chi Phi began taking an active part in campus activities.

Since then the members have become expert interior decorators, under the able direction of "Wheel" Blackburn, with their work on chairs, sofas, and walls. In addition to being an expert upholsterer, Blackburn is in numerous organizations, which include Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, Red Friars, and the American Patriots' Association for the care and advancement of under-privileged grasshoppers.

"Lazy" Ben Wiles is now torn between two main loves. He can't decide whether to enlist in the Marine Corps or marry Jeanne. "Lazy" spends most of the four hours a day when he isn't sleeping thinking about the problem. A little "greeting" from Harry to match his 1-A card is expected to solve his problem for him.

"Dirty Dave" Nylan, knowing that soon all of the brothers may receive these same little greetings, is hard at work with his cloak and dagger trying to get all the brothers to pay their dues far in advance. "Gook"

DARYL MASTELLER is a senior from Asheboro. Besides leading the Chi Phi's in 1950, he is a member of the Duke Concert Band.

Van Skike has adapted a new major. He has persuaded the administration to add courses in movie criticism. That's the reason he gives for seeing every one within a twenty mile radius. Peggy might not like it, but it's understood that Daryl "The Sheik" Mastellar's only reason for majoring in education is because he found out that all education majors must spend part of their senior year teaching at Durham High. Daryl tells us that there are some cute little chicks down at the high school and that Peg won't mind since it's all in the line of duty. "Brain" Farmer is still moaning after each quiz that it was the worst he's ever taken, and he's sure he flunked it. With that attitude it usually means another "A" for him. "Pudge" Mauney is still having his own private battle of the bulge, but it looks like a losing fight. Larry "General Grant" Murphey is having a hard time trying to defend the North down here with all the Rebels, but it's all right as long as his red convertible still runs. "Black-Sheep" Hunter has returned to the fold again after a short visit to the Yellow-Jacket nest. He says they just don't have enough of the Devil (Blue, that is) in them at Tech. "Philosopher" Butler has just decided that everything is just silly illusions and that nothing really exists. Under that theory "F's" don't exist either so why should he worry about them. "Bum-'em-by-the-Barrel" Fisher is still smoking as much as ever, but he never buys any "cigs." He claims that he's trying to help all his friends break the nicotine habit by smoking all of theirs. "Little Joe" Allegood is still slaving away in the chemistry lab, but he's never gotten over using sodium hydroxide for a mouth wash one afternoon during an experiment. Bornheim and Heiney have given up poker now and are trying to learn bridge. They figure it's a less expensive pastime.

After another good year with some work and plenty of good times, it seems that Chi Phi is at Duke to stay.

Although a small fraternity, the Chi Phi's have a unity and harmony of feeling not realized in many other organizations. The brothers often gather sociably in the chapter room for a game of cards, to read the latest magazines or to talk over the day's events.

The Delta Sigma Phi's entertain freshmen with an open house during the mid-winter rushing season. This round of parties often becomes a strain on both the brothers and the freshmen as is indicated by constant chain smoking and pained, tired expressions.

Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity was founded as a national Greek letter organization on December 10, 1899, at City College of New York. Since that date an ever-increasing number of chapters have celebrated December the tenth as Founder's Day. With the total standing at eighty-four chapters today, it appears that Delta Sigma Phi is well on its way toward its goal of a hundred and two chapters by '52. Duke's contribution to the expression program of the national fraternity was made in 1920, when the Stag Club of Trinity College received its charter as Alpha Epsilon Chapter of Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity.

During the past thirty-one years, Alpha Epsilon has had scholastic, athletic, and school honors bestowed upon it abundantly, and in return, it has had the honor of contributing to the world's scene economically, spiritually, socially, and politically through the works of its alumni brothers. Alpha Epsilon is proud to claim George V. Allen, Ambassador to Yugoslavia, and Charles S. Murphy, Special Council to President Truman, as alumni. But the Alpha Epsilon of 1950-51 is not resting on its past laurels. Out of the close brotherhood that has prevailed has arisen cooperation, understanding, and leadership, which has enabled the chapter to accomplish many of its goals during the last two years.

During this period of reconstruction it has won many honors and recognitions, among them the Basketball Championship of our league in 1950, second place in softball, first prize winners in the Phillip Morris Contest with an Admiral Radio Console as the reward, and runner-up in the Fraternity Scholarship Improvement Contest.

As to social events, the brothers of Alpha Epsilon enjoy their Founder's Day Banquet and Dance in the fall and their Sailor's Ball in the spring. These are annual events, with the Founder's Day Banquet and Dance being formal and the Sailor's Ball an informal masquerade. Other gala occasions are marriage ceremonies of different members of the fraternity. Though unscheduled from year to year, they appear to be annual events and are awaited by all, including the groom. Last year Brothers Doug Holland and Elwood Rose tied the knot, both marrying nurses. The summer saw the marriage of two more brothers, Charlie Boone and Bob Nichol. Other brothers whose marriages are to be soon—within the year—are Henry Sublett, Burt Moore, and Pat Coleman. Brother Darrell Holland is also on the list of "near-goners."

Leadership this year has been top-flight. Brother Harry Spillman has led the chapter as president to a highly successful year, ably supported by the Vice-President, Brother Henry Sublett, who was also a leader in entertainment and fellowship for the chapter. Thinking also of the future, Alpha Epsilon has been training its sophomore members by giving them jobs which require leadership ability and responsibility. Brothers Peck, Rowe, Turner, White, Streeter, Bass, and Crawford are all potential leaders. Brother John Turner attended the District Leadership Conference in Atlanta, Georgia. To these and others fall the responsibility of carrying aloft the high standard which has been the emblem of Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity in years past.

Delta Tau Delta

BOB SILKETT, president, is a senior from Maryland and sits on Judicial Board.

Duke Delts make known their presence at midnight with their raucous Hoopla war cry.

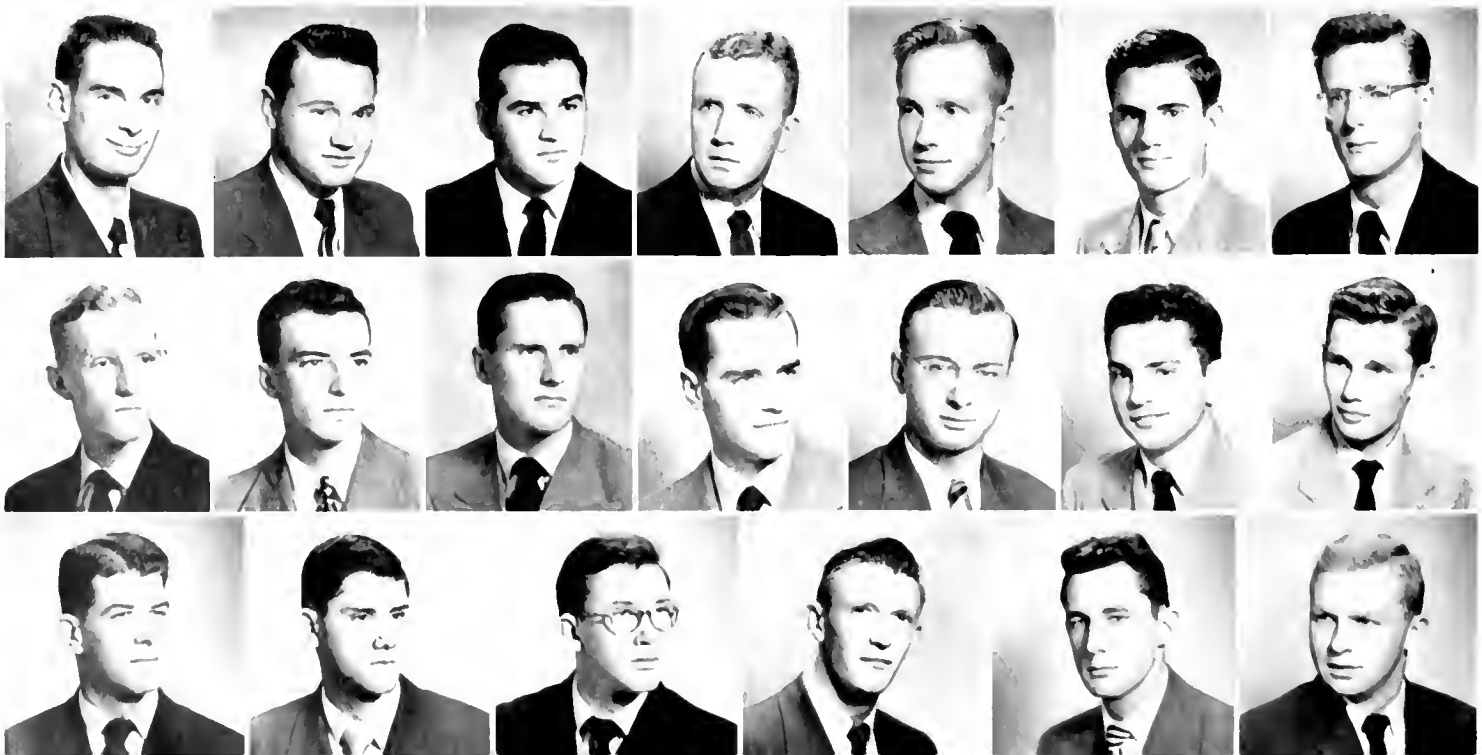

From its modest beginnings at Bethany College, Virginia, in 1859, to its present distinct position among that group of organizations which pioneered the way for the army of present-day fraternities, Delta Tau Delta has been known and admired for the strong bond of fellowship existing between its members. This united spirit was evident among the eight founders and has been kept alive by Delts to the present day, despite the fact that each member is a unique personality.

At Duke, too, that wonderful spirit of co-operation and "oneness" is evident—sometimes annoyingly evident—when the brothers join hand in hand to chant the traditional Hoopla war cry. Yet no other Delt chapter out of the present eighty-two can lay claim to as many distinct personalities in its membership as the Duke group. This is our paradox. Our order springs from disorder.

Let only the man with a stomach for adventure and a thirst for the unusual follow me now as I lead the way through the Gothic entrance to the Delt Cave. Only by this direct method can we solve the mystery of each man traveling in a different direction on a common pathway.

As our eyes become adapted to the light of burning Pi Kapps and our ears stop rebelling at the sound of rushees being persuaded, our attention is yanked to the nearest corner by an outrageous blob of exotic colors speaking now in the voice of James Mason, now as Walter Brennan, again as Pete Smith. to our hearts, we approach it cautiously only to find that the light is a reflection of the toothy smile of the efficient president of the chapter, Bob Silkett. After a brief soft-shoe, he disappears to the darkness of a corner to explain his philosophy and assumptions of fact to the base-board. Just as the "Honored One" withdraws, a strange cry of "Hallelujah Nataam" spoken in a ghastly accent shrieks out at us from the far corner. Dragging our shaken forms in the direction of this newest puzzle, we find Bud McAnerney and Bob Thomas speaking in "lower slobovian" and toasting New York with raised beer mugs. Then the haunting, beautiful tones of "The Good Ship Venus" tantalize our sensibilities as "Hose Nose" Rogers coaxes his ukelele. Now we are rudely awakened from our reverie by a stream of sarcasm directed at anyone and everyone by that fabulously sophisticated New York millionaire, Mark Biddison, who is being "perfectly squelched" by that master of the art, "Yap Yap" Nidermaier. Behind us, one of our numerous NROTC members, Jack Underwood, is planning a destroyer with even more firing power than he has ever conceived. In front of us Brothers Shipley, Farinella, Viau, and Reardin are casually handing their shirts to each other in a friendly game of cut-throat.

All around us individuals are screaming, laughing, talking. Where is this unity, this common bond of brotherhood and esteem?—but wait—listen—it is faint but growing louder—yes, there it is—they're singing—look—they're all singing with tears in their eyes—listen "Hoopla! Hoopla! Heap Big Chapter, Delta Tau Delta!"

The brothers make use of both arms and anecdotes in order to warm up their dates at an open-house following a chilly game.

The seniors face the realization that this is their last year—but who could have wished for a better one?

They think over that year and begin to chuckle to themselves. It was a full year—not only of studies and doubts about that "C" average, but of KA parties, bull sessions, and spirit.

Personal headlines in the KA news for the year would read like this: Bly loses title to Ernest as O.C.S. persuades him to take pounds out of the bag. Luther's philosophy on women doesn't work on coeds—too much theory. Luke, KA fields top debating team—Hog, Trash Mouth, and Motor Mouth. Round-man Johnson rolls—anybody know a good yell? Wolfe and Murph get pointers on Southgate kitchen from Dunson. "Money Bags" comes through with TV set for chapter room—Latimer make sure it's the right size. Dumb "Dum-Dum" spoils hotel party for Watashi and "Peune." East Campus frowns as Edwards, Wood, Whit and Boyd drop pins elsewhere. Hughes reigns over the card table as he teaches Higgins, Partain, and "Looney" John the fundamentals. Harris concedes to Hull as

The Kappa Alpha's again claim title to the undisputed champions of intramural football. They are reputed to have not only the best athletes but the best-dressed managers.

A-Squared becomes A-Squared-Prime. Stokes serenades Connie "after hours." Helen proves she's as crazy as "Crazy" Bob. McMasters' weekly lectures influence no one—not even McMasters: Longjohn has proof. Boyd's airport has its advantages—right Mike? "Tough" Gene, alias "Czar," finally brought to justice after leading "Mousy." Cates and Ivey astray. Snow making regular contributions to Community Chest. "Snoop" crashes Carolina party with bottle of milk! Dan Moser and Bob Pearce exchange vows for the ball and chain. Carver and Reeves make full use of "Marriage and the Family" course.

The intramural fields are dotted with KA T-shirts, and more trophies fall to Kappa Alpha—University football championship included. "Hogmouth," Lassiter, Ed and Fil Mabry, and "Lu-lu" make all intramural football team. Fab wins tennis singles—alone.

Only the Old South Ball could top off a year like this, and it did. "Yes Suh," those were Confederates who took Raleigh. Didn't you see the KA badges on their coats? Yes, it was a fitting ending to a perfect year.

Dick "He's Engaged" Norham spends his time looking through Ladies Home Journal while awaiting "Goosie's" return from Alsbaugh. The walking zombie is Bud Horner, still dreaming of the S 'n' S weekend. Terpand and "Dumb Dago" still can't figure out why it doesn't run. Coleman and Maddox find it great sport to change horses in mid-stream. S.E.G. Henderson still plugs away. The "Red Fox," Kaelin, still can't make up his mind. Curley, Cochran, and Fox believe in keeping it to themselves. "Cupie" McNair turns BMOG on East. McClaman still wonders about the Alpha Chi gestapo that keeps Eileen posted on his every classroom move—he loves it though. Peppy Swanson and his uke take over as the nightly serenade. Poole, McCain, and Hilton turn study bug, but noisy. Needham sings away with "I Surrender, I Surrender" to roomie Tom Evans. Bob "What Should I Do, Mac?" Weimann is still puzzled. V. The Lambda Chi's are rapidly acquiring a reputation for their talented singing Attending their last meeting of the year, the famed "Creepers" of Lambda Chi viewed the future with intense speculation and mixed emotions, but they happily reminisced about the accomplishments of the past year. There had been the usual disharmony, but it was more than balanced by a sustained spirit of pulling together.

Although some men had already departed, and the largest graduating class in recent years would leave a large void, a feeling of satisfaction with their fraternity prevailed among the brothers of Lambda Chi. It had been a good year.

September had brought cool weather and the football season. Carefree spirits and enthusiasm were exemplified by the establishment of a weekly Thursday night ritual at the Chili House. Television, chess, weekend sorties to the Saddle Club, Shoe and Slipper imports, and numerous pin-ups took top billing during October. The month of Thanksgiving saw some concrete achievements in the Homecoming display, which bounced right into second place in the fraternity competition. The Chi Coraleers established their reputation as a top singing group on campus, and even made an appearance on the Horace Heidt radio show. December precipitated hurried and hurried Christmas preparations spiced with a serenade for the "Redhead," Buccaneer parties, and rushing open houses. And an idea for Christmas decorations resulted in Santa Claus gracing the front of House D. The annual party for the kids from Edgemont was as successful as ever, and perhaps even a little more so. The Christmas festivities were touched off by the Charlotte wedding of Sally Brown and Bill Mauney, after which the Lambda Chi's hit the road for home and the holidays.

Soon after the new year began, the usual mad scramble for notes, ponies, fraternity files began in preparation for mid-year exams. Several of the brothers, with exams and their draft boards breathing down their necks, decided to enlist while the enlisting was good. Formal rushing parties followed close on the heels of the new semester, not to mention Nell and Bob's wedding. It was not until pledging was over that the fraternity finally settled back into the school routine. The weeks flew by, the weather warmed, and spring vacation loomed close on the horizon. The choice between Bermuda, Daytona, and home was dictated by diminishing finances. The holiday seemed not half long enough, and before anyone realized it, the parties were only fond and distant memories.

As the time approached when the seniors would go out into the world, all of them assured of security and low pay in their government jobs, they looked back more and more on their rapidly dwindling college days and longed to be a freshmen once more. Although the sophomores and juniors seemed to stand betwixt and between, they buckled down for exams and fondly entertained hopes of returning to the ivy-covered walls in the fall.

Yes, as the gavel banged down for the last time, the thoughts of the men of Lambda Chi were many and varied. Some were confused and heavy, others light and optimistic. But all were united in their thought that it had been a very good year for their fraternity.

Phi Delta Theta

Judged on all around excellence

Duke Phi Delts stand high on national roster.

The North Carolina Alpha of Phi Delta Theta strives to bring together a group of college men whose interests are varied yet whose hearts are united in the fellowship of the fraternity. The wearers of the Sword and Shield are proud that they have men who attain their varsity letters, men who are part of such organizations as S.G.A., men who work for the various campus publications. The Phi Delts feel they have a strong alliance with all aspects of college life.

The social season was highlighted by open houses, the annual Christmas dance, the spring banquet-dance, and the trek to Daytona Beach, but the national emergency darkened all plans for the future.

When the last senior is gone it will be hard for the others to forget Dick Allen's dreams of his beloved wheat fields, Dick Paulsen's plans for guiding fishing trips, Clay Felker's columns, Bill White's return, Frank Wamsley's tennis racquet, Blaine Thompson's uke, Bob Peterson's advice for freshmen, Jim Ross, playing the tape-recorder while room-mates Pagter and Landon try to study, Bob Bush's accounts of the immortal Merchantville High football games, Bob Deyton's jowls, Mike Souchak's extra points, the time Dave Bain missed his chair at the Rathskeller, Dave Hill's gleaming car, Jim Shaw's insane laugh, Bud Adams' blonde, Jim E. Gibson's silences, and, last of all, Robert Tombs Wrights plans for TV.

The future is certainly troubled but at least we may say—may God go with you and may we meet again.

Although their dates watch the camera, the flashbulb accustomed Phi Delts focus their attention on punch and female pulchritude.

The Phi Delts celebrate Christmas with a dance at the Wash Duke. Pegram fish bowl was crowded days before the party with paper mache Christmas trees and reindeer. Here Santa Claus has trouble with culprits trying to get their presents before Christmas.

President DAVE BAIN is an economics major from New York State.

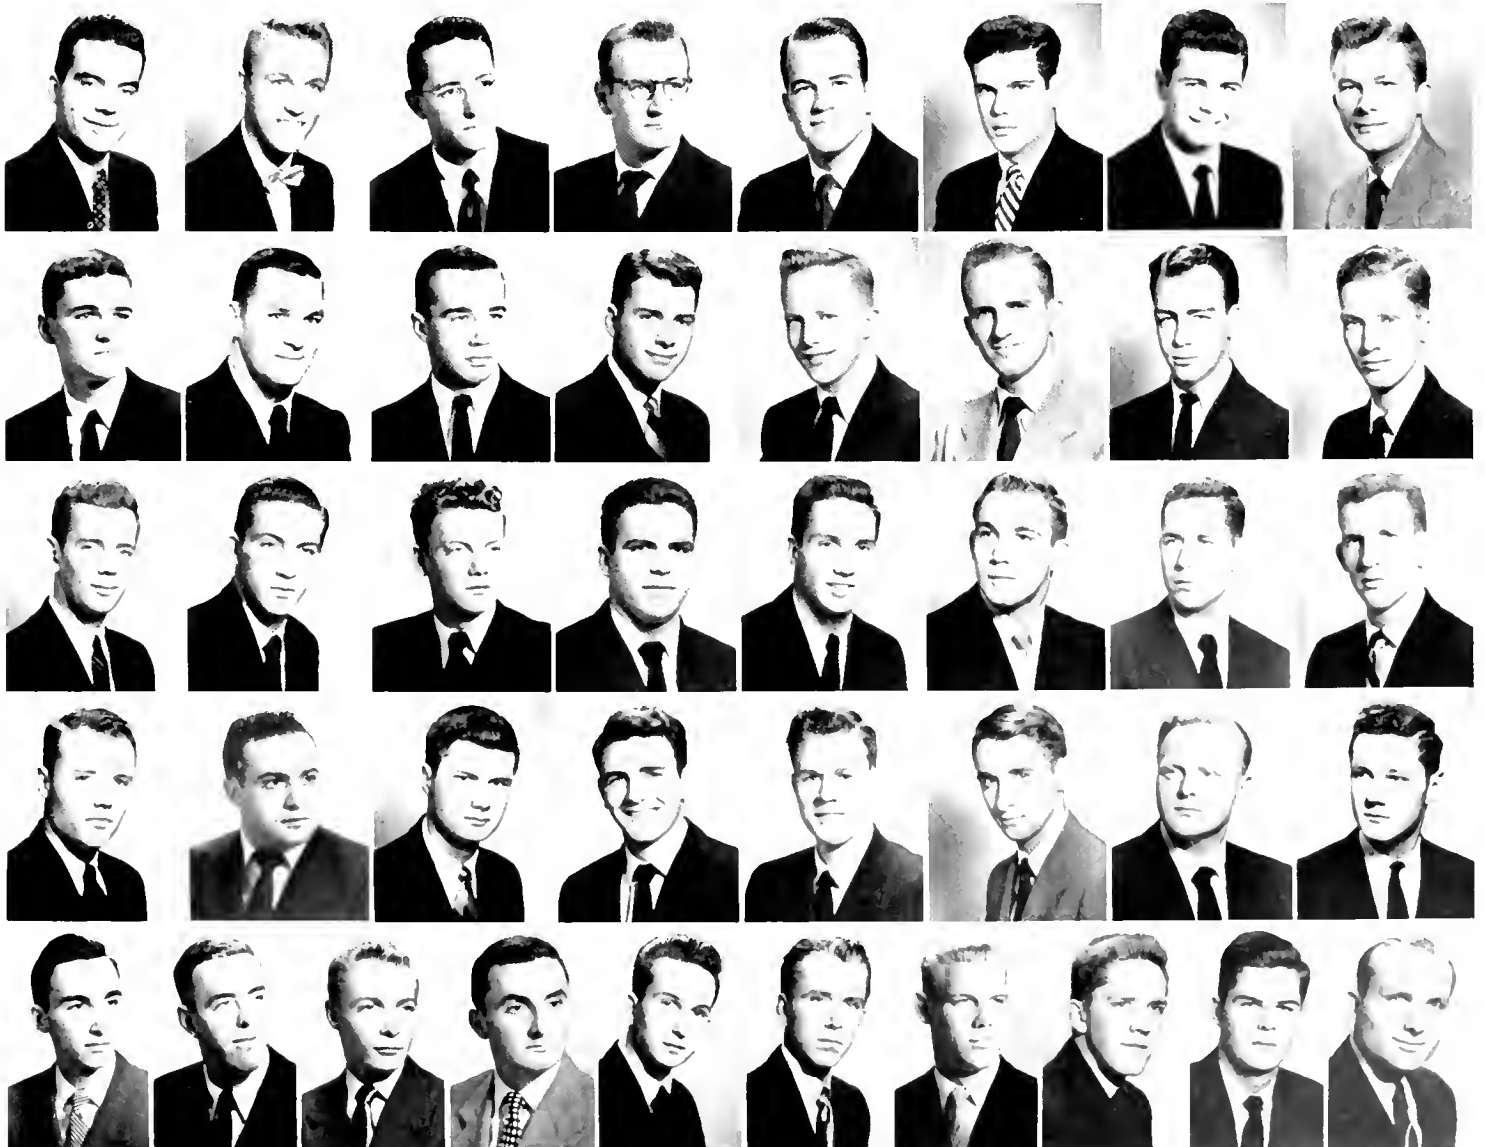

Believing whole-heartedly in the axiom that rushing should be more of a recreation than an ordeal, the Phi Delt abandon themselves to a bit of mad hilarity and mugging during rush.

A little quick-fingering on the piano and saxophone provides amusement for some of the brothers, their dates, and guests at an open-house—albeit Bob remains disconsolate in the rear.

Phi Kappa Psi

From journalists to politicians, Phi Psi has members in almost every campus group.

BOB OSBORN, who has also been active in publications, ably led the Pi Kappa Psi's during his senior year.

As everywhere, the middle of the century wrought changes even on the members of House "F." Among the strange occurrences was the premature return of several brothers in the wee days of Freshman Week—Fick, Pavlicek, and Hassler back to put the Chronicle out, Jordan to bum around, and Young to see that the "Y" men were all doing their jobs. As was expected, "Lynch-the-Penguin" waddled in after missing trains and planes all the way from Alaska.

Naturally everyone headed East . . . mostly to look over the Georgian architecture which is exceptionally lovely. The consensus was that New Jersey, Alabama, and Florida architecture was pretty good too.

The first cabin party brought the wildlife lurching into high gear. It was proof that everyone was situated well in the affections of the co-eds until Lowe showed up to spoil a superb record. Flick and Maggie held up the intellectual end of things by marking time near the fireplace with a red-hot discussion of Nietzsche, and Bourne recovered just in time to make chow.

In the horsey set, Smith held sway over Meadowbrook. Almost immediately thereafter Longley, with his fuse finally replaced, Robinson, and Osborne took off to the stable. Immediately thereafter sore backs and misplaced callouses were in evidence.

flock of informal dances, cabin parties, and good times resulted. Yorison started to consort with the same Alspaughite and soon had an auricular misplacement. Longley, Lee, Weiss, and Johnson continued on their merry ways while the rest played the field. However, the winter months brought on a mass of pinnings so that half the boys found themselves without their badges or their hearts.

Christmas vacation and its restful attributes brought the brothers back to exams in a most battered condition. "Tiger" Young and "Sweet Pea" Young found that pins weren't good enough and resorted to small, transparent stones. Lynch and Jordan made it two strikes against the members of 206, while Greene went back to Swedes soon after. Stipe, the shyster, made his announcement of a June Saturnalia.

Between semesters Ogluk is swarmed under by Charlotte bound brothers and tries to get more in the house. Football gives the Phi Psi's another reason for having a party. The newly decorated room with its scene of the sea provides a perfect setting for a Saturday afternoon open house. It would seem that Mary Lou is receiving a brief summary of the afternoon's game.

Phi Kappa Sigma

With their Founder's Day Banquet, Phi Kaps celebrated their first one hundred years of existence.

FRANK BYNUM, President of Phi Kappa Sigma, is also member of Phi Eta Sigma.

Within the walls of House "Z" on Duke Campus, one will find a brotherhood of young men with ambitions far and wide. With a representation in all major campus organizations, Nu Chapter of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity operates with a unified force of men from all corners of campus life. The following major organizations on campus have Phi Kaps on their membership rolls: Y.M.C.A., Glee Club, Chapel Choir, all publications, class officers, BOS, Debate Council, Bench and Bar, Kappa Chi, Pre-Med Society, F.A.C., Duke Players, student church organizations, Engineers' Council, Phi Eta Sigma, Tau Psi Omega, I.F.C. pep squad, radio station WDBS, NROTC and AROTC units, M.S.G.A., football squad, and track team.

The year 1950 has a great meaning for all Phi Kaps. It was on October nineteenth one hundred years ago that Dr. Samuel Brown and Wylie Mitchell gathered together its first members in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. In commemoration of Phi Kappa Sigma's one hundredth anniversary, a centennial celebration was held in Philadelphia from August thirtieth to September second. Brothers King, Brooks, and Collins represented Nu Chapter and had an impressive report to make after their return. Locally, the celebration of Founder's Day included an informal banquet with a program of appropriate entertainment and a declaration of all members to help make the second hundred years as successful as the first hundred has been.

A Christmas dance held the limelight for our fall social calendar, and a May dance topped the spring social events. An appropriate theme was used for each dance, and both met with an elegant approval by our guests. Various other informal get-togethers such as open houses for alumni and guests which followed football games, entertainment for rushees, and a pledge banquet rounded out a successful social season.

With Brothers Lane and Rambo holding positions on the Blue Devil football squad this year, Nu members gave their wholehearted support to its achievement. The chapters at the University of Maryland and the University of North Carolina were each challenged for a wallskin as a trophy. In like manner, the chapter at Georgia Tech was challenged for a cup. Participation in the pep rallies was not overlooked, and a good deal of hard work was sacrificed in the display for the Homecoming celebration.

Various other items of the school year must not be forgotten. While the intramural record was not the best on campus, the brothers contributed their part to the support of the program. A bulletin, Nu News, which gave the alumni an account of the activities, was published once each semester. The rushing program was successful in all respects, and a number of top-grade members were recruited both from the freshman and upper-class ranks. Our scholarship record ranked very high. At the same time the Phi Kaps had the highest average of any fraternity on campus.

Here ends another chapter in Phi Kap history. The brothers hope to continue adding to its prosperity.

Crowning event of the year for the PiKA's is their Dream Girl Dance.

Pi Kappa Alpha

WAYNE WILE, President of Pi Kappa Alpha, is a pre-legal major in his senior year. For the past two years he has served as a freshman adviser.

The PiKA's add to the enjoyment of the holiday season by holding their Christmas dance at the Washington Duke ballroom.

It was down in Old Virginny where Pi Kappa Alpha began" are the opening lines of an old song that PiKA's sing when they get together. At the University of Virginia in 1863 six young men met and decided to form a fraternity—Pi Kappa Alpha. From that humble beginning Pi Kappa Alpha has grown into a nation-wide fraternity with 110 chapters in forty-two states boasting a membership of 50,000.

Duke's chapter Alpha Alpha was founded in 1901, and since that time some 500 men have entered its ranks. The present membership of the fraternity is over sixty.

Activities of Pi Kappa Alpha start the day that school opens and don't stop until that last exam is over and the brothers leave dear old Duke for the summer vacation.

Wayne Wile from Petrolia, Pennsylvania, was president of the fraternity, and he earned the respect and the gratitude of all the brothers for the way he handled the activities of the year.

A regular outing for Pi Kappa Alpha is the monthly banquet at a downtown restaurant when all the brothers have a chance to get together. Speakers are usually on hand for the occasion.

Pi Kappa Alpha is well represented in all phases of intramural sports. Interest ran high in the Pi's intramural football team which was ably guided by Coach Phil Allen. At the beginning of this school year Pi Kappa Alpha ranked fourth in fraternity scholastic averages.

Those who went to see the Hoof 'n' Horn musical, Ring Around the Moon, saw Ken Taylor, Vice-President of Pi Kappa Alpha, in the male lead. Bill King, also in the show, wrote lyrics for many of the popular songs in the Hoof 'n' Horn musical.

You might call the Dream Girl Dance the crowning event of the year for the members of Pi Kappa Alpha. The brothers elect their Dream Girl by secret ballot, and she is crowned at the dance by the president of the fraternity. The new fraternity brothers who have just finished their pledge training and have just been initiated are introduced at the dance.

The final meeting of the year is the Senior Banquet at which time the brothers who are leaving bid the rest goodbye and wish the best of luck to the chapter.

Pi Kappa Phi

President of Pi Kap HENWARD DRUMMOND is a member of I.F.C. and B.O.S.

So popular were the open houses after football games with the Pi Kaps, that every available inch of seating space was taken.

As you swing into "fraternity quadrangle" take a sharp left, and you will find yourself in House "R," home of the fifty-five hospitable Pi Kapps.

This congenial Greek brotherhood envelops forty-eight chapters spread all the way from Miami, Florida, to Seattle, Washington, with its home office located in the heart of the South at Richmond, Virginia. Members of Mu chapter represent states all the way from Florida, extending to Texas and Oklahoma, back on through Arkansas, Tennessee, Virginia, and on up into New York and Connecticut, engulfing a region of half the country.

And what a social calendar these Pi Kapps have! Open houses, cabin parties, sorority exchanges horse-back riding, and banquets are features of the social season under the direction of Jack Hunt. But to top it off, there's the annual Rose Ball held in the fall. This year Brother Bill Byers and his Duke Cavaliers played for the dance in the Crystal Ballroom of the Washington Duke Hotel. Complete with miniature Pi Kapp beer mugs as favors for all the brothers' dates, the annual dance has as its feature the announcement of the Rose of Pi Kappa Phi. Since the Rose is chosen by secret ballot, her name remains shrouded in mystery until she is presented at the dance.

Toward the last part of April you'll notice a look of joyful anticipation on all the brothers' faces—anticpation for the "BIG" weekend at Myrtle Beach. It's become a tradition for the entire chapter to leave early the first weekend in May for a party at the beach. Everyone forgets homework and classes for a while and has a "bang-up" good time. Back at Duke the following Monday, one can always tell a Pi Kapp by his sun-burned expression of agony.

A look inside the Pi Kapp chapter room would convince one that all the brothers are card sharks; for any-time, day or night, there are always several groups playing a snappy game of bridge.

Slumped down in a chair, his bow-legs entwined in themselves, "Sheriff" Kent, one of the few authentic Arizona deputies, can be seen casting a wary glance at "Flash" Russinow, Chronicle wheel, while John Best adds a word of "decorum." The ukelele boys, Brothers Bledsoe, Bauer, Bentliff, and Craig, strum out a rendition of "Ain't She Sweet," while Les Mack and Jim Houser start a song and dance routine. Dick Bedell breezes in with copies of the Dink, Chronicle, and Mu Muses.

In the other corner of the room Senior I. M. Manager George Underwood reassures Phil Baroff, Bob DeGuzman, and Norm Benfer that the Pi Kapp chances look good down in the I. M. office. Archon "Bulldog" Drummond emerges with Rena's latest letter, just as "Shylock" White announces that this month's dues are payable immediately. Defendant Jim Ritch and Plaintiff Don Castor argue over a recent Bench and Bar decision as Forrest "I'm flaked" Nelson bows out of the picture.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

SAE's spend their time guarding Leo the Lion from fraternity pledge classes.

Since its conception in 1856, at the University of Alabama, the Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity has spanned the country. In February, 1931, North Carolina Nu entered the Greek circle of Duke University, and before many months had passed, Leo the Lion, was a prominent figure on the campus.

Again this year the Sig Alphas staged their zany masquerade party. The theme was "Suppressed Desire," apparently a fertile suggestion, as the brothers and their dates arrived garbed in fantastic costumes symbolizing their hidden frustrations.

Any week night we might walk into the Lion's Club and find the brothers occupied in a most profitable manner. In the chapter room A. J. Brock cries, "Get that hugger" to internal workers Ernie Condon, Ed Bitter, Frank Veith, Bill Strott, and John Weidman. "Morning Star" Young bows to strains of "Hail to the Chief" sung by Bob Witta, Jim Young, Judge Farquhar, and "Mother" Howard. In the card room Bob Dillon stresses the traditions of the Bombers to Bruce Mylrea, Ray "Throw Me the Ball" Carpenter, "Mad, Jr." Gould, John Lowndes, and Larry Stark. Across the hall "Hot Rod" Baker talks mobiles with "Horse and Carriage" Humphries. Upstairs Geoff Edwards, Jim Stottlar, and John Mueller make music for the crooning of "Ug" Stull. Down the hall Dan Peacock and Bob Hanson entertain Bill Williams with "hor's de beans." Bill Joyce, Gerry Kramme, Dick Johnson, and Carl Dickey argue baseball as Rod Boyce warns "Globe" Gilfillian and Gene Corrigan to get in shape—he might as well speak to the wall. Frank Weidman and George Hammin try to squeeze out a "Three No Bid" against Watson and Didley. Stride pulls a rabbit from a hat as "Zero" Sirois fades through a wall. Wood returns from seven hours' concentrated study to spray Monerief's throat. Bickle and Earon throw Carroll out the window for laughs. Pledge Trainer Pullen warns Sullivan, Lerps, and Ensign Benson to find out who Leomin was. Bill Hollenbeck counsels Bill Stone and Gene Stewart to beware the draft.

Retired Prexy Roger Kirchofer presents "Nails" McLean with casino trophy as Gil Smith nods approvingly. Gosnell expounds on the trials and tribulations of married life to "Tall Paul" Mougey and "Big Ed" Korbel. Wooten scrounges for a ride to Chapel Hill as Windom "radios in." The last sound that reaches our ears as we pass Leo on the way out is Don Townsend wildly screaming through the halls, "We're destitute."

The chapter room is well populated with “fish,” and “bridge” is the word as anglers “Snillles” Snively, “Ace” Hurst, and “Sweetheart” Poston try their luck. Brothers Crimmins, Tulenko, and Taylor are seen stressing the virtues of scholarship to Cheerleader Sterling. The piano is given a hard time by “Godfrey” Hermance, while Bob Melton, “Complex” Northrop, and Jim Earnhardt gather round to loosen up their pipes for an approaching serenade.

The title of “Chief Bird Dog” changes hands so often in the “Ball and Chain Club’s” third floor chapter room that one forgets if the title at present belongs to “Red” Lucas, “Dribbler” Skipsted, “Cuge” Eng, “Cage Captain” York, or “Lard” Reeves. Dohner puts cabin parties at head of social calendar; pledge skits as per usual—followed by broken paddles. Walt Smith becomes one of the chief supporters of Sylvania Television, being joined at fight time on Wednesday nights by John Howie, “Gums” Lucas, and Bill Fenner.

Pledge Edwards leads with his nose; Reams is not so lucky, but is Sam's hero. "But I was only going two miles an hour," pleads "Killer" Lipton. "Biologist" Deimling mourns the loss of his little brothers; they were really close to him. The "snow-train" gets sidetracked on the third floor. Miller doffs his "pink pajamas" in favor of his "woolen undies" as cold weather approaches. "Cadaver" Ross' homework stinks. More than one brother shivers at his draft classification and the rapid approach of June; Sound off, one, two, . . . The way of the transgressor is truly hard.

Sigma Nu

Once a year Sigma Nus and dates don the berets and short skirts of French Apaches.

Thus go the little things of life at the only house with its own terrace, but more important matters take up the rest of the time. Intramural Manager Wilson lovingly contemplates the softball trophy and plans for football and basketball. Sigma Phi Epsilon

One of the smaller Greek letter groups on campus, the Sig Eps occupy House AA in the fraternity quadrangle.

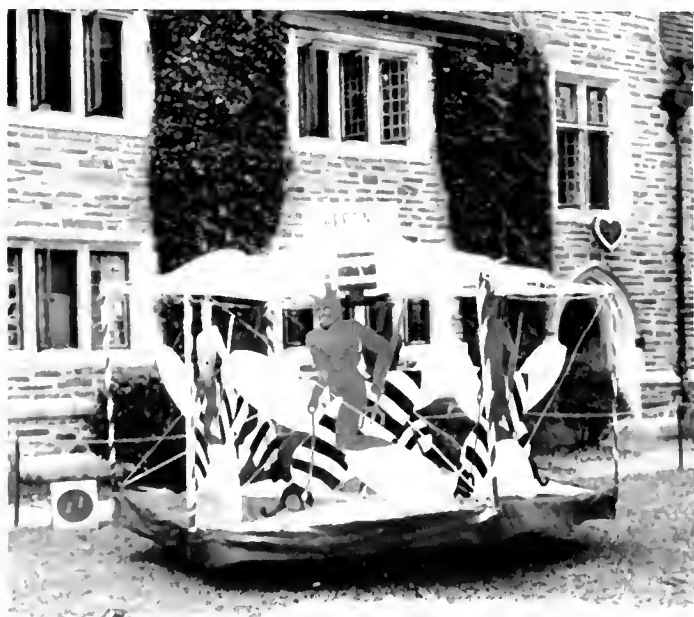

BILL GROSSNICKLE, president, is a senior pre-med student from Nutley, N. Jersey.

Established by twelve students at Richmond College in 1901, Sigma Phi Epsilon installed its twenty-second chapter on Duke campus as the North Carolina Gamma, March 27, 1909. Nationally Sigma Phi Epsilon has grown to 105 chapters, while locally Gamma Chapter has sent over 350 out into the world.

Passing through the portals of House "AA" we encounter: Bill Grossnickle . . . bemoaning his way through pre-med . . . disgruntled at the thought of more business to be "brung up" at meetings—Vern "Veep" Calloway . . . the globetrotter, who, doubling as social chairman, is always worried about something—Walter "Nose" Hudgins . . . lanky, Charlestoneing, money-grabber, a devotee of the muse, and a pushover for "psychoanalyzing" somebody—Keith Glover . . . minute-taking English major who is always trying to be in Christmas provides the Sigma Phi Epsilon's with another opportunity to have a party. This time, it's a dance at the Wash Duke Ballroom. Some couples have an eye out for the camera man while others seem not to notice that their picture is being snapped.

Theta Chi

What was Phi Theta Sigma two years ago is now a flourishing chapter of Theta Chi.

The Theta Chi's desert their punch cups and cookies to make some conversational points of interest to their attractive dates at a party.

Top: Fred Tybont commands complete silence in order that the secretary may call the roll to check if any of the brothers missing from meeting held in the Theta Chi chapter room. Bottom: Who will make a fifth? It's getting so that even a bridge game on a cabin party must have at least one kibitzer.

On April 10, 1856, Frederick N. Freeman and Arthur Chase founded Theta Chi fraternity at Norwich University, Norwich, Vermont. It remained a local fraternity for forty-six years until the second chapter was established at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1902. From that time the fraternity has grown until today it is among the ten largest national fraternities.

Theta Chi is the youngest fraternity on Duke Campus, having been installed as Gamma Sigma chapter on April 9, 1949. Prior to that time the fraternity operated as the local fraternity Phi Theta Sigma, which had been founded by six undergraduate students in August, 1914. Since then Phi Theta Sigma and Theta Chi has enlarged its membership to twenty-two active undergraduates and six faculty members.

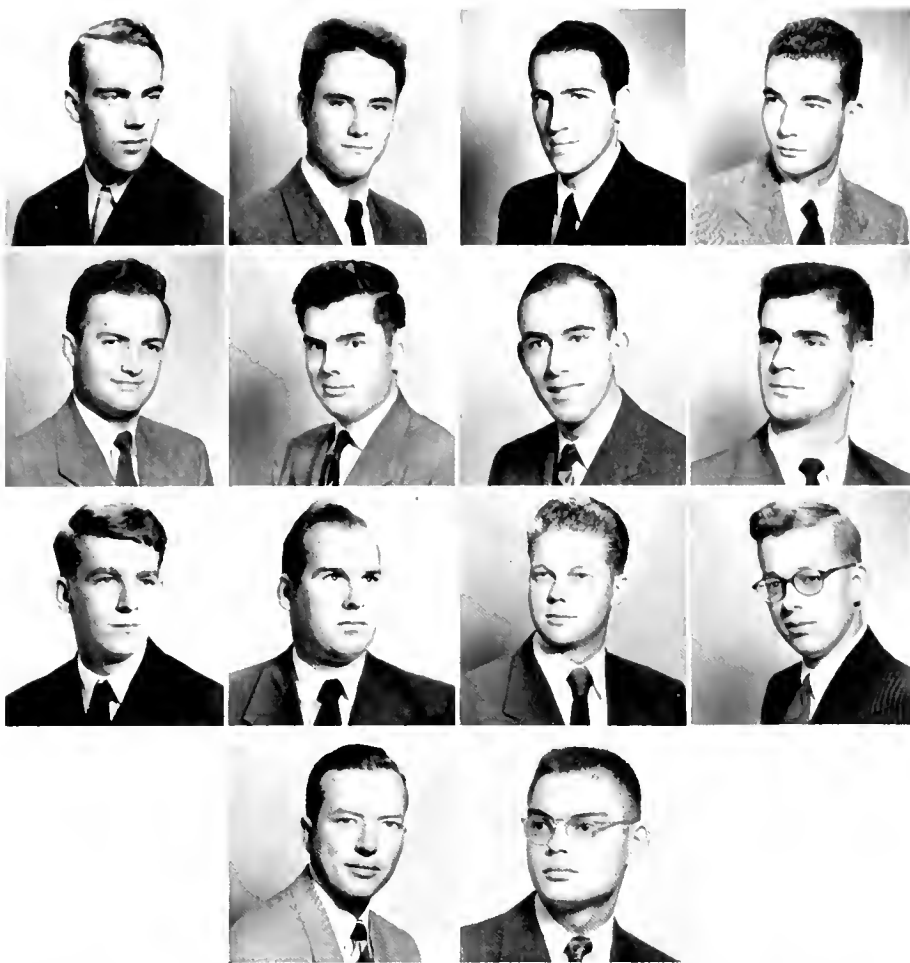

Chosen by the brothers or some prominent figure about the campus, the Dream Girl reigns supreme over Theta Chi's annual spring formal. Withheld until intermission, the name of the Dream Girl is revealed when the president performs the crowning ceremony.

This year Gamma Sigma sponsored the annual Mason-Dixon Jubilee, when the chapters from Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina congregated for a weekend of celebration at Raleigh.

The honor of being Theta Chi Dream Girl is a much coveted position, but this year the Duke girls lost to an out-of-town beauty. The brothers honored their choice during intermission of the spring dance in the Union Ballroom, with Fred having the prized position.

Zeta Beta Tau

Members of the nation's largest Jewish fraternity, Duke ZBT's are the scholastic leaders.

Sixth row: Sack, M.; Poss, H.; Friedman, B.; Schwartz, R. Seventh row: Scheffer, M.; Getz, R.; O'Mansky, S.; Hollett, A.

Alpha Upsilon chapter of Zeta Beta Tau was installed May 4, 1935, thirty-seven years after Zeta Beta Tau was founded. Thirty-three members comprise the local chapter, whose outstanding social events of the year include the fall Homecoming Weekend and the spring Farewell Weekend, which honors the year's graduates and sees the crowning of the fraternity sweetheart.

As part of its program of social welfare, Zeta Beta Tau, joined by two other fraternities, presented the Cub Scouts from Edgemont Community Center with a Christmas party featuring movies, magic, gifts, and refreshments. With the generous assistance of the chapter's alumni association and the parents of the undergraduates, the chapter room was completely re-decorated and refurnished at the commencement of the fall semester. The brothers added a new electric neon fraternity sign. Serving Zeta Beta Tau this year as officers were: president, Ed Landau; vice-president, Gary Goldstein; secretary, M. Robert Goldwasser; treasurer, Henry M. Poss; historian, Martin Sack, Jr.

Included on the fraternity's roster were four members of Phi Beta Kappa, eight members of Phi Eta Sigma, three members of Beta Omega Sigma, two members of the Varsity "D" Club, the presidents of Bench and Bar and Hillel, the vice-presidents of the Inter-Fraternity Council and the Class of '51, two members of Pi Tau Sigma, and two band lettermen. The track, swimming, soccer, and football teams each claimed a Zebe, as did the Chronicle, Tau Beta Pi, Eta Sigma Phi, and Alpha Kappa Psi.

The widespread accomplishments of the brothers on campus make the headlines, but it is their varied personalities and the experiences with them through the year that one shall always cherish and remember. "Counselor" Schwartz patiently holding his Bench and Bar gavel, awaiting Program Chairman "Lumbering" Getz's return from soccer practice . . . Cinderman H. Joe, joined occasionally by Eppie, continuing in his lamentation on unnatural existences . . . "Sitting Bull" Rosenberg short-changing the brothers in the Oak Room. . . .

Prexy Ed finally cutting the meeting down to four hours flat, while House Chairman Dick continues with his maintenance of perfect order and discipline in House "T" . . . Pepper finally finding his mandolin under Saul's laundry bundles . . . Gene borrowing Bernam's slide rule as the latter carefully mixes the papier mache for Homecoming . . . Lowenthal cluttering up the dressers with his panaceas as Thayer spumes Latin declensions . . . "Geel" shuffling the cards as "One game!" reverberates through the dorm . . . Miles trying vainly to collect Shoe and Slipper dues to keep his auto repair bills up to date . . . Tamis attempting to find out what Abe is saying . . . Liam and Simil becoming the first to splice, but we still manage to see Sandy and him on Monday nights . . . Herb plugging away at accounting, as Jim continues to represent us in the political spotlight. . . . And don't let Ruby and "The Stu" fool you—they, like the rest of the brothers, are still "loyal to our Zeta Beta Tau, ever loyal to our Zeta Beta Tau."

The Alpha Chi's president, BETTY CHAPPELL, is a senior education major.

Since the founding of Alpha Chi Omega at Depauw University in 1885, the lyre has been the symbol of our sorority, and on it we have played many melodies, with new notes, old notes, and various tempos. The strains of the lyre have since been heard in seventy-three major colleges and universities throughout the nation, and from these chapters have come a total of 28,000 loyal Alpha Chis, who proudly display the red carnation and the colors, scarlet and olive green.

Betty Chappell, our president for 1950-1951, set the key signature for the chapter here at Duke. Peggy Haldeman, Chairman of the Judicial Board; Peggy Awtry, Coed Editor of the Chronicle; Mary Baily, Phi Kappa Delta; five F.A.C.'s and three Phi Beta Kappas are the major chords. New notes, our sixteen talented and lovely pledges, add strength to the melody, and the premiere performance of the new music came at the traditional big-sister little-sister luncheon early in the fall.

Then the melody breaks into a gay, sprightly tune, reminiscent of fun-crowded days and months, of cabin parties, coffees, open houses for the boys on West, and rush parties. The Christmas season saw our annual Christmas Party and the dance with which we honored our pledges.

Improvisations on old, familiar themes mark efforts to redecorate our chapter room, which is located in Mordecai House. The ballad strain is especially for our pin-ups. The complete melody signifies the life of all the girls in the chapter and their varied interests, and may this year's melody long linger with them.

Alpha Delta Pi

Their ideals are found in the motto: we live for one another.

MART PROCTOR transferred to Duke as a sophomore and is the A.D.Pi President.

Beautiful girls entertain East's freshmen at juke box party. The entertainers enjoyed the show as much as the entertained, though only a few soda jerks remained composed enough to sing.

Great plans were made for a gala affair at Wesleyan College, Macon, Georgia, this summer in honor of Alpha Delta Pi's hundredth birthday. They proudly claim the distinction of being the oldest secret society for women, for their first chapter was founded May 18, 1851. Omicron chapter also claims seniority at Duke as the first national sorority established here.

Alpha Delta Pi's philanthropic activities include the Abigail Davis Student Loan Fund, the Wesleyan Scholarship for the descendents of founders, and the 1851 Memorial Fellowship Fund which sponsors foreign students.

Omicron chapter is proud of the many honors that its members have received at Duke. Outstanding offices held include president of W.S.G.A., president of Pan-Hellenic Council, president of the Y.W.C.A., two house presidents, the president of the sophomore class, two of the cheerleaders, one F.A.C., and two transfer advisers. Much of the success of Alpha Delta Pi must be attributed to the capable leadership of Marriott Proctor, President of the Omicron chapter for 1950-1951.

Alpha Epsilon Phi

JUDY ROSENBLUM,
President of Alpha Epsilon Phi, is a history major.

Betterment of the individual and thus the group as a whole is their purpose.

Alpha Epsilon Phi has had a very busy, full year. Their chief concern was chasing about looking for furniture to fix up their newly acquired room in the Faculty Apartments. Their meetings resembled a class in interior decorating as they sat down and hashed out all their problems . . . what color carpet will match best, and where should the new table be put. Some how or other all these questions were straightened out, and the result . . . well, it looks mighty good to them.

For a small group the members certainly do manage to get around. There's Dot, for instance, our house president, Phi Kappa Delta, and White Duchy. One can't quite figure out where she finds time to get to meetings, but miraculously she is always there. And then there is Bernice, another sister on W.S.G.A. She goes by the title of assistant treasurer and is claimed by Sandals as well as Ivy. Dana and Hattie also add to the Sandals roster with spirit and vitality.

There isn't a thing that can stop Jan's dancing. This year's Hoof 'n' Horn show owes its choreography to her talent. It was quite a loss when two of the seniors, Judy and Joan, left in the middle of the year to try their hands at job-hunting. Bev and Sue both blossomed forth with fraternity pins and wedding plans, accompanied by beaming and blissful smiles. Ruthie has been haunting the geology labs all term, and Irene, our treasurer, just spends her time haunting.

Five wonderful pledges added much to the enthusiasm of the group activities. They gave the actives a most pleasant afternoon with a bridge party in the room. They also entertained the presidents and vice-presidents of other pledge classes on campus with an open house.

The AEPHs at their next-to-last rush party impress the rushees with flapper costumes—long-waisted middies and fancy garters. The "Roarin' Twenties" party was a roarin' success!

Top: The pledge banquet is one of the outstanding events of the year for any freshman, for it is her first recognition as a full-fledged member. The AEPHs honor their new initiates at a dinner given in the Union Ballroom at the end of first semester. Bottom: A surprise shower is given for a bride-to-be and her friends in the sorority room in the Faculty Apartments.

Highlighting the year's activities were the annual formal pledge dance before Christmas at the Forest Hills Country Club and the dinner dance in the spring. They honored the seniors and pledges at one of the big banquets. The Sunday afternoon open houses for the boys at Duke, North Carolina State, and Chapel Hill were successful, and much fun was had by all. They had many suppers in the room which turned out to be riotous affairs, and the annual coffee for faculty and administration was one of the best they have ever held. All of this and the high esprit de corps of the group went to make up one of the finest years in Alpha Epsilon's sixteen years on Duke University campus.

Alpha Phi

Their sorority experience will become a thing of lasting value.

Top: At a rushing function, Alpha Phi's impress freshmen with candles, atmosphere, and costumes. Middle: When rushing is over, an annual banquet is held for the newly-pledged girls. Bottom: At their last party before the Christmas holidays, the Alpha Phis receive presents from a phony-looking Santa Claus.

"We'll have a blue room," says the song. And so we have. The color may be blue, but the spirit certainly isn't. With "Slap Bang" and our new Viennese Party as a boost, we increased our chapter by eighteen, including sophomores Brenda, Billie, and Ann.

Connie, Prue, and Ann Hammond returned early this year to advise freshmen and transfers. Whitaker pulled a quickie in September and doubled the number of pins she carries by adding a Carolina PiKA pin. Mary tied the knot last summer with Wade but returned to the campus to absorb more culture. Jean brought back from Christmas a double set of rings on her third finger, while Elly settled for one, and Phyl for a pin. Alums Connie Austin and Jean Withrow settled in Durham while their husbands plodded through school. Avis and Brunkow narrowed the field to one, and Marty pined for her man at M.I.T. Football weekends, Homecoming, and Thanksgiving brought our alums back from everywhere.

Our blue room began activities early in the year with coffees. In November we had our pledge banquet and in February our pledge dance. Our initiation banquet was held at the Hope Valley Country Club. Every holiday brought a special party, and in the spring we trekked to Crabtree for our cabin party. We climaxed our social year with our spring vacation house party in Daytona.

To justify our existence, we initiated this year a new social service project. Supporting our National Cardiac Aid project and collaborating with Duke Hospital, we began working at the new Heart House on Main Street. Our annual project of an easter egg hunt for the Edgemonters was not neglected either.

Billie captured the Kappa Sig Dream Girl cup and matching pin early in the fall. Meantime Crowell, Ballard, Pierce, and Whitaker helped out the Chapel Choir. Polly devoted her time to being photography editor of the CHANTICLEER, but took time out to relax with Ruth Casselberry at a Union Committee meeting. Currie concentrated on keeping her high Ivy average; while Phoebe Bowen edited the Student Handbook with assistance from Marty and Brenda, and Joanie led the cheers. President Pat was content to spend her extra time at the new radio station. Theatrical minded Elly and Joanie worked with the Hoof 'n' Horn show, and Phil, Sue, and Pat devoted themselves to Duke Players. Our numerous Spanish students joined Phyl in Sigma Delta Pi, and Connie continued to avidly boost the "Y." The two Joanies flapped their water wings with the Nereidian Club. Phoebe donned the jodphurs, and Prue and Beeps faithfully attended W.A.A. meetings.

While strolling across East Campus, and occasionally West Campus, we are certain to meet up with those good ole Tri Deltas, whose favorite stomping ground is the famed "Tri Delta Heaven" in the Pan-Hel House.

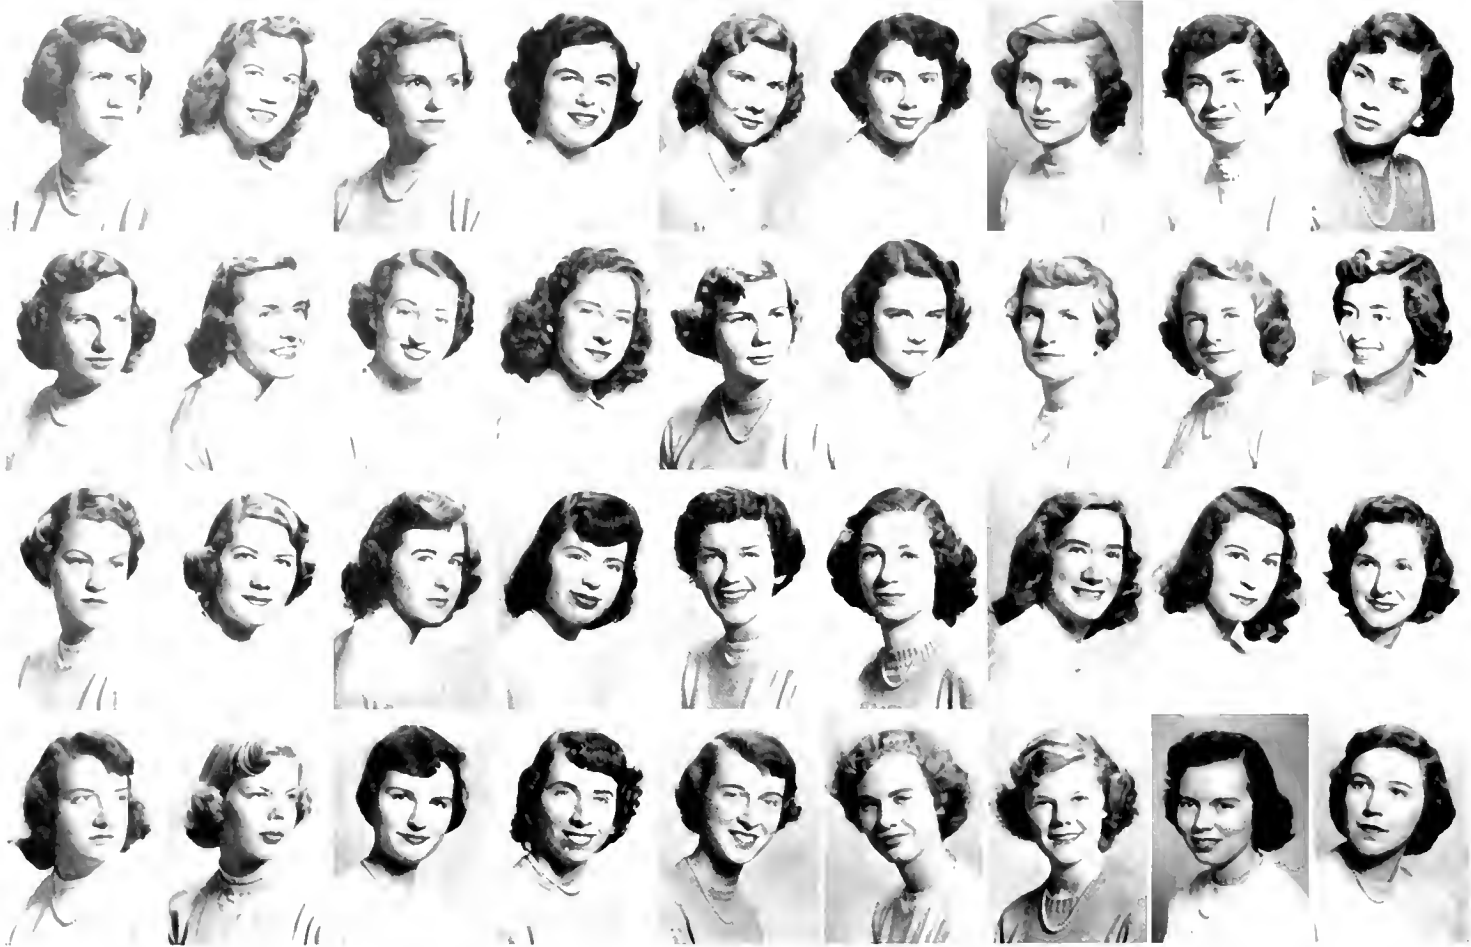

Mary Jo Stroud, Sweetheart of the chapter, has the task of presiding over this group of intellectuals and saying, "Sisters, now that we are all members of Dean's List, we can strive to become members of Phi Beta Kappa." T. Stevens, President of the Junior Class and Pan-Hel Adviser in Bassett House, and Kay Richards, F.A.C. in Jarvis House, lead the Junior Class "onward toward greater things." Then we have F.A.C.'s Mary Lib Coleman and Becca Woollen doing their level best to teach their children Duke ways, and, in the literary line, Sally Butz edits the CHANTICLEER.

The artistic talents of Delta Delta Delta are represented by songbird Dot Jenkins, who has the lead in Hoof 'n' Horn's first production, plus the year 'round job of leading the Tri-Delt "choir" in songs.

Of the fifty-five members of the Alpha Omicron chapter, these are a few whose close and lasting friendships keep the stars and crescent shining at their brightest.

Here it is now time for graduation, and memories of another fabulous Delta Gamma year are complete.

Santa comes with gifts for all D.G.'s at the annual Christmas party. Santa has a feminine air about "him," but just the same he's awaited eagerly to spread good cheer among the girls.

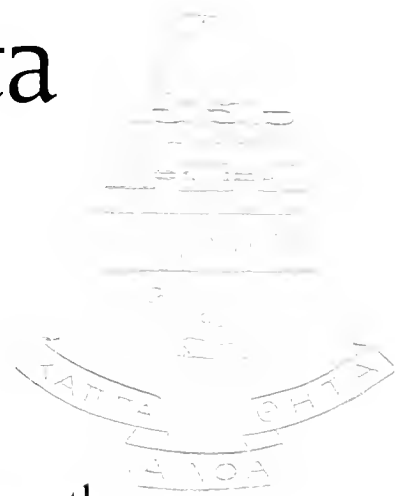

At their sorority meeting most girls listen attentively, but a few snooze or day dream. Judy reads the many announcements, and the secretary takes the minutes diligently and carefully.

Beta Rho chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta again had a proud and fun-packed year. Our claim to scholarship fame lay in our distinguished prexy, Carolyn Morse, accompanied by Ruthann Imler, Wink Boone, and Jana Hauser. Ann Gunderson proved that the sophs were not to be outdone and represented Theta in Ivy. At the end of the semester we were pleasantly surprised by ranking first among sororities in academic standing.

None the less pleased were we to have so many Theta's holding positions of distinction on campus. Fay Cobb, Alice Jean Youmans, Dottie Lenning, and Brad Bradley served on W.S.G.A. Council, Anne Schlatter led the Sandals, and Wink Boone directed Student Forum. And hats off to Queens Marjorie Arthur, Molly Bixby, and Marion Chapman.

Theta as a group was constantly active carrying on projects and planning open houses, parties, and dances. Our frequent Sunday night sit-on-the-floor suppers provided wonderful socials, and coupled with pledge-active get-together on Monday night filled new pages in our crowded memory book.

East-West relations assumed greater proportions, with numerous starry-eyed Theta's cherishing frat pins, and Marion and Dottie smugly sporting diamonds. Guomie combined cooking with classes and served as a wonderful advertisement. Lil picked between semester vacation for the "I do's," while Jana graduated first semester and headed for her Quantico wedding.

At our spring Triad, held with the Pi Phis and the Kappas in the Woman's Gym, Theta presented with pride her fifteen pledges, and thus completed another successful year full of constant activity, fun, and fellowship.

The KD Hades, fires started burning back in 1897, when four students at Virginia State Teachers College decided to band together and establish the first of many Kappa Delta chapters based then, as it is now, on the spirit of friendliness and loyalty. Since then KD has grown until it reached its height in 1951. KD now can boast of having eighty chapters, the most recent one having been established at the University of North Carolina this year.

The Sigma Delta chapter of Kappa Delta, proud possessor of thirty-two members and twenty spectacular pledges, is the mother of many versatile members. Famous among us are F.A.C. Susan; Bibi, the Phi Beta; Mo, the Aycock House president; Kay, the vivacious cheerleader; and Mimi, Coed Editor of the Duke 'n' Duchess. But let it be said that K D has not chosen its members on what they have, but rather on the better standard of what they are.

And then there are the other unforgettables . . . Becky "Mope," the witty one . . . sweet "Peet" . . . Joan, the tennis champ . . . Kitty, one of the Sweethearts of Sigma Chi finalists . . . "Nasty," burning up the road in her fire engine . . . "Hotsy," our fabulous gavel swinger . . . Marie "the Voice" Brown . . . little Brownie Little . . . Martha and her "A" average . . . Becky "Let's go to the Flickies" Smith . . . Margaret Ann "Be My Love" Houck . . . and memorable others.

The year 1950-1951 was active for Kappa Delta. Along the social line will always be remembered the numerous teas given by the pledges, the gala Pledge Banquet at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill when "Fortie" stole the show, and the Christmas Party. K D was once again the proud winner of the inter-sorority basketball tournament.

K D participates also in welfare work by donating food baskets to needy families at Christmas time and by supporting a hospital for crippled children in Virginia through the sale of Christmas seals.

And so, with all of our wonderful memories of fun, friendship, and service, the sisters end the thirty-ninth year of the Kappa Delta chapter at Duke University.

One of the most unusual parties given by any sorority in the fall is the Red Hades party on the first night of formal rushing. The KD's are dressed in red costumes with authentic horns.

Kappa Kappa Gamma

The golden key is the symbol of true and lasting friendship within this sisterhood.

Nineteen hundred and fifty marks the twentieth anniversary of the Kappa chapter at Duke, and members of Delta Beta continue to hold many roles in campus activities. While Mac Smith, "Prexy" of Bassett House, Jo Ingwersen, Judicial Secretary, and Joan LaMothe, Sophomore Representative, help to guide W.S.G.A.; Bobby Jones, Izzy Young, Emmy Weber, Cookie Beck, Alice Goldthwaite, and Marsha Knott set the style as members of Social Standards Committee. Holding positions on Pub Row are Nancy Harris, Coed Editor of the CHANTICLEER; Mary Webb, Coed Business Manager of the Archive; and Sally Byrne, Editor of the Archive.

Also on the activity roster are Cookie Beck, chairman of N.S.A.; Jane Schrider, the first coed in many years to be President of Duke Players; Dottie Platte, Joan LaMothe, and Emmy Weber, Sandals; and Emmy Peterson and Mary Webb, F.A.C.'s. Mac Smith was tapped for White Duchy, and Cookie Beck, Jane Schrider, and Mac for Phi Kappa Delta.

Anne Sherman, President, and Mary Webb, Vice-President, struck the keynote as the chapter strived to make the greatest possible contribution to the campus. The chapter worked closely with the newly-formed Durham Alumnae Club and jointly sponsored several projects and social functions.

Marty Langer and the social committee planned many activities which the chapter enjoyed this year—pledge breakfast, Founder's Day party, cabin party, Christmas party for Edgemont children, alumnae tea, initiation banquet, Triad Dance, and many informal get-togethers. The Kappas' twentieth year on Duke campus points to a future full of success and good times.

Mary Lou S. and Jo W. take over the Heavenly Players. Marge F. calls "lights out" as she takes the position of Chairman of the Advisory Council to New Angels. Jean K. runs down the golden streets passing out halos, as "on the spot" Happa P. grabs her pin cushion and pins on wings. Our learned traveler Bronson dutifully plots her daily course as St. Peter's messenger. Poised on her ladder is artist Sue McM. painting the clouds and stars. The wayward angels—Gimmy K., Ruth C., "Zelda" C., and Judy H. craftily avoid the black looks from Chief Bouncer Elaine Z., as the new Reign of the Celestial Firmament begins.

The Phi Mu President is MONA THOMPSON. A senior, she is majoring in art.

But not living in a day dream, the down to earth chapter finds fellowship and fun in working together in the present. After the rushing parties, the social season included afternoon get-togethers, serenades and open houses, the Pledge Banquet, and the Pledge Dance. But not all is frolic. In first semester the chapter adopted a war orphan, sang to patients in Lincoln Hospital, and gave a Christmas party for the children's ward—never forgetting the long-standing tradition of helping others which was set by the Founders of Phi Mu.

The loyal and true sisters of Phi Mu boast ninety-nine years of leadership and philanthropy.

Intellectual development, social

As the Pi Phi golden arrow soars high into the heavens again this year, it has left a flaming trail of stars for others to watch.

Sigma Kappa

Loyal service and devotion based on fellowship are the bywords of this chapter of Sigma Kappas.

SHELAGH JOHNSON, President of Sigma Kappa, comes to us from South America.

Come along and follow me. Remember rushing? Betty Eley screaming, "Please, just once more through and watch that last line." . . . Ann Price tearing her hair over "rees" . . . Prexy Shelagh muttering, "Smile, smile everybody." Yes, we remember.

Monday nights after assembly with the trek to 309 Pan-Hel . . . the smiles of Polly, Carol, and Dot as they stare at the third finger left hand . . . the trials of Charlotte and Peggy with pin-ups away . . . the shrieks of Gryder and Pat. "Bridge, anybody?" No, we won't forget that. And how about swimmer Mary Lou, Ivy member Shirley, and Town Girl Catby with their black faces . . . or "Navigator" Smiseth scaring rushees in her sailor suit—"Oh, I thought it was a man!"

"Quiet, you all, will the meeting please come to order?" . . . Sister Colledge with her "Well, February dues are due and will everybody please pay." . . . Madeline warning us to keep the kitchen clean . . . Carol B. asking for more for the pledges to do. Poor pledges—the Main Sea-Coast Mission, pledge points, visiting, history, etc., just don't keep them busy enough.

The Sigma Kappas gather for their annual under-the-sea rush party with fun and nautical atmosphere to burn. Each rushee brings home memories of sailor middies and grass skirts.

The artists, Dwayne, Jane, and Joan B. asking for help on decorations—help or no, they really did a wonderful job this year . . . Another busy pair, Social Chairmen Juanita and Wilma—Juanita, passing cookies and saying, "The cokes'll be right along, we ran out of ice" . . . or will you ever forget the Sunday morning pajama breakfasts—sleepy, blank faces and hands groping for coffee? Oh, that coffee, do let's forget that! But let's don't forget Blake married at long last. Take heart, Mary Hope, one of those Sigma Nu's will get the urge soon.

Then the pledge dance with its problems will be remembering . . . Shasta saying, "Which one will I ask? If I ask him, I'll have to wear my flats—he's only 6 feet 2" . . . life's problems . . . Shelagh trying to get things accomplished and graduate in July too. . . .

Memories and interests fill our minds. Joan C. waiting for mail from West Point . . . Mary Olson negotiating a beach party in Florida . . . Phyllis always going to choir practice . . . Zeta Tau Alpha

Who is that attractive girl wearing the crown and shield? Why she's a Zeta, of course. Where is she going? Well, really I couldn't be sure—a Zeta could be going almost anywhere. The Zetas aren't a typed crowd at all. They're alike in that they're all chock-full of friendliness and enthusiasm, but they have varied interests; each one has her finger in a different Duke pie.

Tune in on a chapter meeting and you'll see my point. There's the Zeta Tau Alpha President, Love Lindsey, sitting in that wing-backed chair. You think she's pretty? Well, so did Vivien Leigh and Marlon Brando when they chose her for the CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen. And look who's on the window seat—Pat McNamee. It's a wonder that she could get away from her duties as house president. Uh-oh, she is leaving. Perhaps the mysterious order of White Duchy is meeting today. Jean Pugh is the girl who has the floor now. She is the Vice-President of Zeta Tau Alpha, and she is also Vice-President of Bassett House. The gal over in the corner wearing the shorts is Doc Leeper. No, Zetas don't always dress this way; she's the President of the Woman's Athletic Association. Oh goodness, I wanted you to see Connie Woodward, but she isn't here. She is probably at an executive meeting; she's the President of the Senior Class. Who is that creature with her nose in the book? That is Betty Ann Young trying to keep her Ivy average. And there's Jane Reimer trying to drag her off to a Sandals meeting. Here comes Bunny Noble and Jane Ann Flanders. They show signs of wear and tear from being freshman advisers. Tess Hough, this year's Sweetheart of Sigma Chi, is helping them to their seats.

Of course, you haven't heard about all the Zetas, but you do begin to see the point, don't you? Whether you're in Student Government Association meeting, at a dance, in a publications office, in the gym, at "Y" Council meeting, at the Saddle Club, or just in a friendly bull session in the dorm you'll surely see a Zeta. They're around everywhere and they're tops.

The purpose of Zeta is to promote and develop happiness.

Preface to the Present

Duke football during the construction period was characterized by a greater number of defeats than victories and an annual licking at the hands of Carolina's Tar Heels.

The opening game of the first team to wear the Duke letters was played against N. C. State.

Governor McLean was among the six thousand spectators who watched the Wolfpack triumph by a 13-0 count. That first season yielded four wins and five losses.

1926 saw the Blue Devils gain only two victories in an eight game schedule. Although Carolina's margin of victory was only six points, as compared to forty-one the previous year, the Big Blue couldn't seem to come out on the long end of a Duke-UNC score.

Playing guard on the team that year was Tom Eanes, uncle of Bill Eanes, present day Blue Devil.

Athletics

The football teams of the middle-Twenties gave little indication of the Wade era which was to follow.

Wallace

WADE

The "old master" of the Southern Conference has retired from college football to become the first commissioner of the loop in which his twenty-nine years as a coach have been spent. In withdrawing from the ranks of collegiate grid mentors, Wallace Wade takes with him an impressive total of 202 victories, many records and firsts, and a reputation as one of the greatest coaches the game has ever known. The "iron man of football," who came to Duke in 1931, guided fifteen Blue Devil teams to six Southern Conference championships and two Rose Bowl games, one of which was played in Durham, and produced the conference's first All-American player.

Much of the credit for the success of the Duke football team goes to the men whose names the average fan never hears—the head coach's assistants. Eddie Cameron, also the school's Athletic Director, serves as the Blue Devils' backfield coach. Showing the line the finer points of the game is Ellis "Dumpy" Hagler. Herschel Caldwell has the job of improving the ends' technique. Wade's host of assistant coaches includes Ace Parker, one of the greatest backs ever to don a Blue Devil uniform; Mike Karmazin, a former Devil linesman; Carmen Falcone; and William "Billy" Hickman. To develop freshman footballers into varsity material is the job of Horace "Horse" Henderson.

The Squad

Duke's 1950 football team boasted many outstanding athletes. Recognized regionally and nationally, these men contributed much to the success of the past season and gained the acclaim they deserved. They served notice that Duke is regaining its football power.

Heading the list of star performers was Captain Billy Cox. Cox, who established the third greatest number of yards gained in a single season since the beginning of football, placed first on every All-Southern eleven. The star passer gained honorable mentions on both the Associated Press and United Press All-American teams.

Defensive end Blaine Earon placed on the Associated Press' second team All-American and also on the first team of two All-Southern squads. The rugged end was chosen on the International News Service's and the Sport Writers' second team All-Southern and given an honorable mention from the United Press.

Mike Souchak, outstanding end and place kicker for the Blue Devils, placed on the United Press' second team All-Southern and on the Associated Press' third team.

Tommy Powers, one of Duke's best all around athletes, earned a United Press honorable mention. Against the University of Richmond Powers tied the national record for touchdowns in a single game with six tallies.

Souchak, pursued by three Gamecocks, headed goalward after hauling in one of Cox's passes. Later, on a brilliant end-around play, he waltzed into the end zone to clinch a 14-0 win.

Wallace Wade's Duke University Blue Devils, shooting for the stars that bathed them in a pre-war glow, capitalized on a fumble right at the start and then drove sixty-seven yards for another touchdown early in the third period to score a 14-0 decision over South Carolina's Gamecocks.

A fumble on the first play of the game was recovered by Blaine Earon, Duke's great defensive end, on the South Carolina fifteen. Jack Mounie hit the Carolina middle four times and the fourth was a touchdown. Souchak added the point.

The Blue Devils took the kickoff to open the third quarter and went all the way with the passes of their brilliant back, Billy Cox, the big weapon. The TD came on a sparkling end-around by Mike Souchak. Souchak again kicked good and the final score was 14-0.

Following a futile Duke field goal attempt, Sichko picked up the ball and the Panthers soon had the game tied up again. Cox then wound up, hit end Ceep Youmans four times, and Mounie bulled over from the one. Duke halfback Bob Bickel then intercepted a Panther pass and scored the final TD with a sixty yard run.

Duke's Blue Devils stormed to their second victory with a rousing second half offensive show to trim Pittsburgh 28-14.

Wingback Tom Powers was on the receiving end of touchdown tosses by tailbacks Billy Cox and Glenn Wild. Captain Cox with his valuable arm set up another score which was climaxed by fullback Mounie smashing over from the one.

After a scoreless first half, the crowd of 25,000 was jarred into life as Panther Bill Sichko returned Ray Green's kickoff eighty-five yards for a Pitt touchdown. Tennessee's Volunteers stormed the citadel of the Dukes with a vicious, inspired sixty minutes of football to topple Wallace Wade's Blue Devils from the nation's undefeated ranks with a roaring 28-7 triumph.

The sharpshooters from the mountains of Eastern Tennessee unloaded both barrels just two minutes after the second period opened. Lauricella drifted back on second down, faked a pass, and then tore sixty-two yards down the right sidelines for the first of four Vol TD's.

Just when it appeared that Wallace Wade would see one of his teams absorb its worst defeat, the Blue Devils came to life. Cox pitched one aerial to Ceep Youmans for a first down. Smith, on a reverse, went to the ten and Cox followed with another pass to Youmans on the two. Cox fought his way through tackle for the six pointer, and Souchak added the extra point.

The Vol's air tight defense and rugged blocking proved the deciding factor, while Cox on offense and Earon on defense were unquestionably Duke's standouts.

Duke's aerial minded Blue Devils completed twenty-two of thirty-six passes tried here for almost two hundred yards, but in the end had to grind twenty-three yards through a fighting-mad N. C. State line for the fourth period touchdown that decided the game. A Homecoming Day crowd of 18,000 fans saw fullback Jack Mounie rip through the middle from five yards out to pave the way for the Blue Devils' hard earned 7-0 victory.

Since both teams had numerous scoring opportunities, no one gave it a second thought when the Blue Devils landed the ball at the State twenty-three on a pass interception by Bill Keziah. Cox skirted left end for twelve yards and then pushed off tackle twice to the State five. Mounie cracked through center for the only score, and Souchak added the extra point.

Cox's passing was the offense show for the Blue Devils. He completed his first six passes. Cox caught end Ceep Youmans for most of the yardage gained in the air.

They observed "Tom Powers Day" here this afternoon. It was not a planned ceremony, but before the day was over the crowd was on its feet cheering.

Powers scored all of Duke's touchdowns—six to be exact—as the Blue Devils defeated the University of Richmond 41-0. It seemed to make little difference how he scored them, so he tallied three on the ground and three by passing.

While Powers was stealing the show, he did not do it all. Earon, Cavanaugh, and Keziah were terrific.

Billy Cox, Duke's passing wizard, broke his own record for yards gained passing in a single season. He completed six of twelve to push his passing yardage to 872 and still has five games to go.

It was simply a matter of "All Duke" today. Richmond was never in the ball game. Duke—or Powers—evened it up by scoring three in the first half and three in the second half.

Old unlucky number thirteen came up and hit Duke's place kicker Mike Souchak. After kicking twelve straight, Souchak missed the thirteenth, but was successful with his last attempt against the Spiders.

A Richmond passer is thwarted by Anderson, Leach and Cavanaugh, who swamped him far behind the line. As the stands indicate, the game was played before a capacity crowd.

The University of Maryland, energized by a brilliant split-T running attack, methodically marched to a comfortable lead, then withstood a smothering Duke attack to score a 26-14 victory over the Blue Devils.

Maryland's Shemonski scored the first TD on a five-yard end sweep, then scampered forty-four yards on a beautiful cutback for another. Petruzzo hit right tackle for one six pointer and on the last play of the game romped forty yards with an intercepted pass which kept the final score from being 19-11—a score which was more indicative of the conflict.

For Duke it was Billy Cox again who was virtually the entire offense—Cox, that is, and three terrific pass-receivers in the persons of Ceep Youmans, Mike Souchak, and Tom Powers.

Souchak's best reception scored Duke's first touchdown and put the Devils into a short-lived 7-6 advantage.

Powers' interception started Duke's final touchdown march. Cox's passes to Souchak and Youmans lauded the ball on the Terp's six. One pass play and three Monnie bucks registered six more for the Devils. Monnie blasting over from the one, Souchak added the point and that was all for the Devils.

The Blue Devil line, led by J. F. Gibson, Anderson, and Lawrence, many times forced Maryland's powerful ground attack to bog down, but could not stop it.

A courageous Duke team was knocked flat on its face with a twenty-one point Georgia Tech knockout punch in the first eight minutes of play, but rose from the turf to battle back to a 30-21 win in one of the most spectacular football games ever played in this stadium.

A crowd of 30,000 was stunned by three quick thrusts which gave the Yellow Jackets a 21-0 edge after eight minutes and fifty-five seconds of play.

But brilliant Billy Cox and his determined teammates had other ideas. They got back into contention with sixteen points in the second quarter and then administered their own knockout blow with two fourth period touchdowns against the tiring invaders from Georgia.

Wearing his customary number eighty-two, Mike Souchak, the Blue Devils' old faithful in the conversion department, is caught in the act of splitting the uprights for about the umpteenth time.

As Bobby Dodd, coach of the Techmen, said, "It was one of the finest comebacks I have ever seen." Thirty thousand exhausted spectators will agree with him.

A hard hitting Wake Forest team proved better mudders than Duke, and the Demon Deacons drove to an exciting 13-7 win over the Blue Devils in cold, raw weather before 25,000 shivering fans.

Duke appeared to be in good running form as the game opened. Bounding Billy Cox dashed sixteen yards to the Wake thirty after the kickoff, but the Deacs braced and held. The Deacons took over on their own thirty-one and marched sixty-nine yards for the first score, Scarton scoring from the seven. Blackerby missed the extra point and the Deacs led 6-0.

But the doughty Dukes came right back to get in the ball game going sixty-nine yards themselves to duplicate the Deacons feat. The drive started with a sixteen yard kickoff return by Field. A long pass from Cox to Mounie was good for fifty yards to the Wake ten.

On the next play, Smith circled left end for the score and Souchak made it 7-6 for the Dukes.

Play then grew wild. A Cox pass was intercepted on the Wake twenty-nine, but on the next play Earon recovered a Deacon fumble on the thirty-two. The Dukes failed to gain and attempted a field goal. After exchanging punts, the Deacons started a drive on their own forty-seven which ended with Lewis scoring on a Davis pass. Blackerby made good his kick and that was the end of the game—Wake Forest 13—Duke 7.

Duke 7 W. Forest 13

While their teams were writing a cold and soggy chapter of the traditional Duke-Wake Forest football rivalry, the Blue Devil and the Demon Deacon carried on a playful battle of their own.

Despite the bad weather, the Wake Forest majorettes persevere, and strut before the rain-bedraggled spectators who remained to see the Deacons beat out the Blue Devils by a 13-7 score.

The Techmen managed to keep the hard rushing Duke line out long enough to get away this pass, but it did them no good. Bill Keziah, sophomore line backer, rushed over to break up the attempted toss while Carey, entangled with a Gobbler, gazed on.

Wearing No. 44 instead of the familiar 17, Billy Cox breaks into the secondary leaving one Gobbler behind. A well-thrown block by guard Don Knotts shook the Duke star away for a long gain.

Duke's Blue Devils opened with a touchdown and closed with a touchdown in disposing of Va. Tech in routine fashion 17 to 6 in Winston-Salem this afternoon.

Playing strictly in warm-up manner, the Blue Devils had everything their own way from the opening kick-off until the final gun. The Gobblers came to life only one time—that in the second period when they marched for their one and only touchdown.

Piney Field lit the fuse on the first play and snuffed it out on the last with touchdowns. The flashy sophomore went ninety-two yards for the first one and four yards for the second.

Bill Cox, Duke's old reliable, scored once himself and passed to Self and Souchak for two more.

Duke 7 North Carolina 0

A gambling fourth-down pass with seven yards to go for a first-and-ten brought Duke its first football victory over North Carolina in five years this sub-freezing afternoon in Kenan Stadium. The score was 7-0.

Captain Billy Cox, brilliant Duke senior, called a pass from the Carolina thirty-four yard line shortly after the second half got under way and then whipped a scoring aerial to wingback Tommy Powers. Mike Souchak added the extra point from placement.

The courageous Blue Devils rose to great heights to stop no less than seven Carolina thrusts into Duke territory. It was the Duke line which turned the tide. It stopped Carolina on the Duke twenty-two and sixteen in the first half and threw back Tarheel advances to the Duke four, seven, twenty, and twenty-four in the second half. The statistics favored the Tarheels, but when the chips were on the table they couldn't cash in.

Cox called the play which decided the closely-fought struggle. Instead of kicking on the fourth down at the Carolina thirty-four, Cox caught the opposition by surprise when he dropped back to pass. Behind good protection, he spotted Tom Powers behind Dick Bunting. Powers hauled in the pigskin and rambled into the end zone with the only score of the cleanly-fought battle.

This could only be Autumn.

It's more than the game. It's the weekly mecca of the devoted followers pouring into the stadium.

Rain or shine they're there. It's an attitude of mind.

A sensation that comes over people, seizes their motions and imaginations and then vanishes, leaving only faint traces that you can't see or touch.

As temporary as an empty flask or the voice you can't yell with anymore.

It's all part of what we call football.

Forward Bill Fleming goes up for a one-handed jump shot to keep the Blue Devils in the game. Played in the Duke Indoor Stadium against the Gamecocks of South Carolina, the contest was decided in the closing seconds by Captain Scotty York's successful set shot.

Prospects for a better-than-average hoop season appear good as Harold Bradley assumes coaching duties.

Basketball

Dick Groat, high scorer of the Duke team and All-American candidate, dribbles around two U. N. C. players in a game during the Dixie Classic. The Blue Devils won the cage contest.

Football still held the center of attraction when Coach Jerry Gerard called the first basketball practice. Hopes ran high of bettering last season's 15-15 record, but the loss of such stellar performers as "Ceep" Youmans, Tommy Hughes, and Dave Scarborough posed a serious problem. Scotty York was slated to lead this year's quint as Captain and was backed up by such stars as Dick Groat, pre-season All-American, Dayton Allen, 6'7" center, Dick Crowder, Jim Kulpan, and Bill Fleming.

A serious blow was dealt the Blue Devils when Coach Gerard was forced to give up his basketball duties because of illness. He was replaced by Harold Bradley who brought with him an enviable small college record. Bradley's teams at Hartwick College had compiled fifty wins in sixty-eight games and had played such schools as Long Island University, Buffalo University, and the University of Massachusetts.

Coach Bradley and his Blue Devils journeyed to Winston-Salem to meet Hanes Hosiery in the season's opener. The Dukesters showed promise as they downed the Hosiery lads 76-71. Dick Groat lived up to his pre-season press notices as he bagged thirty-one points. Crowder was second high for the Devils with fifteen, while Dave Greer led the opposition with twenty-three. Duke controlled the game all the way and served notice that they would be contenders in the Southern Conference race.

The McCrary Eagles were next on the Devils' list and went down 60-72. The first half was evenly fought, but Duke poured on steam in the second to again take control of the game. John Engberg was high for the Dukesters with fifteen points, but was closely followed by Groat and York with fourteen. Crowder and Allen pushed in ten apiece in the evenly fought contest.

Duke met its first college opposition at Norfolk when they faced the University of Virginia. Again the Blue Devils showed their speed and ability as they downed the Virginians 77-57. Groat poured in twenty points and brought his three game total to sixty-six. Dayton Allen pushed through fourteen markers as the impressive Devils downed the Cavaliers.

From Norfolk the Bradley quint traveled to Lexington, Virginia to hand the Keydets of V.M.I. a 73-61 loss. Groat again paced the Devil attack, this time with twenty-seven points as Duke sank fifty per cent of their floor shots. Recher scored twenty points for V.M.I., while Engberg and Crowder pumped in ten apiece.

The next night the Devils met the Keydets' next door neighbors. The Generals of Washington and Lee found it difficult to keep up in the second half and went down 69-97. The Generals led seven minutes after the game started 32-21, but at halftime it was tied at 43-43. After the intermission the Devils began hitting and jumped to a 50-43 advantage. From then on it was all Duke. Groat enjoyed his best night of the early season as he hit the hoops for thirty-four points. Crowder closely trailed Groat with twenty-seven.

Three days before Christmas the Devils were in the nation's Capital facing George Washington. The Dukesters crushed G. W.'s hopes of an upset as they posted their sixth straight win, 70-67. It was nip and tuck most of the way with the Big Blue holding a 40-33 halftime advantage. G. W. pulled up to 67-68, but Allen dropped in a two-pointer which clinched the contest as Duke froze the ball for the last sixty seconds. Groat again led the Devils with twenty-one points.

On December twenty-third, Duke faced the nation's number one team. The Bradley Braves handed the Devils their first loss of the season 58-93. Bradley led all the way as they posted their eleventh straight win, but it was Dick "The Great" Groat who took scoring honors with twenty-six points.

The Dixie Classic opened at Raleigh on December 28th, as Duke faced Colgate in the first round. The Devils, still suffering from their loss to Bradley, dropped the contest 69-84. Captain Scotty York led the Blue Devil cause with seventeen markers, followed by Groat with sixteen and Allen with fourteen. The Devils trailed by three points at halftime, 37-40, but the Colgate lads came back sizzling and determined after the intermission.

Duke got back in the win column by virtue of a 71-63 win over the Tarheels of U.N.C. The contest was a thriller all the way as the lead changed hands sixteen times. It was 35-35 at halftime. Groat paced the Devils with twenty-three points, and sophomore Kes Deimling was second high with sixteen.

In the last day of the tourney, Duke went up against Tulane in the consolation finals. After trailing by twenty-nine points at halftime, the Blue Devils put on one of the greatest comebacks ever seen to win 74-72. Again it was Dick Groat who paced the Devil attack as he bucketed thirty-two points. Groat dumped in ten consecutive points to tie the score at 72-72. Dayton Allen pushed in the final two points to give Duke the win.

As expected N. C. State won the classic, but Dick Groat was high man for the tourney with seventy-one points. State's Ranzino was second with sixty-five.

The first day in 1951 found Coach Bradley and the Blue Devils in Buffalo, New York, facing Canisius. Canisius brought an eight and ten record into the game and had added another win when the contest ended. Duke came out on the short end of a 57-69 score. Groat had one of his worst nights, but was still high for the Blue Devils with eleven markers. Sharp, Canisius' center, took scoring honors with nineteen.

From Buffalo the Bradleymen journeyed to Philadelphia to meet Pennsylvania. Penn handed Duke its fourth loss of the season by a 76-85 count. The Penn lads put on a first half scoring rampage and then coasted to the upset victory. Groat and Kulpan led the Devils with twenty-three and fifteen points respectively.

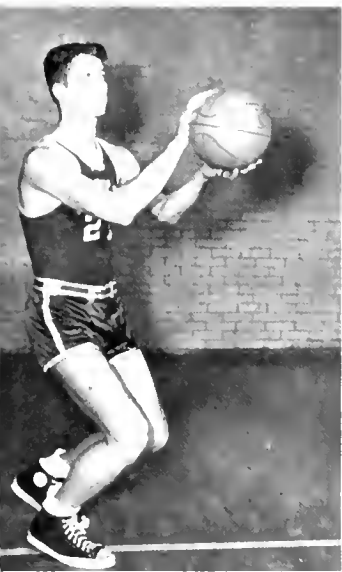

On January sixth, the Devils met N. C. State in the first home game of the season. In the much-publicized scoring duel between Groat and Ranzino, State was forced to go into overtime before downing the Big Blue 71-77. It was a wide open contest all the way with the score being knotted 67-67 at the end of the regulation game. The Wolfpack sizzled off to a 19-5 lead in the first eleven minutes, but the halftime score stood 26-32 for State. The Devils tied it 36-36 and surged ahead 67-59 with six minutes left. started hitting, and Brandenburg tied it up 67-67 with a field goal. While the Big Blue only got four points in the overtime period, State came through with ten to take the game 71-77. Dick Groat bettered Ranzino in their personal duel by four points -36-32.

the Devils met the South Carolina Gamecocks. South Carolina, led by Slaughter, six foot eleven center, held a 50-35 lead with six minutes remaining. The Devils finally settled down and surged ahead 53-57 on a long shot by Latimer. Cox of South Carolina made one of two free throws to tie it up. With ten seconds left, Captain Scotty York let go a long set shot which brought the Blue Devils a 60-58 victory. Slaughter led the scoring with thirty-four points followed by Groat with twenty-one.

The Blue Devils, now known as the "Comeback Kids," met West Virginia on January thirteenth. This time it was Groat versus Workman, the high-scoring West Virginia center who stood second in the nation in total points. Duke took the game 77-73 after trailing four points at half-time and eight points two minutes after the second half began. The win gave Duke a five to one conference record. Groat again walked off with the scoring honors and led Workman by six points - 23-22. The big center fouled out with three minutes left. Crowder added eighteen to the Devil total.

In the last game before exams the Indians of William and Mary upset the favored Blue Devils 57-74. Indian Bill Chambers was high scorer of the contest with twenty-seven points. Groat was below his average with sixteen, while Fleming was second high for the Devils with twelve. Allen also pushed in ten points. The Blue Devils scored only fourteen field goals in the entire game.

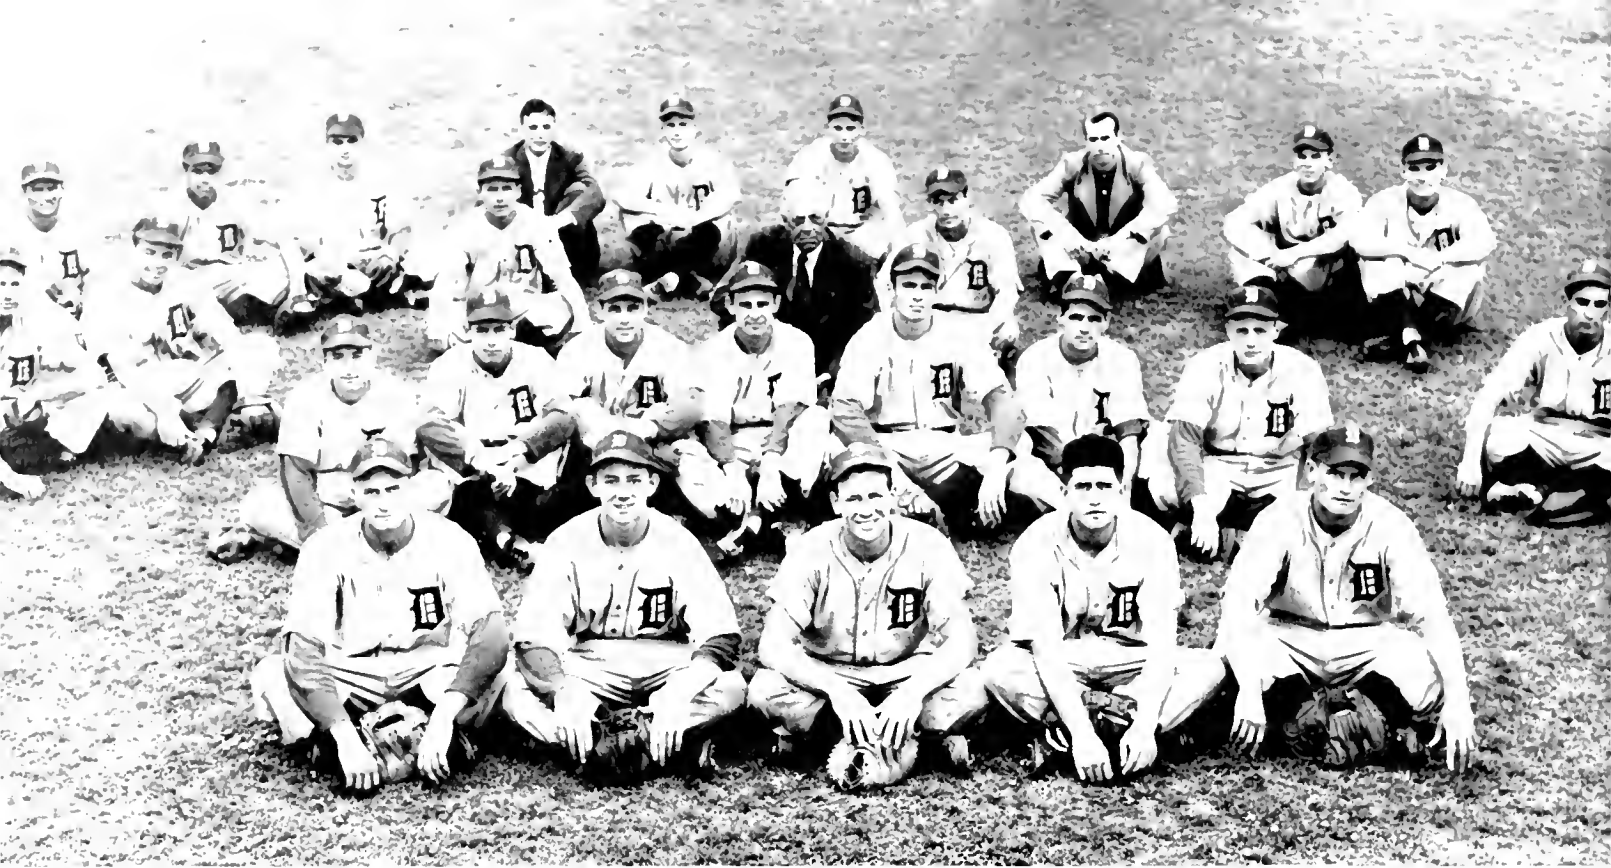

The Duke's suffered their third Southern Conference set-back at the hands of Wake Forest. Although the Blue Devils held a 32-27 halftime advantage, the Deacons caught fire in the last ten minutes to win 56-65. The individual high scorer for the game was Wake's Geary, who bucketed seventeen points. Groat and Crowder were high for the Devils with fourteen and ten points.

Duke ran up their highest score of the campaign when they dumped Davidson 90-68. Dick Groat scored thirty-seven points in the contest, running his total for the season to 406, a new Duke Stadium record. He also broke the old Duke Stadium record of thirty-six points for a single game and the Southern Conference record for free throws for a single game by scoring seventeen points. York and Crowder were outstanding.

At the completion of the Dixie Basketball Classic in Raleigh, Scotty York is presented the consolation trophy by the queen.

Baseball

As the old familiar cry, "Play ball," started to ring out in the spring training camps, Coach Jack Coombs called his baseballers together to assemble another Blue Devil squad worthy of the tradition set by previous teams. The season of 1919 was the first time in the long, successful career of "Collie Jack" Coombs that one of his aggregations had finished below the .500 mark. Thus it was that the pre-season outlook wasn't too bright. With the return of only five regulars from last year's team and the loss of Dick Groat, who promised to be something of a sensation at shortstop, the problems confronting the Duke mentor were quite serious. The unusually long thirty game schedule included three inter-sectional opponents—Georgia, Yale, and Navy.

It was, however, with high spirits that the 1950 Blue Devil baseball team embarked on a six-day road trip against Georgia, Davidson, and the University of South Carolina. Their first stop was for a two-game series with the Georgia Bulldogs, and the Dogs were ferocious indeed as they twice left the Devils on the short end of a 10-3 score. Brandon Davis had two for four in the opener, and John Hancock had two for five in the second tilt. The first contest with Davidson was highlighted by Davis' inside-the-park home run and found Duke taking its initial conference win of the season by a 9-8 score. The Wildcats, however, got revenge on the following day with a convincing 17-6 victory. In the following two-game series with the Gamecocks of South Carolina, Norm Benfer received credit for the opener, Duke winning 7-1; but the second fracas found the two teams battling to a 5-5 tie, which was called after ten innings due to darkness.

For six innings it seemed that the Blue Devils would have a successful home debut, but then the Yale Bulldogs went wild to take an 8-5 decision. The following afternoon was decidedly different as Norm Benfer showed a hopping fast ball and a beautiful curve to silence the bats of the Ivy League toes and register a 4-2 win.

April fifth found West Virginia visiting the Methodist Flats. Frank Graham, behind the twelve-hit assault of his teammates, curve-balled a 9-3 win in the opener. Scoring seven times in the fourth inning, the Devils made it two in a row with a 9-5 conquest. N. C. State's powerful Wolfpack put a 5-2 licking on the Dukesters on April eighth. Trailing by one run going into the ninth, the Devils were able to put men on second and third with none out, but couldn't push them across as the Tarheels from Carolina edged a 3-2 decision.

Blue" took its seventh victory of the season. Frank Graham pitched a smooth five-hitter. Brandon Davis drove in five runs, and LeRoy Sires contributed three hits, as Navy was handed an 11-0 shellacking. The Gamecocks won the third encounter of the two clubs 8-6, but in the following contest LeRoy Sires used his fourth hit of the afternoon to score Tom Powers from third, enabling his team to take a twelve-inning 5-4 victory. The old story of "Too Much Moe Bauer" held true as the great Wake Forest pitcher spun a 5-0 shut-out on April 19. The next day found a three-run double in the seventh inning by Frank Dale breaking up a beautiful pitching duel as N. C. State went on to win 4-2.

With revenge as their slogan, the Blue Devils backed Bud Ayers' mound performance and humbled their Tarheel neighbors with a 12-3 defeat. The game on the following afternoon was played to a different tune as N. C. State hung a 10-2 shellacking on the baseballers from Durham. A 16-5 victory made the Devils' stay at Davidson on April 27 a pleasant one, but the next tilt found them succumbing to a 12-3 defeat at the hands of Wake Forest.

Probably the biggest upset of the season in conference competition came when the underdog Devils handed the Demon Deacons a 7-2 beating. As a final blow LeRoy Sires hit a three-run homer off the great "Moe" Bauer.

Even though Bud Ayers held the Wolfpack in check for seven innings, the conference leaders came through with a 7-1 triumph on May 5.

Bergeron, Falwell, and Sires each had two hits in a losing cause as Wake Forest took an 8-1 win. Davidson, steadily becoming known as Duke's "favorite cousins," was again defeated, this time by an 8-1 score. Brandon Davis beat out three safeties at the plate and also stole three bases. The Devils were again unable to hang on to a lead as Carolina's Tarheels came from behind in the final frame to notch a 6-5 victory.

The following two games found the Blue Devils victims of a one-hitter from Wake Forest; then of the first no-hit, no-run game in Big Four history pitched by Carolina's Bill McGinn.

On a lone tally in the bottom half of the ninth, N. C. State eked out a 5-1 victory; and in the final game of the season Bud Ayers lost a heartbreaking four-hitter to Carolina 2-0.

At the completion of the season the 1950 Blue Devils had won 11, lost 18, and tied 1. For his outstanding backstop performance, LeRoy Sires won the catcher's position on the All Southern Conference team and on the Big Four All Stars. Bill Bergeron was awarded a utility infielder's position on the Big Four team.

Although the season was only a mediocre one, fans were provided with some thrilling baseball and could foresee a bigger and better future for the 1951 season.

opened their season by entering the Florida Relays. Henry Poss took the only first place for the Blue Devils with a broad jump of 22'11". No team score was compiled, but the Duke's placed third in the sprint medley race and also in the high jump. Jim O'Leary brought home a fourth place in the shot-put and discus, and Tommy Reeves did the same in the 120-yard high hurdles. The Devil two-mile relay team also placed fourth.

The Blue Devils then met the University of Florida at Gainesville in the first of eight dual meets and dropped the contest 59-67. O'Leary was high for the Devils with two firsts, one in the shot-put and one in the discus events. Other firsts went to Nichols in the high jump, Grisso in the 440, and Poss in the broad jump.

From Gainesville, the Duke trackmen traveled over to Miami to meet the University of Miami. The Dukesters dropped this one 48-78. Jim O'Leary repeated his performance against Florida by again taking firsts in the shot-put and discus. Other Duke firsts went to Marshall in the mile run, Poss in the broad jump, and Reeves in the 220-yard low hurdles.

Back in Durham on April 5th, the Blue Devils dropped their third straight to the Princeton Tigers.

Led by sophomore Henry Poss and Co-Captains Tommy Reeves and Jim O'Leary, the Blue Devil thin clads took three of eight dual meets and placed second to U.N.C. in the Southern Conference during the 1950 season. The Duke trackmen, coached by Bob Chambers and H. M. "Red" Lewis, went through the longest track season in the school's history downing Camp Lejeune, N. C. State, and William and Mary. Henry Poss, dash man and broad jumper, led the Duke team with 101 points prior to the Southern Conference meet. This total set a new record for Duke, breaking Tommy Reeves' last year total of 100.

After staying within striking distance of the Tigers most of the way, and leading at one time, the Devils entered the last event needing a first place to tie. However, the Princeton mile-relay team had what was needed to lock up the meet 70¹/₂-60¹/₂. Henry Poss put on a brilliant scoring show with fifteen points. He placed first in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and in the broad jump. Reeves was close behind with eleven points and O'Leary, running true to form, again captured firsts in the shot-put and discus. Nichols and Connor brought home two more firsts for the Devils in the high jump and pole vault respectively.

Henry Poss, one of Duke's ace track men, is caught just before he breaks the tape, far ahead of his nearest competitor. A home meet, the event took place on the track in the Duke stadium.

The Duke thin-clads finally hit the win column by virtue of a rousing 100-31 win over the Leathernecks of Camp Lejeune. Poss brought his total to fifty points by again taking three first places and was followed by Bullock, Reeves, and O'Leary with two victories apiece. The Devils placed first in every event except two and placed second in both of those. The Blue Devil mile relay team also ran in top form and brought in five additional points with the winning time of 3:35.

In Raleigh on April 22, the Blue Devils met and trounced State 86-10. Poss, hitting his stride, again took the 100 and 220-yard dashes and the broad jump. Co-captains Reeves and O'Leary were close behind with eleven and ten points each. Poss posted a 9.6 for the century dash to tie the State and Southern Conference marks. Nichols, Connor, Austin, and Bullock also took firsts for the Blue Devils.

After the State victory, the Duke trackmen journeyed to Charlottesville, Virginia, for the season's lone triangular meet against U. V. A. and William and Mary. Poss, whose name had become synonymous with fifteen points, again took three firsts in his specialties, the 100 and 220 dashes and the broad jump. Reeves brought in thirteen and reliable Jim O'Leary again took the discus and shot-put. Grisso, Bullock, and Nichols also brought in one five pointer each.

On April 28th the famous Penn Relays opened, and Coach Bob Chambers took five Blue Devils up to compete for the honors. Poss, Reeves, Connor, Marshall, and O'Leary entered the competition, but O'Leary was Back in the Tobacco Town after the Penn Relays, the Blue Devils met a spirited Annapolis team and lost the meet 58-73. Although the Middies got the bulk of the points, the Devils came through with two brilliant first places. Tommy Reeves bested the twelve-year-old 220-yard low hurdle mark for Duke Stadium with the time of 23.3 seconds, and Henry Bullock equalled the seventeen-year-old half mile mark with the time of 1:55.6. Henry Poss and Jim O'Leary took two firsts each and Frank Nichols took another with a high jump of 6'21 1/4". Tommy Reeves also took first place in the 120-yard high hurdles with the time of fifteen seconds.

By compiling 101 points throughout the season Henry Poss broke a conference record.

The following week Durham was invaded by U.N.C.'s Tarheels, the defending Southern Conference Champions, and the Tarheels won: 89¹/₂-11¹/₂. Before the meet, Duke's one-two-three punch of Poss, Reeves, and O'Leary had accounted for 239 Devil points and Poss needed eight points to break Reeves' last year total of one hundred. O'Leary was high for the Dukesters with his usual two firsts and Poss capped the 220-yard dash and a second in the broad jump for the necessary eight points. Connor, the Devils' pole vault specialist, took another first for Duke with a leap of thirteen feet. Albans, the U.N.C. star, walked off with the honors by smashing two Duke Stadium records and scoring nineteen points.

In the annual Southern Conference meet, the Blue Devils placed second for the second straight year behind the Tarheels of U.N.C. O'Leary was the only Duke double winner with firsts in his two specialties, the shot-put and discus. Reeves also accounted for ten of the Devil points with a second in the low hurdles and a third in both the broad jump and high hurdles. Connor took first in the pole vault and Nichols tied Albans for third in the high jump to round out the 1950 season.

Four Blue Devil trackmen turned in record-shattering performances. Henry Poss tied the Duke 100-yard dash record with the time of 9.6 seconds; Tommy Reeves established a new 220-yard low hurdles mark of 23.3 seconds; John Connor pole vaulted 13 feet 6¹/₂ inches for a new record; and Henry Bullock tied the old 880-yard mark with the time of 1:55.6 seconds.

Coach Jack Person's 1950 edition of the Blue Devil lacrosse team ended the season with a record of five wins against four losses. The Blue Devil stickmen dropped contests to Navy and Johns Hopkins, two of the nation's best clubs, and also to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and to Maryland.

In the season's opener against Williams College, last year's veteran, Rod Boyce, led the Blue Devils to a 12-6 win with four goals. He was closely followed by Eisenbrandt with three and Corrigan with two.

Four days later the powerful Devils outclassed Delaware by a 22-5 count. This time it was Peacock who stole the show with five goals.

The Big Blue suffered their first defeat of the season against Navy in a closely fought contest. The Middies fought off a desperate Duke rally to win 9-10.

The Blue Devils came back with two victories before dropping into a mid-season slump. The Dukesters won over Washington and Lee 8-3 and over Williams College 8-4. Boyce scored three goals against the Generals and three against Williams to pace the Devils in these two contests.

In Troy, New York, the Big Blue dropped their first of three straight set-backs to R.P.I. by a score of 6-8. Johns Hopkins extended their victory string to twenty-seven straight as they downed the Devils 5-12, and Maryland came out with an 8-10 advantage. Duke held a 6-4 lead over Maryland, but the Terps rallied in the fourth period to take the the contest.

In the season's last encounter, Boyce led the Blue Devils to an 11-8 win over the University of Virginia. Boyce scored three goals as the victory brought Duke the Dixie championship for the second straight year.

Duke University's 1950 tennis team successfully completed the most ambitious and the longest schedule in their history. Competition was provided by some of the best teams from the South, East, and Midwest. Led by their number one player and captain, Lew McMasters, the Duke netters won thirteen out of an eighteen game schedule. They suffered decisive defeats only at the hands of Rollins, Florida, Virginia, and the Southern Conference champions, Davidson.

After soundly trouncing Michigan State twice by the same score of 8-1, Coaches Johnny Hendrix, tennis professional, and Bob Cox piloted the squad to two wins over Stetson and Florida Southern. Rollins and Florida, however, scored victories over the team on the southern trip.

Five one-sided triumphs over Williams, Presbyterian, Kalamazoo, Georgia Tech, and Cincinnati were mixed in with losses to Davidson, Virginia, and North Carolina. The North Carolina contest was not decided until the final match when the Tarheels eeked out a win in the number three doubles for a 5-4 victory.

The Blue Devils closed out the season with impressive wins over North Carolina State, Wake Forest, Navy, and William and Mary. The Indians' defeat was their first loss in their last four years of conference play.

Golf

Although Duke lost one of the best golfers the Southern Conference has ever seen, Art Wael, the Blue Devils came up with a fine team in 1950. Coach Hagler took his boys—Louis McLennan, Bailey Glenn, Tony Reed, Jim Pollock, Mike Souchak, Frank Hanes, and Jan Dawes—on a warm-up trip through the South during spring vacation. The linksters beat Camp Lejeune, the Citadel, the University of Florida; but they lost to Rollins College and Linnaea Country Club.

Back at Hope Valley, the Devils soundly trounced Harvard, Williams, Michigan, and Navy. They blanked Harvard and scored over twenty points in each match. Over at Raleigh, the Haglermen beat State 25-2, as Souchak led the way with his 68. But Wake Forest then beat the Duke team 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ -17 $\frac{1}{2}$ at Hope Valley, the match being decided on the eighteenth green. In the Devils' last two matches, they beat Davidson and Carolina. Lou McLennan, with a 67, beat Hill of Davidson and then beat Harvie Ward of Carolina 7-2. After four years at Carolina, Ward never beat a Duke golfer.

The Devils did not fare too well at Athens, Georgia, in the Southern Intercollegiate, but came in third at Winston-Salem in the Southern Conference as Wake Forest broke the record set in 1949 by Duke. McLennan was third with one over par for thirty-six holes. The biggest highlight of the year turned out to be Tony Reed's double eagle on No. 8 at the Hope Valley course.

The Duke University mermen, coached by Jack Persons, opened their season with a loss to the powerful North Carolina tankmen. Following this defeat, the Blue Devils trounced Davidson and William and Mary by decisive scores. In their first meet away from home, the Duke mermen made it three in a row when they topped V.P.I. 43-32.

As the yearbook goes to press, the Duke tankmen have high hopes of completing the 1951 season with only the one loss inflicted by the University of North Carolina.

The Blue Devil matmen, under the tutoring of Coach Carmen Falcone, have a win and a loss as the year-book goes to press. Although the season was late starting, the Duke grapplers are hopeful of a successful year.

Co-captains Bill Britt and Dick Harrison led their teammates to a 16-14 victory in the season's opener against Maryland. McMasters and Britt pinned their men in record time, while Gallagher and Harrison won by decisions.

The next match was at home against V.P.I. Although the Blue Devils fought hard, they lost 17-13. Gallagher, Harrison, McMasters, and Britt fought to decisions.

Following a rigorous exam schedule, the Falconemen began training for their remaining six encounters.

The Duke Cross Country team nears the end of the run in a dead heat. Do you suppose these harriers always enjoy their sport as much as the smiles on their faces would seem to indicate?

Three stalwarts of the cross country team, Bullock, Tate, and Spangler, jog along over the cross country course in a practice run. The course is in Duke Forest, behind the Freshman Field.

The Duke cross country team captured five of seven dual meets and ended up fifth in the Southern Conference to complete a highly successful season. Bettering last year's record of two wins and five losses in dual competition, the Duke harriers of 1950 lost only to Maryland and Navy.

Coached by H. M. "Red" Lewis, the Dukes got the season underway with a rousing 15-50 victory over the University of Virginia. The Blue Devils then put away Davidson with a 25-30 count and made it three in a row by defeating North Carolina State 22-33.

The Duke harriers won over U.N.C. by a 25-30 score before losing their first meet of the season. The powerful Terps of the University of Maryland defeated the Dukesters 31-21.

The Blue Devils bounced back from the Maryland loss with a smashing 15-46 victory over Georgia Tech. Four Duke runners, Widenhouse, Marshall, Varellan, and Sanders, tied for first place with a winning time of 21:39 for the 3.9 miles course.

The second Duke loss came at the hands of Navy. The Middies poured on the steam to defeat the Blue Devils 17-16 at Annapolis.

Duke entered the State Championship meet as the favored team but were upset by N. C. State 40-34. The Devils had beaten the Wolfpack earlier in the season but found the going rough on the State course.

Back at Raleigh a week later for the Southern Conference meet, the Blue Devils improved last year's standing of sixth place by placing fifth in the annual affair. The University of Maryland Terps dominated the meet by placing first for the fourth consecutive year.

Fourteen lettermen answered Coach Jim Bly's initial call for soccer practice, and hopes were high of bettering last year's record of three wins and five losses.

The Blue Devil kickers opened a seven game schedule against Richmond Professional Institute and took the contest by a 7-0 score. Strauch kicked three goals to lead the Devil offense.

Duke met N. C. State in the season's second encounter, and the game ended in a 1-1 tie. Mal Lindstrom booted in Duke's lone tally in the last sixty seconds of the game to deadlock the contest.

The Blue Devils dropped their first game of the campaign to the University of Maryland by a 1-4 count. Lindstrom was the only Dukester who could find the range as he kicked in Duke's single marker.

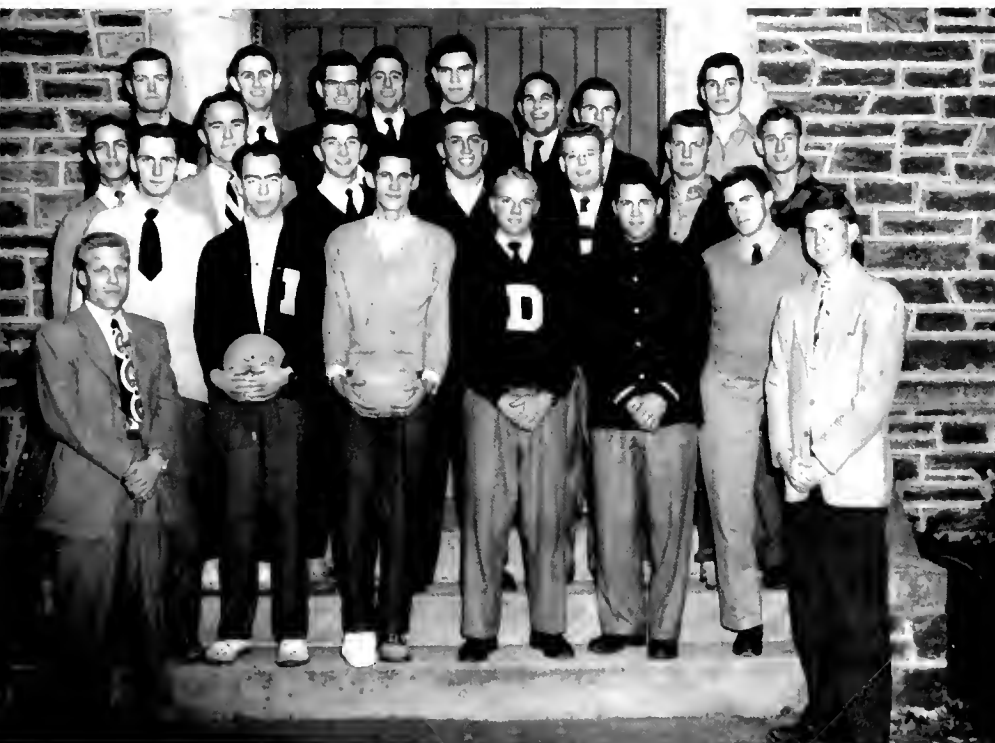

In a two game series with U.N.C., Duke won the first game 3-0, but the Tarheels retaliated by taking the second 0-1. Sophomore Bill Schaeffer was the star of the Duke win with two goals.

After the double encounter with the Tarheels, the Blue Devils met and defeated the University of Virginia. The Dukes were forced into an overtime before winning the contest 3-2. Lindstrom and Strauch led the Devils with two and one respectively.

In the season's finale, the Big Blue defeated Washington and Lee 1-1 to wind up with a record of four wins, two losses, and one tie. Strauch and Lindstrom led the Devils with two goals each in the final encounter.

With Strauch, Lindstrom, Schaeffer, as a backbone and many freshmen who have shown considerable promise returning next year, the soccer team is looking forward to an even more successful season.

Soccer is the one sport where the proverb, "use your head," comes in handy as demonstrated above in the mad scramble for the ball. Some of the players just stand and shake their heads.

Frosh Sports

Carrying the ball, a Duke Blue Imp is hit by two Clemson Frosh in an exciting home game. After piling up an early lead, the Duke Frosh stayed off a last minute rally to save the victory.

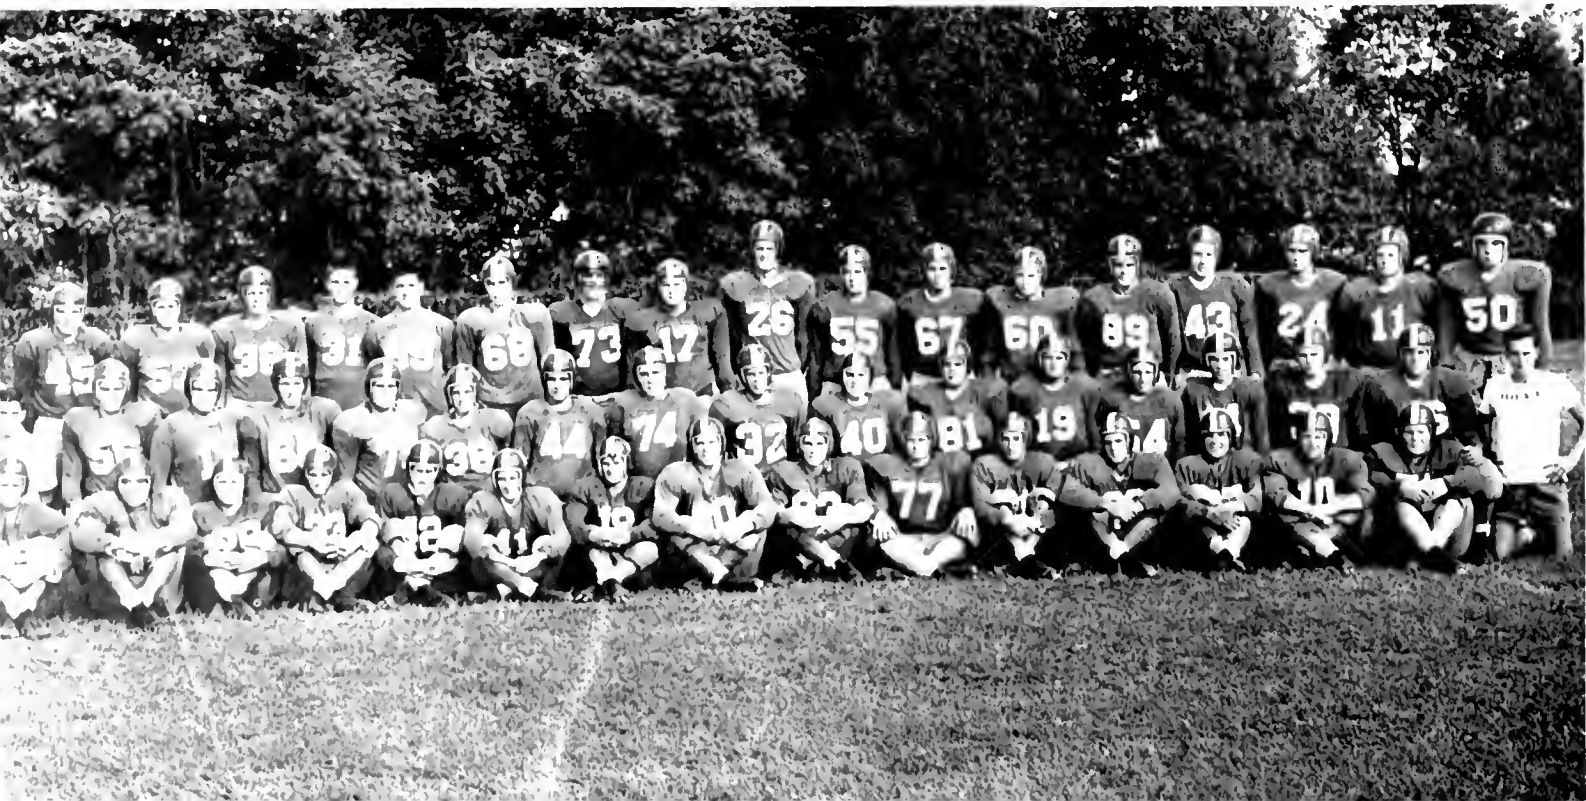

Although this picture presents a good view of both teams in action, it is rather difficult to prove that it was the Duke and Clemson Frosh. The only thing certain is the score at the time.

Maintained for the purpose of seasoning yearling athletes for varsity competition and providing the opportunity for talented frosh to distinguish themselves. Duke's Freshmen teams measure up to those of any school in the country. Last year, the Blue Imps of the track and tennis teams came through with an undefeated season, while the golf and baseball teams experienced few losses.

The yearling racquet men were helped along by Jim Chamberlain, Jerry Cates, and Tank Lawrence. With these men as spark plugs, they bettered all their opponents. Baseball and tennis were also star-studded. Joe Louis did most of the Blue Imp pitching and William Werber handled first base. Tennis boasted as its star player Keston Deimling, who was the former National Interscholastic champion.

In their first outing of the season, the Blue Imp footballers bowed to the Wake Forest Frosh by a 19-13 count. In the first half, Wake Forest completed a sixty yard pass and a six yard pass for their first touchdown. The Blue Imps hit their ends four times for 142 yards and two touchdowns. But at half time the score was tied at 13-13. Had it not been for the Deacons recovering a fumble deep in Duke territory in the last quarter, the Dukesters would certainly have tied them.

Duke Frosh teams often stand high in yearling competition.

The Blue Imps pulled what may have been the major upset of the year in Southern Conference freshman circles by soundly thrashing the Wolfcubs of N. C. State 19-0. Several Blue Imp linemen played outstanding games on defense, while diminutive Alex Kozma was the big gun on offense. Kozma ran back two punts for touchdowns. "Red" Smith, the only other Baby Blue player to score this year, got another counter at the end of a nice jaunt initiated by David Barrett's blocking a Wolfcub punt deep in State territory.

There are a host of players in the Imp line who should be breaking into the varsity line-up. Such boys as Howard Pitt, Ed Meadows, Bernie Jack, and Jimmy Redwine will be hard to keep on the bench next fall.

The Frosh soccer team shaped up quickly this year. Bill Holstein, Hector Riquezes, and Fernando Almeida have been impressive in practice thus far.

The Blue Imp cross country squad finished its season at the State meet by placing third to State and U.N.C. They had previously beaten the Tar Baby team but lost to the State Frosh twice by narrow margins.

The Freshman basketball team opened their season with a loss to Wake Forest. Although Duke led at the half 27-26, Bill Lyles scored seventeen points for the Baby Deacons to pace the win. Lacy of Duke scored eighteen. The Duke Freshman team handed Pfeiffer Junior College its first home loss of the year, 66-56. Vern Janicki led Duke with twenty-one points, and center Clayton Lacy bucketed twenty-two for the frosh.

The Imp Mermen have had two meets this year with as many wins. The spark-plugs of this year's team are Bates, Walske, Charm, and Beecham.

From below the dressing room floor issue screams and groans of the baby grapplers as Coach Carmen Falcone whips his freshman team into shape. These strenuous workouts paid off when they met V.P.I. and fought them to a standstill. Romondo, Fitchett, and Randall pinned their men, while Stone won by a decision.

Running on the track in the football stadium, Casey, Tate, and Bush, representing Duke's Freshmen, go over a low hurdle. The meet was with the Carolina Tar Babies.

In playing soccer it is customary to confine the uses of the feet to kicking the ball.

Intramural Sports

Through a wide program of intramural athletics, men who fail to make the varsity squads can enjoy competitive sports

Phi Delt Jim Ross fooled the SAEs with a quick kick. Although two of the opposition caught on to the tactics and attempted to block the punt, Ross succeeded in getting it away in time.

The Engineers and the Divinity students tangle in an intramural football skirmish. A star of the underdog team carries the ball around the end, aided by great blocking and interference.

Duke's 1950-1951 intramural sports program featured thrills, spills, and chills as freshmen, independents, and fraternities vied for the annual awards. The highly successful year was highlighted by exciting and close games in practically every branch of athletics.

In the spring contests the Sigma Chis walked off with the team championship in the swimming meet. Ed Eames, Sigma Chi, and Beta Joe Wilder turned in outstanding individual performances.

The badminton singles crown went to Jack Wamsley. Frank Wamsley and Dave Bain annexed the doubles title. All three are Phi Deltas.

Jack Kapchan, an independent, bested SAE Will Clardy for the handball singles. Duttweiler and Fari-nella, Phi Deltas, copped the doubles by defeating SAEs Clardy and Constantine.

Behind the left-handed pitching of Jim Stockslager, the ATO "A" team won the softball championship. Competition was keener in this sport than ever before as no team completed a perfect season.

murals along with a Big Four Sports Day in Raleigh. Delt Bob Silkett took the tennis singles from Don Perwein. Silkett teamed with Underwood to defeat Pi Kapps Villanueva and Sager for the doubles crown.

The horseshoe title went to Beta Ken Hayes. Independents Ward and Phillips won in the doubles competition. With the largest turnout in Duke history, the Sigma Chis captured the track team cup, nosing out the KAs. Widenhouse and Tom Powers were the individual stars. Duke was edged out of first place by State in the Big Four Sports Day. The Devils took one first, four seconds, and one third in losing to the host school.

Football took the spotlight after the summer vacation. The powerful KAs, Division I winners, defeated Delta Tau Delta, Division II winners, for the University Championship. It was the second consecutive year the KAs have won the crown.

KA Tommy Hughes defeated Bob Barefield for the fall tennis singles. Warden and Lott, Sigma Nus, went three sets in downing Pi Kapps Spivey and White. The

Delta Tau Delta's Duttweiler annexed the fall handball singles and teamed with Fraternity Brother Bob Farinella to capture the doubles. They defeated Tapley and Carlross for the championship.

A fast and furious race for the basketball title is in progress as the yearbook goes to press. Thus far this year the crown still looks open as a close race looms.

All-intramural back George Underwood, a Pi Kap, is stopped by the Delts in a touch football game that ended in a scoreless tie.

Two unsuccessful slaps at the ball by his opponents failed to keep this House "I" cageman from ringing up two more points.

Women's Sports

Doc LIPPERT, as President of the W.A.A. Board in her senior year, led Duke women on to more active participation in sports.

The Woman's Athletic Association started off the year with their annual Freshman Week picnic to acquaint the new students with the various sports activities offered to Duke women and to introduce the members of the board. The membership of W.A.A. includes all women registered in the undergraduate school, and the board is compiled of representatives from each dorm and the presidents of the different clubs. The officers of the board this year are: President, "Doc" Leeper; Vice-President, Sugie Micheal; Secretary, Beeps Ballard; and Corresponding Secretary, Joy Pentz.

Many opportunities are offered for individual as well as team sports. The East Campus pool is open most afternoons for coeds, and on Friday nights the girls may bring their dates over for a "mixed swim." On Thursday nights the Bowling Club meets for scheduled matches. On other nights the alleys are open to all the students. The tennis courts are available every afternoon.

Girls' basketball may not be as fast and furious as the boys' game, but the ballet-like group in this scene proves that it is just as graceful.

This bowling ball gets the far-famed lackadaisical treatment. — it's so easy, especially with a different shoe on each foot.

Among the major clubs on campus are Nereidian, the Modern Dance Club, Pegasus, and the Hockey Club. Nereidian, the swimming club, was established at Duke in 1938. In order to qualify for the club, prospective members must have completed a senior life-saving course. The girls are chosen for form, coordination in formation swimming, and the ability to synchronize their swimming to music. The outstanding event of the year for the Nereidians is the spring pageant. Last year the theme of their pageant centered around popular musical comedies. In this event the members of Nereidian displayed some fine diving and water ballet to appropriate background music.

Physical education is offered as a major subject for women who wish to qualify as full-time or part-time instructors of health and physical education. Majors receive instruction in recreational leadership, history and principles of physical education, organization and administration, and methods and materials. These girls teach, assist, and observe in classes on campus, and in several of the Durham schools.

The W.A.A. sponsors inter-dorm and inter-sorority tournaments in basketball, volleyball, and softball. There is also competition in swimming, badminton, golf, archery, and bowling, and Duke enters the National Telegraphic meets in archery and bowling.

An organization showing great promise is the Hockey Club. The members of this club practice once or twice a week in the fall, and play several intramural games.

A little "ground-sticks" routine takes place perilously near the goal in a field hockey scrimmage. The female stick-wielders play such an energetic game that shin-guards often are not adequate protection.

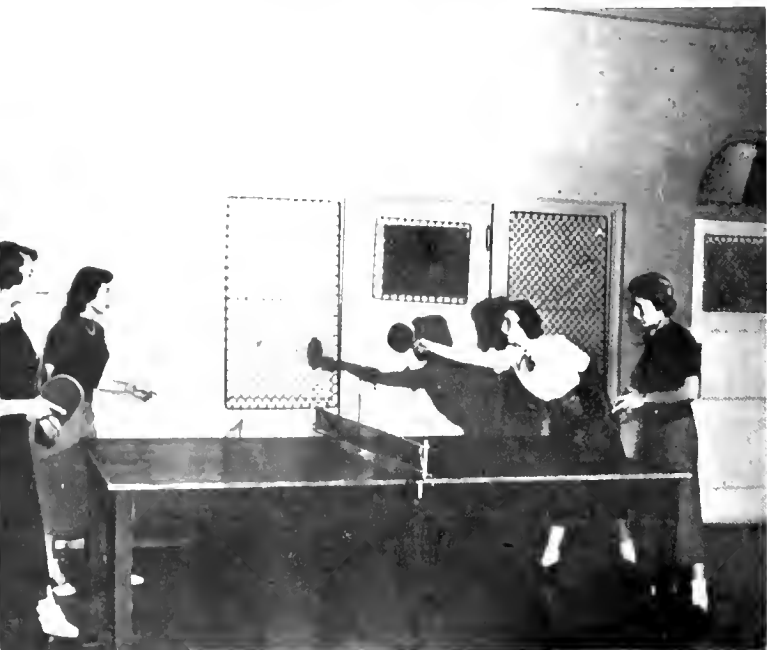

A blow like this and one never knows whether the ball will go over the net or in the basket. Volleyball takes over in indoor sports popularity when much maligned Durham weather takes over outside.

Give a man a horse," or a woman, for that matter. Two years ago Pegasus, the riding club, became inactive for lack of the aforesaid animals. This year the club was able to get back into step—all five gaits. There are twenty-five to thirty members of Pegasus, and new members are chosen in the spring and fall.

Time after time the W.A.A. has brought prominent people in the field of sports to the Duke Campus as lecturers, practical demonstrators, and exhibitionists.

Alice Marble came in the spring of 1950 to give a practical demonstration on tennis, and after her such sportsmen as Bobby Riggs and Jack Kramer.

This year the Duke W.A.A. had the honor of being the president school of the North Carolina Athletic Federation of College Women. Its purpose is to bring the state W.A.A.'s together to discuss, and possibly solve, general and individual problems that come up during the year. This fall Duke played host to over eighty delegates from eleven colleges and universities in North Carolina. The program included a general meeting, panel discussion groups on the problems that are faced by the Woman's Athletic Associations of today, an open business meeting, and an activity period. The day was topped off by a banquet for the delegates and a speech by Mrs. Lloyd C. Mostrum. Mrs. Mostrum, an Australian, spoke on sports in other countries and on the place of sports in the world today. As an epilogue to the N.C.A.F.C.W. Convention, Duke will send two delegates to the national convention which will be held in Michigan this spring. With the help of the conferences held by the state and national A.F.C.W., the Duke W.A.A. is able to provide and improve their wide and varied athletic and recreational program.

The Modern Dance Club aims at creative self-expression. Members must have had previous experience, or must have taken the preliminary course offered in the Physical Education Department. In addition to the fundamentals of the dance, the club offers experience in choreography and composition and stimulates appreciation of modern dance as a choric art. The members of the Modern Dance Club put on their own recitals, and act in collaboration with the Hoof 'n' Horn. Compositions range from folk dances to those of a religious nature, and students design costumes and stage settings necessary for the performances. Each year the dancers participate in the Arts Forum staged at Greensboro, North Carolina. There the dancers combine skill in athletics, art in presentation, dancing ability, originality, and expression through movement to present one composition. The Duke club has been well recognized by the Arts Forum during the past few years.

Honorarys

Preface to the Present

Despite a strict ban on hazing, the honoraries continued trying to out-do each other in originating elaborate and horrifying mock initiations for their new members.

Delta Phi Rho Alpha sponsored a rather rough event. The morning before Hell Night, the symbols of this women's athletic honorary, the rolling pin and the safety pin, were seen everywhere on campus. That evening the "goats" were led by halters into hidden regions. The only evidences the campus received of the form of the initiation were shrieks and screams and sounds of paddles issuing from the woods near Southgate.

The Order of the Tombs, an athletic fraternity for junior and senior lettermen, carried on their exhibition in downtown Durham.

The new initiates had to sweep the streets (some claimed it was no longer a one horse town), direct traffic, and play jazzy tunes with baby rattles fastened to their lace pantaloons.

Omicron Delta Kappa

A mysterious and colorful tapping ritual characterizes this secret order.

Students watch curiously as three hooded figures emerge from the realms of Page and proceed to a giant key in front of the Chapel. Names of half a dozen Duke student leaders are attached to the carved letters, Omicron Delta Kappa. Observers have witnessed another ceremony that accompanies tapping of outstanding undergraduates into Duke's famed leadership honorary.

ODK was founded in 1914 to give undergraduate men recognition for leadership and to bring the leaders of college life together. Initiations are held in the fall and spring when new candidates are selected from second semester juniors and seniors. With a membership of approximately sixteen students the chapter this year was headed by Tom Powers. Dean Cox is secretary, and Dr. Cleland acts as adviser. ODK distinguished itself this year by promoting harmony and coordination among various phases of Duke life.

Phi Kappa Delta

and leadership among Duke coeds

As the coeds pile out of a Monday night S.G.A. assembly early in the spring, they see a large, mock key brightly illuminated by two spotlights with a group of seniors dressed in white flanking either side of it. The girls crowd around this group to see the names of eighteen rising seniors posted on the key, a sign that these girls have been tapped into Phi Kappa Delta.

Phi Kappa Delta was formed as a sister fraternity to West's Omicron Delta Kappa in answer to the need for coordination of East's organizations and recognition of its leaders. Each year the most outstanding leaders are chosen, and their job is to recognize and solve any campus difficulties.

The members offered their services to the school this year by assisting Mrs. Persons in the newly organized Durham Student Day. They have edited the song book which is soon to be published.

Santa Filomena

denotes excellence in nursing.

Organized in 1944, Santa Filomena is the only honorary society in the Duke University School of Nursing. It is composed of seven to nine members of the rising senior class, who are tapped by candlelight at the first meeting of the Student Government Association each year.

To be eligible a nurse must show a definite capacity for good leadership, her scholastic average must be outstanding, and she must have proved her excellence in the nursing profession.

Members of the society wear the Nightingale lamp, a small gold pin, symbolizing superior nursing ability. It is the only piece of jewelry that may be worn on the nurse's uniform other than the hospital pin.

Activities of the society include an annual Christmas party for the children on Howland and Matas Wards who are too ill to return to their homes for the Christmas holidays. The members decorate the Christmas trees in the Pediatric Clinic and on the wards. A stocking is filled for each child, and small gifts are given. Many of the other activities are not known outside the society. The aim of all activities is to emphasize the nurse and the duties of her profession.

Santa Filomena often recognizes people outside the medical profession who have done outstanding work for the hospital.

Santa Filomena, a secret society, has a goal worthy of the character of its members in promoting higher nursing standards and better and more harmonious relationships between the nurse and her patients.

Alpha Kappa Psi

When a freshman enters college he is confronted with many bewildering situations. Adjustments are necessary, and Alpha Kappa Psi sets many of the business administration students on the right track. Individual members are given valuable instruction, and other students in commerce benefit.

Sometimes they tour leading business firms, sometimes there are eminent speakers on careers in industry, frequently industrial movies are shown. And occasionally they simply enjoy each other's companionship at a dance, dinner, or stag party.

Though a professional fraternity, members need not have professional standing. However, the fact that many of the members who have preceded them have proved themselves qualified and respected members of their professions provides the necessary incentive.

Like many of their illustrious alumni, the Duke men of Alpha Kappa Psi will take places of leadership in the business world.

Pi Tau Sigma

Members are mechanical masterminds of more than modest merit

Pi Tau Sigma is the national honorary mechanical engineering fraternity. The local chapter, Pi Iota, was founded in 1944, through the efforts and leadership of Professor Hinton.

The purpose of Pi Tau Sigma is to recognize high achievement in the field of mechanical engineering, to foster the ideals of the engineering profession, to stimulate interest in coordinate department activities, and to promote the professional welfare of members.

Semi-annually members are selected from the junior and senior mechanical engineering classes. The basic requirement for membership is high scholastic standing, but character, citizenship, personality, and professional interest are considered. The pledges are initiated before the Engineers' Ball and presented at the dance.

Tau Beta Pi

Slipstick Sams with superior sense and scholarship are singled out for acceptance.

In January, 1947, the members of Delta Epsilon Sigma, a local honorary engineering society, realized the purpose for which their organization had been founded. After ten years of planning and working toward the installation of a chapter of Tau Beta Pi on Duke campus, their petition to the national convention was accepted; and Marse Jack rang in triumph.

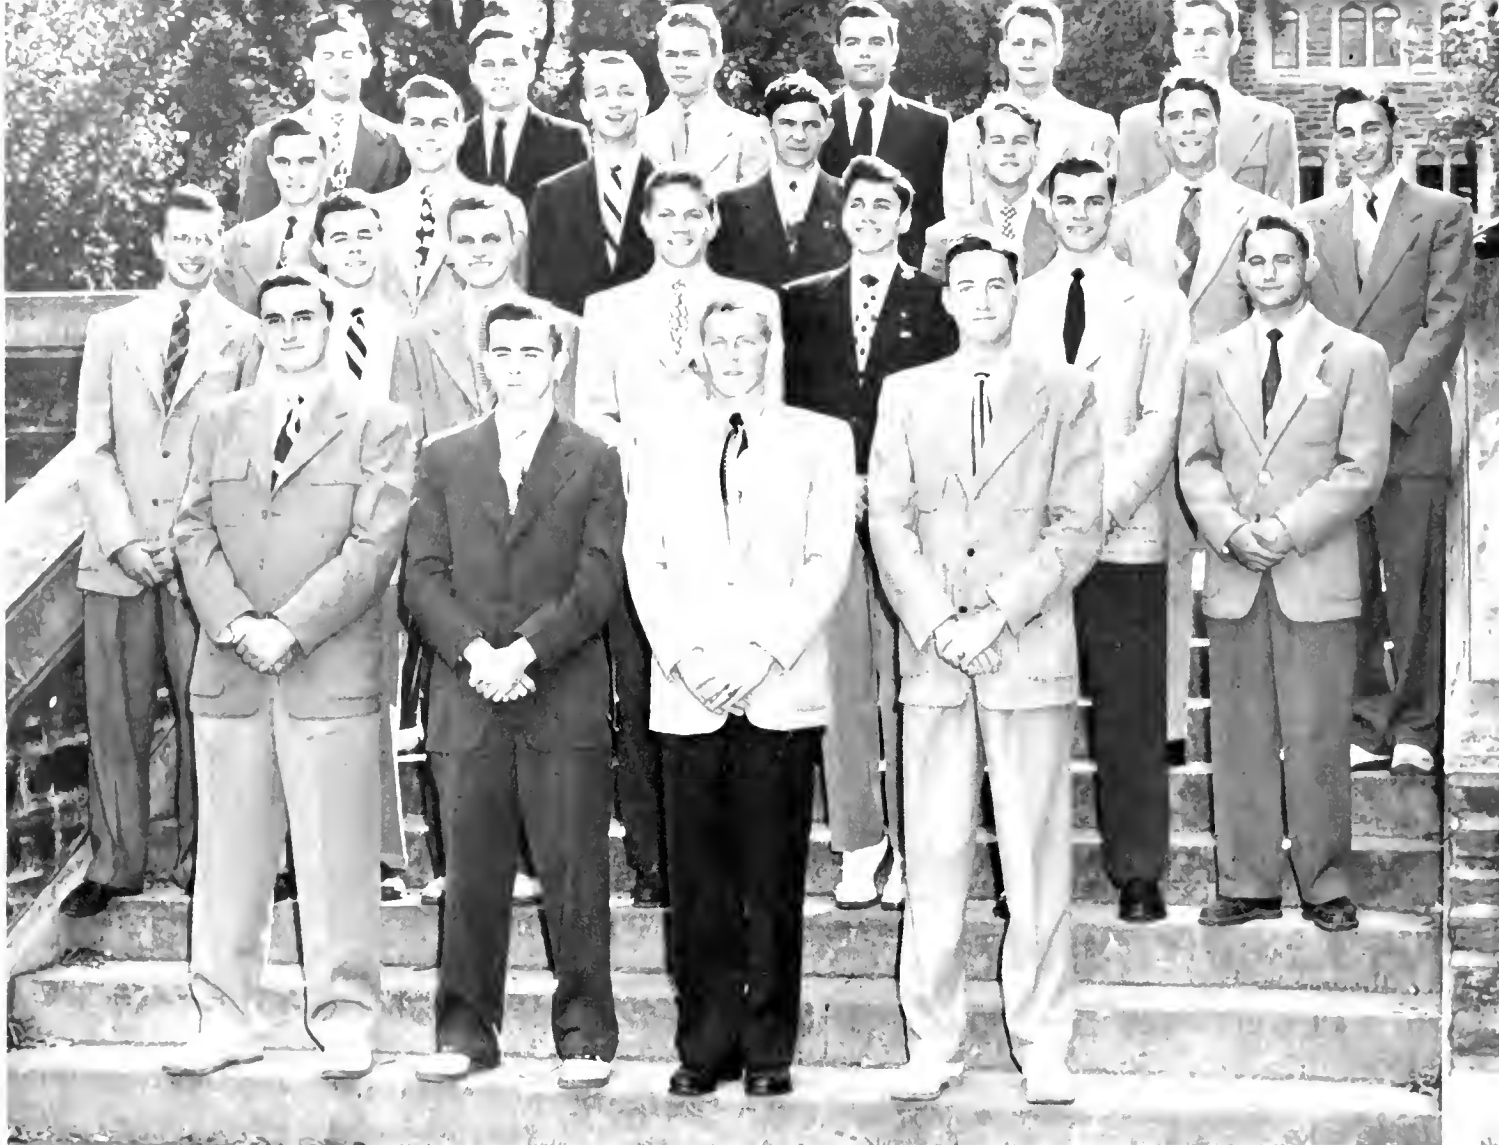

Tau Beta Pi was founded at Lehigh University in 1885 to recognize those undergraduate engineers whose superior character and high quality of scholarship had earned for them the respect of their fellow engineers.

This past year the Duke chapter has sponsored, along with The Order of Saint Patrick, a series of slide rule lectures. These lectures, presented by the faculty and students of the College of Engineering, are designed to teach the fundamentals of the slide rule and how to use the many scales that appear on it.

In an effort to honor those members of Delta Epsilon Sigma who meet the requirements for initiation into Tau Beta Pi, the present chapter is initiating as many members of the forerunner honorary society as possible.

The officers of Tau Beta Pi for this college year were David Dellinger, President; Don Premo, Vice-President; Harvey Fiegel, Recording Secretary; Algernon Noell, Corresponding Secretary; and Roland Woodfield, Treasurer.

Beta Omega Sigma

Those freshmen who have attained a "C" average and have the highest number of activity points in accordance with the rules of the organization are eligible to join Beta Omega Sigma. Activity points are based on the importance of the student activity and the amount of leadership required to successfully complete the work.

The purpose of BOS is to foster and to encourage wholesome student participation in campus activities. In particular it sets up plans and requirements for membership which are designed to interest freshmen in establishing leadership in the various activities for which they are eligible.

BOS has an outstanding list of well-done jobs on the campus. In the realm of sports, BOS decorates the goalposts at home football games and supervises the building and guarding of the bonfire before the Duke-Carolina game. During the regular semester, BOS cooperates with Sandals by giving a joint BOS-Sandals dance in the fall. Social gatherings, and the annual BOS-Sandals Sunday night sing, are among the highlights of the year on the campus.

As the speaker begins to talk at the Monday night assembly, Sandals swing into action, each member armed with pencil and paper running to her position in the auditorium and beginning to list the girls absent. Since 1932, when Sandals was founded by the Women's Student Government to recognize sophomore women for outstanding leadership, scholarship, character, and service, the Sandals have been on the job from the time they are tapped in assembly until they tap next year's crop. Aided by the advisers, Miss Jean Brackman and Miss Evelyn Barnes, the twenty members are on campus during Freshman Week assisting in the mechanism of acquainting the freshman girls with college life by proctoring the numerous exams, acting as the grading "machines" for the exams, and by individually aiding in the orientation of the freshmen.

Having converted the Ark into a recreational center for coeds and their dates, the Sandals take care of it, keeping it open for anyone who wishes to use it. After improvements have been made, Sandals will sponsor an Ark warming to bolster interest.

In cooperation with Beta Omega Sigma, Sandals presents the first formal dance each year, the Gay Nineties Ball, and a Sunday night sing second semester. In addition, they judge the town decorations at Homecoming and assist at the alumni barbecue.

Among freshmen a strong incentive to achieve scholastic honors is often lacking. To supply this incentive the honorary society, Phi Eta Sigma, was formed. It was established at the University of Illinois in 1923. Eight years later, a chapter was established on the Duke campus. Those eligible for membership are freshmen who attain a 2.25 quality point average for their first semester or a 2.50 quality point average for their first year.

The purpose of Phi Eta Sigma is to "create a thirst for knowledge." To further this end, the organization makes available to freshmen having scholastic difficulties special tutors. Not to deny the importance of the social side of college life, Phi Eta Sigma plans to sponsor several dances for its members.

The officers of this year's Phi Eta Sigma are: Henry Clark, President; Jim Ritch, Vice-President; Bill Dean, Secretary; Buckey Clemson, Treasurer; and Dean Archie, Adviser. Famous past members of the organization include Dean Alan K. Manchester, who was adviser to the Duke chapter for fifteen years. Another, Thomas Arkle Clark, donated to the organization a fund from which two outstanding members of the national fraternity are awarded three hundred dollars annually to be used in graduate work. G. Herbert Smith, President of Willamette University, and Fred H. Turner, Dean of University of Illinois, were also members of Phi Eta Sigma. Dr. Turner is the editor of the Phi Eta Sigma Forum, the organization's national publication. The fraternity claims a membership of seventy-one chapters with 30,611 members. The president of the Duke chapter of Phi Eta Sigma attended the tenth biennial convention in Austin, October 27-28, 1950.

Ivy

ment of groups and individuals.

Ivy, the freshman honorary society for scholastic achievement, was founded on East in 1937 in order that recognition might be given to the freshman women that would correspond to West's Phi Eta Sigma. Since its organization, Ivy has broadened its aims to include a three-fold purpose. In addition to giving the freshman incentive to study and stimulating their intellectual curiosity, it aids each one in rounding out her personality. The honorary presents a challenge to every member of the freshman class to value the building of character and the gaining of knowledge rather than the earning of quality points.

The membership requirement for Ivy is an average of 2.25 quality points for no less than fourteen semester hours during the first semester. Members may be initiated after their second semester if they have an over-all average of 2.5 for the spring and fall semesters for no less than twenty-eight hours. These standards were set up by the women's class of 1940, when they founded Ivy on February 15, 1937. Ivy taps its new members at a student government assembly in the spring and again the following fall.

For the first time since their beginning, Ivy and Phi Eta Sigma have worked together to carry out their aims. In December they held an open house in the East Campus Ark for all freshman men and women who had at least a "B" average at mid-semester reports.

Much of the emphasis of Ivy's work was placed upon providing better study conditions not only for freshmen but also for upperclassmen. In connection with this activity, quiet signs were distributed throughout the dormitories. In order to stimulate scholastic competition between houses, Ivy contributed a trophy to the house with the highest scholastic average. Next year the trophy will probably be given to the house that makes the most improvement in their average.

Marie Gatsch served very capably as President of Ivy, and Miss Ellen Huckabee was their adviser.

Its members gain a greater knowledge of the culture, customs, and language of Spain.

Sigma Delta Pi, national Spanish honorary society, appeared at Duke in 1937, when Professor O. K. Lundeberg founded the Alpha Theta chapter here. The Duke chapter has two main objectives: rewarding the outstanding student in Spanish at Duke with the distinction of belonging to a national honorary society and promoting lively interest in language, literature, and culture of Spanish-speaking countries.

Students elected to active membership must have completed at least fifteen semester hours of Spanish and have a "B" average in all courses, either at Duke University or any other accredited school.

Led by the 1950-51 President, Caroline Gosnell, Sigma Delta Pi presented a Spanish-night fiesta during the spring semester, held open houses, and performed the elaborate ceremony of initiation the first week in December. Catherine Blackshear is club secretary, and Professor Juan R. Castellano is faculty sponsor.

Tau Psi Omega was founded here on our campus by Dr. and Mrs. Dow in 1938. Having grown greatly since then, this French honorary society now has chapters all over the country. Founded with the idea of furthering knowledge of the French language and interest in the French way of life, the organization is a goal to look forward to for students struggling with their French classes.

To obtain membership in Tau Psi Omega, one must have either a "B" average through French 51-52 or an extensive speaking knowledge of French. For prospective members Tau Psi Omega holds open houses with a French atmosphere, a la cafe style, including card tables and French costumes. For one of the parties music was furnished by a five piece band and by Dr. Lewis playing on his guitar. At other meetings short French plays are presented. The major event was a three act play in the spring.

This year in the absence of Dr. and Mrs. Dow, the regular advisers who are on sabbatical leave, Professor Lewis and Professor Demorest have served as faculty advisers.

Zeta chapter of Kappa Chi honorary pre-theological fraternity, was begun at Duke in 1913, and membership opened to all undergraduates who anticipated entrance into any field of full time church service. Claiming the distinction of being the only such organization in the South, Kappa Chi members give parties for under-privileged children at Thanksgiving and Christmas, take part in the Thursday evening Duke chapel services, and hold joint services with North Carolina College.

Kappa Chi students hold weekly meetings in York Chapel under the leadership of Donn Corn, Nelson Adams, Harold Strader, and Bill Dean, local officers. Energetic Kappa Chis undertook a big program this year with a goal of establishing more Kappa Chi chapters in the southeast. More than pleased with seven years of operation here, Divinity School leaders and students decided that expansion was the answer. Dr. Waldo Beech gave the men that added boost, and cabin parties and square dances helped too. Energetic Zetas traveled far this year on the road to providing a medium of true fraternity among Duke's workers for Christ.

Saint Patrick has long been the saint of engineering; and, in many of the nation's engineering colleges, local societies have been founded to further the interests of the engineer in his honor. At Duke, the wearers of the kelly-green bow tie are recognized as outstanding leaders in the College of Engineering. First organized on this campus in June, 1945, the Order of Saint Patrick immediately became prominent by its contributions to campus-wide activities.

The Order co-sponsored with Tau Beta Pi the slide rule lectures this year and presented the freshmen orientation program. The big project this year was the effort to combine the local societies throughout the nation that have the same aims as the Order into a nationally recognized society. For this purpose the constitution has been revised to include the scope of nation-wide activities, and a national convention was planned. With the installation of the Order as a national society, the members will have demonstrated their leadership abilities in bringing the charter chapter to this campus.

The officers for this year were Glen Merritt, President; John Fullerton, Vice-President; Joseph Phillips, Secretary-Treasurer; and Dr. Brewster Snow, Adviser.

Pi Mu Epsilon

The Duke chapter of Pi Mu Epsilon was founded at Duke University in 1932, just eighteen years after its beginning at Syracuse University. Students who have completed mathematics courses through integral calculus with a "B" or better average in math and all other courses are eligible for membership in the organization.

Pi Mu Epsilon is a non-secret organization whose purpose is the promotion of mathematical scholarship among the students in academic institutions of university grade. It aims to do this by electing its members on an honorary basis according to their proficiency in mathematics, by engaging in activities designed to promote the mathematical and scholarly development of its members, and by taking any other measures which will strengthen and further the purpose stated above.

Theta Alpha Phi

Taking their motto from the immortal W. Shakespeare Duke's theatrical aim "to hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature"

In 1925, Theta Alpha Phi, national honorary dramatic society, was founded at Duke University, only six years after the beginning of the organization at the University of Chicago. The Duke chapter is the only one in the state of North Carolina.

Invitation to membership is based on meritorious work in two major or four minor roles, or equivalent work in business, makeup, and direction, or by helping to direct one-act plays for the Duke Players.

"The objectives of this fraternity are to increase interest, stimulate creativeness, and foster artistic achievement in all of the allied arts and crafts of the theater." In keeping with this aim, Theta Alpha Phi has as its motto: "The purpose of playing . . . is to hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature." Members enjoy the privilege of going backstage to talk with the actors, actresses, or technical workers of any professional production that is performed on the Duke University stage.

This year as in the past, the organization has worked for co-operation among the three dramatic organizations—Duke Players, Hoof 'n' Horn Club, and French Players.

With the introduction of the Duke radio station, WDBS, the dramatic organizations have been provided with a new and excellent medium for the production of plays. Their first opportunity for radio plays was at Christmas when Theta Alpha Phi members gave Dickens' Christmas Carol. During the second semester they cooperated with the Duke Players to dramatize several plays on the new West Campus radio station.

Varsity Club

Besides sponsoring a dance and a basketball tournament, Duke lettermen supervise athletics at Edgemont.

Varsity "D" Club members vividly illustrated to the Duke community this year what a combined athletic group can accomplish outside of their individual athletic achievements. Their program was initiated in earnest during the week-end of the Duke-Georgia Tech football thriller when over 900 persons danced at the first successful Homecoming dance since 1917.

Memorable activities included smokers every few weeks, when a noted outside speaker spoke to members and their guests. The annual Christmas banquet successfully concluded fall activities, but members duplicated their achievements during the second semester with the First Annual Monogram Basketball Tournament in February and an informal spring campus dance. The club also gave generously to charity and supplied Edgemont regularly with student sport instructors.

Anyone earning a letter in a varsity sport is eligible for membership in the Varsity "D" Club. The "D" Club aims at promoting better sportsmanship, improving the relations between students and faculty, and furthering the high objectives set forth by the University.

Delta Phi Rho Alpha, founded in 1921, to give athletic recognition to women, is East's organization for those coeds who have excelled in the field of sports on Duke Campus.

Membership is based not only on achievement in various sports, but on leadership ability and active interest and participation in campus activities.

The total number of girls initiated into Delta Phi Rho Alpha each year does not exceed seven. Women may be tapped during their sophomore and junior years for this honor. Once a year at the honor assembly on East Campus, a gold key is awarded to the senior girl who has done the most to promote and advocate athletic participation on campus.

Delta Phi Rho Alpha also provides incentive for sororities and dormitories, as a gold cup is presented each year to the sorority and to the house which have excelled in athletic participation by accumulating the largest number of points in various athletic competitions during the year.

This honorary fraternity does much for the betterment of campus life, since its chief objective is to further campus athletic interests and encourage girls to take a positive and leading part in athletic activity.

THE UNIVERSITY WOMAN—1951

Student Life

Preface to the Present

Duke University's first Homecoming celebration took place on May Day of 1926. The afternoon's festivities were climaxed by the crowning of Miss Olive Faucette as Queen. Accompanied by her court, Duke's fairest co-ed entered to the strains of the Wedding March. In place of the traditional May Pole winding, which was considered too difficult, a pantomime of Sleeping Beauty was presented. That night the big gym was the scene of various exhibits, including Siamese twins, a snake charmer, and a fish pond. The latter proved to be a dangerous display when Sam Bundy, doing a black-face number, accidentally fell into it. While "Jelly" Leftwich and his orchestra played the current hits, the boys, dressed in the latest women's fashions, vied for honors in a beauty contest.

Student Life

Vivien Leigh and Marlon Brando, co-stars of Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire," select Chanticleer Beauty Queen.

At last the long-awaited moment had arrived. The "Out of this World" theme supplied the perfect atmosphere for the entrance of the 1951 CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen. Amid the bush of anticipation, it was announced that Love Lindsey had been selected by Vivien Leigh and Marlon Brando, Warner Brothers' stars in "A Streetcar Named Desire." Preceded by her court of ten, Miss Lindsey was crowned by Bob Peterson, CHANTICLEER Business Manager.

The coronation ceremony took place beneath the blue and silver starlit ceiling, while the members of the Beauty Court and their escorts formed a semi-circle before the Queen and her throne. Love Lindsey, seated on her sparkling silver throne, was presented with a bouquet of red roses. Surrounding the room were silver star-shaped frames containing the pictures of each candidate.

Love Lindsey is a Zeta Tau Alpha senior whose loveliness enhanced the "Out of this World" motif of the ball.

Love Lindsey

elected Queen of the 1950-1951 Beauty Court by Vivien Leigh and Marlon Brando, Love Lindsey has been in the Court each of her four years at Duke. Hailing from Ocala, Florida, Love has been listed among the students having exceptional grades for several semesters. Zeta Tau Alpha has a beautiful as well as capable leader, for Love serves as their president.

Barbara Seaberg

Barbara Seaberg, crowned Homecoming Queen for 1950 at the Georgia Tech football game, was a member of the 1949-1950 Beauty Court also. She has been very active in extra-curricular activities, serving as a member of the Social Standards Committee, secretary of Sandals, and a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority. Barbara, who is majoring in education, is now completing her sophomore year on the Duke Campus.

Phyllis White

member of the Class of 1951, Phyllis White is majoring in education in the field of English and plans a New York career upon graduation. Phil, as she is known to her friends, has consistently kept her average up to the requirements of Dean's List. In the sphere of outside activities, she is a member of Kappa Delta Pi honorary and Delta Delta Delta sorority. Phil claims Palmerston, Pennsylvania, as her home.

Marion Chapman

native of Burlington, North Carolina, Marion Chapman is one of the three members of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority in the Beauty Court. This is Marion's second appearance, as she was also a member during her freshman year. Throughout her college years she has been very active on the Social Standards Committee. Though an education major, Marion will not be able to put her knowledge to practice for she plans to major in marriage immediately upon her graduation in June.

Marjorie Arthur

o newcomer to the Beauty Court, lovely, brunette Marjorie Arthur was also a member in 1948-1949. In 1949-1950 she was chosen to reign as CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen by the famous showman, Billy Rose of Diamond Horseshoe fame. A member of Kappa Alpha Theta social sorority, Marjorie will graduate in 1952. Her course of study is English, and in the past year she has worked on the copy staff of the CHANTICLEER. Marjorie is a Yankee, hailing from Bridgeton, New Jersey.

Anne Goode

ovely, blonde Ann Goode is a native of Lincolnton, North Carolina. Never neglecting her studies, Ann has kept her scholastic average high and is a member of Dean's List. Ann will graduate in the Class of 1952 with an education major. She has been selected for the CHANTICLEER Beauty Court twice previously, once in 1948-1949, and again in 1949-1950. She is very active as a member of Alpha Delta Pi social sorority.

Patricia Moeller

member of the Class of 1954. Patricia Moeller served as a class officer and an officer of the student government in high school. Her outstanding record was attested by the fact that she received the Daughters of the American Revolution award for citizenship in her last year there. Last fall Patricia was pledged to Pi Beta Phi sorority. Not yet having decided on her major, she is now studying as a general student.

Molly Bixby

Coming to Duke from Detroit, Michigan, Molly Bixby has been a member of the Beauty Court in 1948-1949, and again in 1949-1950. Molly is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. Pledging Pi Beta Phi upon her entrance to Duke, she is now a full-fledged member. With an outstanding high school record, Mary promises to do big things in her college career. A determined lass, she has already decided to major in education.

Ann Glenn

This is Ann Glenn's first appearance in the Beauty Court as well as her first year at Duke. A junior transfer, Ann was a Freshman Adviser and a member of Chi Delta Phi, a national literary society, during her two years at Huntingdon College. During fall rushing she was pledged to Alpha Delta Pi social fraternity. A southern girl from Anniston, Alabama, Ann will graduate in the class of 1952 as a philosophy major.

Lois Kime

Carolina weekend is the climax of freshman activities — if Duke wins the game, dinks are thrown away.

The pageantry and color of a Duke football season appeals to all.

Studies and classes combine with concerts, hair cuts, and other diversions and necessities to form the middle-of-the-week-life of a Duke student.

On Thanksgiving, linen and candles add to a day packed with exciting events for Duke students.

On Sundays, students take a needed time out from play and studies.

Long afternoons in class become an arduous task when spring arrives.

The 1950 June graduation exercises found those leaving Duke with deep thoughts about what the future years would hold in store for them.

The outstanding event of the spring semester for the freshman is the Freshman Dance held in the Women's Gym. Ruth Ann Fisher was selected as the 1950 queen.

One of the most prototypical characters ever to enter the American social scene is the college freshman. You have been lauded and lampooned, canonized and criticized, but miraculously have remained entirely aloof and unaffected by all discussion and comment. Briefly, you are a freshman.

You come out of high school, the one near Main Street, U.S.A., provincial by nature, apprehensive by necessity. You're thrown in with hundreds of others just like yourself, filled with preconceptions and pat ideas of just what college should be.

Then it begins. There are those first days marked by effusive greetings of "Y" men, faculty members, deans, and campus leaders. There are endless lines to stand in, endless speeches to listen to. This frightening jumble of facts and fancy is called indoctrination. It would be hard to find a more whimsical term.

After guarding a carefully gathered stockpile from malevolent Chapel Hillers for days, frosh set a match to the enormous heap and do the snake dance on the eve of the Duke-Carolina game.

But then there are the freshman dances and open houses, painful at first 'til you realize that the little brunette in the corner is just as confused as you are. You talk about it, and soon you're laughing about it.

The year goes fast. Football games, Christmas vacation, exams, fraternity rushing, spring vacation, exams, and then home.

The yearling grows older and wiser. Not too much. Just enough to laugh at next year's crop and wonder how they could be so green.

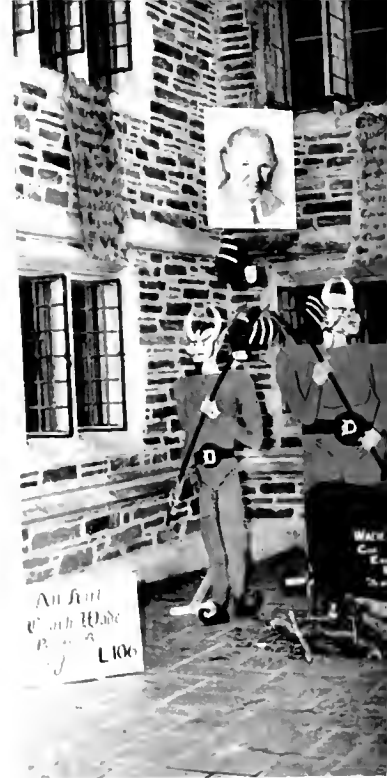

"Ask a Y-Man" includes the fitting of dinks for new Dukemen. Frosh cavort in such attire until Duke wins the Carolina game unless . . . then until Xmas.

Homecoming Season

You spent about three hours at the game, yet remained excited throughout the day, sometimes for weeks after. You found yourself involved in pep rallies, viewing Homecoming displays that sprung up around the campus like seasonal flowers. You were one of the crowd that saw the floats and the beauty queen, heard the band.

Afterwards you were at an open house, a dance, or some other form of organized bedlam.

Sunday morning you would pick up the paper and read about the game, to see what it was all about.

Pep-rally scene—Wood with his arms busy as usual, this time clasping cheerleaders Betty Heinke and Yvonne Schueistris instead of punching at air.

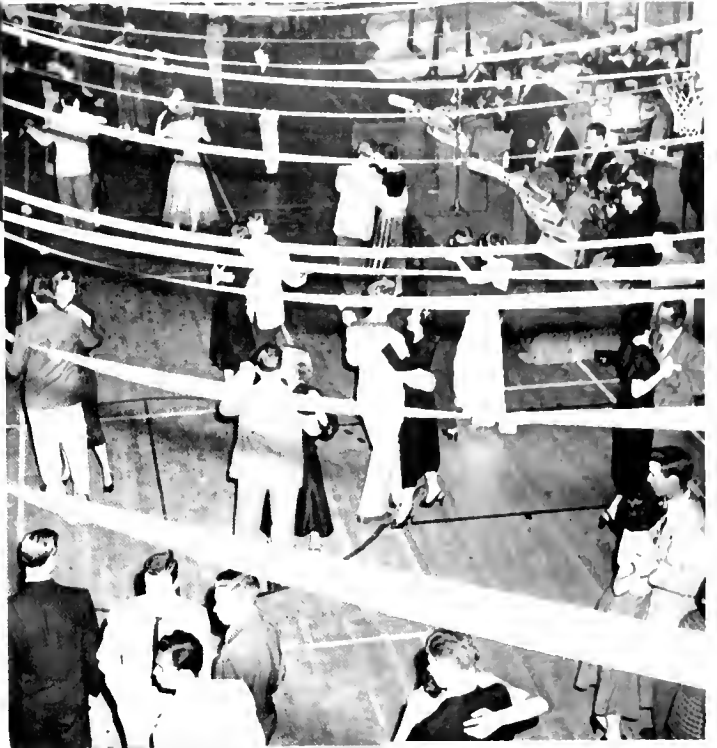

Sock scrubbing in place of shoe shining was one of the results of this latest innovation in rallying pre-game spirit. Students usher in the "Sock Tennessee" weekend by gleefully doffing their shoes to dance on the quad in front of East Campus Auditorium.

Homecoming decorations—sometimes loud, sometimes ludicrous, but always ingenious are an autumnal metamorphosis which transforms the campus for a week end. Here House "L" pays its tribute to Coach Wade.

The Varsity "D" Dance affords some lucky girls a whole, happy night surrounded only by "those big athletic men."

The heavy downpour didn't mar the beauty or the smiles of Homecoming Queen Barbara Seaberg and her court.

At an open house in the Pan-Hel House following a serenade, Thetas and Phi Deltis eat and talk beneath their badges.

West's Dope Shop sells everything from razor blades to four-in-hands.

Monday was a total loss. Too much week end. Friday and Saturday were occupied with preparation for a brand new week end. But just in case you forgot, there were many things you might have done to pull yourself out of the mid-week slump. On these few pages are shown some of the more indispensable necessities that became a part of your life at Duke.

Those shaggy around the ears find they may have to wait a long time for their favorite barber.

Between morning classes, the East Campus Dope Shop overflows with sleepy-eyed students clamoring for coffee and cokes. Even if you can't get waited on, you can at least have a cigarette there.

Aun and Sally tune their mandolin and guitar while Jana tries hopelessly to study. Best you give it up, Jana!

Pi Kappa Phi's Bob, Walt, and Al spend an evening in their room in the section. All props except the magazine were dusted off so as to appear used.

Stu Vaughn and John Putnam ponder over a complicated game of chess in the Lambda Chi room. Is Stu winning?—John has that worried look!

"Here comes the sandwich man," someone yells, and the boys rush to the door to get their nourishment for a long night of study.

What better break is there than a game of bridge? Carol, Pat, Maisha, and B. V. take a break but still don't waste time, as they knit too!! You can't study all the time.

"First things first," someone once said, and if you applied that to your college life, that meant concentration on studies, with smatterings of other things.

But you had some other lessons to learn first—important lessons, and so, that phrase and its application ran out just about the same time as the cookies that Mother had carefully packed in with your toothbrush.

You didn't like studying in the early evening, but you soon realized that the clown down the hall was determined to play that ukelele at eleven o'clock every night, and that was no contest. You couldn't quite see getting up before first period every morning, but your roommate's alarm clock went off anyway.

Like it or not, you soon realized the essential beauty and simplicity of cooperation, and it wasn't long 'til the routines and adjustments became second nature. You found yourself joining in on some of the bull sessions. Some were humorous, some serious. Some were momentous, some trivial. You talked about sex and politics, sports and religion, and a hundred nameless topics. You played cards, listened to the radio, wrote letters, and even studied. Subtly, but certainly, you were becoming acclimated and used to all interruptions and sounds. The laughter, the running showers, and the firecrackers became almost prosaic by June.

All this was helping you mature, in a somewhat warped way. The romantist might say that living in the University would prepare you for life anywhere. The cynic might say you'd be happy only in Bellevue.

And talking about "breaks," these boys enjoy their nightly get-together for a game of cards and kibitzing before sojourning to their rooms for studies. We take it for granted that they do study some!

Watch it now—don't cut yourself! Who is it? He has an anonymous West Campus look.

Pegrum's ravishing beauties daintily nibble at Thanksgiving breakfast in the parlor. Polly and Sue stopped eating long enough to pose. Helen and Ann are too sleepy to care.

The Duke-Carolina freshman football game on Thanksgiving afternoon is rapidly becoming a tradition of that late November holiday. In this year's battle between the Blue Hops and the Tar Babies, the frosh from Chapel Hill won an overwhelming victory, swamping the Little Blue by a 31-0 score.

Between halves of the Duke-Carolina freshman football game, the fraternities competed in the wheelbarrow race. Here the K As and ATOs come into the home stretch neck and neck.

Your roommate went home after the Coed Ball, and because it was Thanksgiving you sat around after breakfast and felt sorry for yourself in your orphaned state.

But Church was beginning, and after that there was the Freshman football game, the wheelbarrow race, and incidental confusion. Soon you were off to dinner, and, however begrudgingly, you had to admit that the Union had outdone itself. The evening wasn't a hilarious one. No, it was one of those quiet, relaxed times that you might have had at home.

What do you think of when you hear "Thanksgiving"? Food, of course, and here is a group of West Campus boys enjoying their traditional turkey, cranberry sauce, and pumpkin pie. This long table of SAEs are eating in the Oak Room.

This "action shot" of the Coed Ball on Thanksgiving Eve must have been taken early in the evening, for the dance is a popular one and is always crowded. The theme was "A Dance Out of This World."

Candle light adds to the atmosphere of the Oak Room before Thanksgiving dinner. This Duke dining room is popular with students and their friends.

It was funny how you eagerly awaited the Shoe and Slipper dances. After all, most of the tunes the bands played were on records that you could buy even in Durham.

Probably it was the curiosity and hunger for excitement, the exotic, the different, the fresh effect that made you forget for a little while that you were in Durham.

Vaughn Monroe and his vocalist are silhouetted in front of the Shoe and Slipper dancers as they pause to watch a specialty number.

During the 1950 spring weekend, Shoe and Slipper members danced to the music of Charlie Spivak's famous orchestra.

Sharing the bandstand with Spivak was Glen Grey and his orchestra. During the specialty numbers, students stopped dancing to crowd eagerly around the bandstand.

When Vaughn Monroe's orchestra played at Duke last fall, the famous leader and singer gladly answered students' questions.

Students start off the evening of the formal dance at one of the "lavish night-spots." Here Lambda Chi and their dates get into the proper spirit.

Tex Beneke, who took over Glen Miller's band, is another great bandleader-singer combination.

The first step in preparing for a date is for the coed to sign out on her in-and-out card, but this ritual doesn't seem to dampen this quartet's spirits.

This bird's-eye view was taken into a ceiling mirror decorated for Christmas at Miller's. The object in the lower right corner is not to be mistaken for a beer bottle; it is a ketchup bottle.

ating at Duke is the classic case of necessity being the mother of invention. Chances are there is no place this side of the Belgian Congo with fewer conventional niceties of public entertainment.

There was Hartmann's, Miller's, and the Saddle Club, Henderson's and the Wash-Duke. There was the Center and the Carolina. If you had a car there were new lands to conquer in Chapel Hill and Raleigh and the great Duke Forest.

In this scene a typical Duke dance is presented. The middle of the dance floor is jammed while three twirling couples command the outside perimeter of the gym.

Couples trying to enjoy a quiet evening of dancing at the Saddle Club find that at least 500 other students had the same idea.

The Saddle Club enjoys its usual Saturday night popularity. Old grads Pinky and Betty come back to party with old friends and see familiar faces, while some seem more entertained by the photographer.

Conversation and dancing are the stand-bys of the "old faithfuls" at Miller's Holiday Inn. Intellectual affairs, politics, and love interests are decided over a drink and a cigarette in the smoke-filled room.

But soon Saturday night became a reflex action with sometimes a dance, a play, a basketball game, or a concert to break the routine. By preference or last resort, you could play cards in one of the dorm parlors or in the Pan-Hel House.

Also you had the Women's Dope Shop featuring a television set and juke box offering the subtle, restrained mood of a boiler factory.

You grumbled loudly and tried many variations which taxed your brain and the house mother's sense of humor, but before you knew it the year was over, and it hadn't been so bad after all.

Despite a prohibitive ban by the higher-ups, the Social Standards Committee, and house mothers, coeds and their dates still say goodnight in the international way.

What could be better than seeing the small hand at ten instead of eight?—the weekly miracle, whose blessing never ceases. There's even time for a nice long stretch.

Saturday night was over. As you rolled over in bed, you thought blissfully of the long, relaxed day ahead. Maybe you'd sleep a little while longer. Possibly you could read the funnies that some enterprising early bird had brought back to the dorm. Then again you could clean up that room of yours that had been strewn with Friday and Saturday clothes, abandoned text books, and miscellaneous obstacles.

Your roommate was going to church, and, not wanting to be the lesser Christian, you joined that caravan of ghouls that one can see coming in and out of the Union on Sunday morning trying to get something solid on their stomachs so they wouldn't fall asleep in the Chapel.

The service passed rather swiftly, and you were back in your room after lunch. You wrote a few letters to friends or parents, talked awhile to an assortment of lost souls that always wandered in your room looking for someone to talk to, and then you tried to study for awhile. That was useless. Unless the paper was due

Students use the Union Lobby to catch up on the world of comic-strip and sports heroes in comfort. The cat, ignoring the finer things in life, just uses it for comfort.

Pouring from the Chapel after the morning services, students in their "Sunday best" hurry to the waiting busses and their Sabbath dinner. One eager character treads the sacred grass in his haste to be first in the chow line.

Just before the East Campus houses close on another Sunday, the parlors are filled with coeds and their dates. While some just relax, others discuss the weekend.

Monday morning first period, you could always think of something that was more important. You could sort your laundry or clean out your desk and closet. These projects always took on amazing importance in the face of studying. Once in awhile you would begin worrying about your health and would decide that you hadn't been getting enough sleep, so you would go back to bed for a few hours of tranquil slumber.

At night there were the Sunday night sings, the nine o'clock movies that you and your date had to sprint back from, church group meetings, and other more restful activities.

Jo Reynolds, a recent graduate, returns to school to help Pegram House with their Sunday night sing. Freshman Janet Grant clutches her rabbit and watches the skit. Throughout the year, each East Campus house presents at least one sing; however, this name is often misleading.

Once a week, the average student saves enough money to take his girl to dinner. Many couples head for the Oak Room after church.

It had all happened so quickly. Your life at Duke had just begun, and now it was ending. You recalled the events and happenings that had become, so vividly, a part of your life. You grasped at them, almost frantically, as they ran through your mind, before they faded into the background.

There were the classes that would never end, that were suddenly over. There were the romances that would never die, that had lasted half a semester. There were the seniors who had been your idols, and now you'd forgotten their names.

You'd had your big worries and your petty ones. You had left behind many of the old doubts, many of the old assurances.

You were a Jekyll-Hyde character—proud as possibly could be with your new diploma and your Duke education and yet humble in your realization of how little you really knew.

Exams send many new faces to the undergraduate reading room. The report due last week and the paper due the week before that add to the strain of ten days packed with five exams on completely foreign subjects.

Dr. Wilber advises some engineering students on the courses they should take for the next semester. Duke is noted for its small classes and individual instruction. There are rarely more than twenty-five students in a class.

Emmy checks to see how many pages are in each volume before she decides on one for her next book report. As usual, all the very thin volumes on the three-day reserve shelves had been checked out for at least a week.

Dr. Blackburn's creative writing class gives budding O. Henrys and Poes a chance to put their skill to practical application. The students read their stories to their classmates for criticism, which is usually of the friendly kind.

The school term is officially opened each year by a flag raising ceremony on the day before classes begin. In his capacity as President of the University, Dr. Edens presents a flag to the incoming Senior Class as its own.

ou tried to recount what you'd learned and found that you couldn't. It had been too big, and up close to it, as you were, you couldn't even see the outline. It had been too subtle. You'd never be able to pin-point the time or place. It had been too swift, a spectroscopic blur of color that left you with more memories than knowledge.

You'd been bored and amused, depressed and elated. You'd worked and played. You had been confronted with new ideas, new situations.

Now you wanted to define that four years, to catalogue it. But you realized you couldn't, and when anyone asked, it was best just to say you'd done an awful lot of working and an awful lot of living, and let it go at that.

As the pre-med major progresses on to comparative anatomy lab in his work toward medical school, he finds that Duke students are required to be on their toes, and he spends extra hours "boning" in the lab.

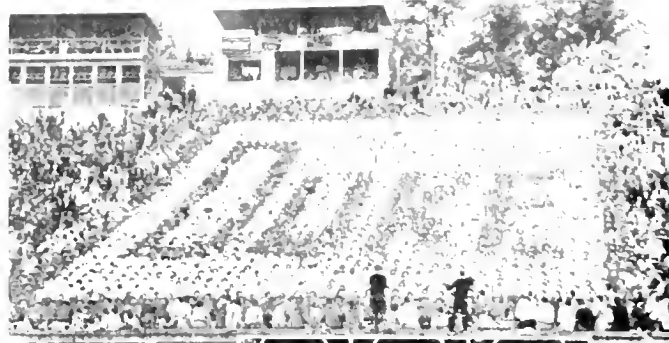

Almost every student is required to write at least four term papers—a conservative estimate—during his four years. By the cool, calm look of this student, his term paper is still not due for twelve hours.

The color and pageantry of graduation exercises in Duke's Indoor Stadium are majestic and awe-inspiring. But for many present, graduation is something more than pomp and glory. For the parents it is the realization of their hopes and dreams for their son or daughter. And for the graduates it is the closing of a door never to be reopened and the crack in a new one that widens into an unknown world. Yes, graduation—the day we all look forward to.

ATHLETE?

IS IT CONDITIONING. . . coaching . . . teamwork . . . physique . . . sportsmanship . . . competitive spirit . . . or just plain honest-to-goodness athletic skill?

We don't pretend to be athletic experts, because our job is to manufacture high quality textile products. But as sporting fans we think it would be safe to say that an athletic champion is the result of all these fine qualities.

We know that it has taken a combination of great leadership, manufacturing know-how, careful planning, employee loyalty, and skilled teamwork to make Burlington Mills a champion in the textile industry. The Company's many accomplishments and progressive growth during the past 27 years are well known. We are proud of this record and equally proud of our 32,000 employees who have worked together with real team spirit as members of the Burlington team.

It's a fact that Burlington's fine fabrics, hosiery and other textile products are truly "Woven Into the Life of America" — just as every Burlington plant is woven into the life of its own community.
